GOP SPURNS TRUMAN PRICE PLAN

Dixie's Senate Bloc Prepares For Filibuster

GOP Leaders Make Poll Tax Bill First Order Of Business

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—Republican leaders tied a hard knot tonight in President Truman's legislative program by announcing that an anti-poll tax bill will be the first order of business in the Senate.

Their announcement was equivalent to shouting: "Filibuster ahead!"

A closely-knit band of southern senators is pledged to fight that and all the rest of Mr. Truman's civil rights proposals by any means at their command.

The filibuster quite possibly may begin tomorrow, with a series of time-consuming motions to "amend" and "correct" the official journal of today's proceedings.

The process of amendment and correction conceivably could be stretched out for weeks. Once a senator has the floor, he is not constrained to confine his remarks to the matter at hand, but may range as far as his wit, his persistence and his inclination permit.

Sen. Taft, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, told reporters of the majority party's decision to take up the anti-poll tax bill after a meeting with other Republican leaders. He said the bill may be called up tomorrow, or, if not then, Thursday.

Bill Has Passed House

The measure would prohibit collection of a poll tax as a prerequisite to voting in federal elections. It already has passed the House.

Although President Truman did not single out the poll tax bill by name in his message to Congress today, he urged the enactment of the list of civil rights proposals he called for last February. That list included it as well as measures resigned to prohibit racial and religious discrimination in employment, and to make lynching a federal offense.

If the southerners seize on their first opportunity to talk the measure to death, they can begin tomorrow by debating the accuracy of the journal of today's Senate proceedings. They can "move" to correct and amend it. According to the staple Senate parliamentary doctrine, such motions are not subject to the cloture (debate limitation) rule.

To apply cloture requires a two-thirds majority, which Mr. Truman —himself a former senator—contends could be obtained in a showdown. But according to the general interpretation of the rules, cloture can be applied only against a bill or a resolution, not a motion.

Republican Strategy

The Republicans' strategy put them in the position of saying to the President: You asked for a civil rights bill; here is one; it is the only part of your legislative program that is ready for instant Senate consideration; can we help it if some of the members of your own party try to talk it to death?

The net effect of their move, however, may be to block his entire legislative program, including the anti-inflation and housing bills on which he laid so much stress.

The journal-amending device which the anti-Truman Democrats may use is possible only at the opening of a new legislative day, following an adjournment—not a recess—of the Senate. The Senate

Bingo Carnival Takes Root And Bears Fruit

PITTSBURGH, July 27 (AP)—The bingo carnival the Carrick Eagles held last May has taken root—and is bearing fruit.

Wavering rows of tall green corn now stand where the bingo enthusiasts once filled their cards with the hard corn kernals—tossing them to ground in disgust when they lost.

The kernels were trampled into the earth—and then suddenly the lawn of the Eagles Aerie 1520 began to sprout corn seedlings instead of grass.

Four Injured In Blast Near Princeton, Ind.

Small Fire Is Soon Extinguished; Cause Is Not Determined

PRINCETON, Ind., July 27 (AP)—Thirteen miners were killed in an explosion today at King's mine, three miles south of Princeton.

Four others were injured, two of them critically.

The blast occurred at 1:55 p. m. (Central Standard Time). Three hours later, mine officials said no workers remained unaccounted for and they believed the list was complete.

Cause of the explosion was not determined. Officials said it involved only one loading unit, no more than a score of men.

Officials said there were 176 workers in the mine at the time. They said the rest of the workers were not endangered. The blast caused only a small fire, which was soon extinguished.

Mine Employs 525

The bodies were brought to the Princeton armory. Lt. Murel Jones, of the National Guard, said a large crowd gathered, but no one was admitted.

King's is one of the largest shaft mines in Indiana, employing 525 men in three shifts.

A number of workers in other parts of the mine came to the surface, but some returned below to aid in rescue work. Miners came from other nearby pits to help. The United States Bureau of Mines office at Vincennes, Ind., 35 miles north, sent a rescue crew.

Ambulances from Princeton and Evansville brought the dead and injured to the armory and the hospital here. The sheriff's office at Evansville, 25 miles south, sent deputies to help Gibson County authorities.

Shaft Had Been Closed

The mine had reopened today after being closed several days because of water seepage. It had been inspected Sunday by state mine inspectors.

The explosion occurred at the lowest level, 433 feet down, and three miles east of the tipple. The last body was removed from the mine at 4:40 p. m.

Coroner C. C. Cook said all the bodies were badly mutilated and burned.

Joseph N. Potts, 45, safety inspector for the mine, said he was working in the area, 50 feet from the scene of the explosion. He was knocked unconscious but was not injured seriously.

"It was a helluva blast," Potts said. "I don't know what could have caused it."

"MIRACLE"-- Nurse Phyllis Nail comforts Anton Dickerson, one year old, in a San Diego, Calif., hospital where he is being treated after falling three floors from a hotel window to the pavement below. His only apparent injuries were a bruised cheek and blackened eye. The child's mother, Mrs. Robert Dickerson, 30, cried "it's a miracle" when informed he would live.

Early Windup Of Capitol Hill Session Is Aim

Republicans Blast Congress Recall As "Political Maneuver"

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The Republicans said no tonight to President Truman's demand for price controls and other powers to halt rising prices.

They announced plans to wind up the special session of Congress, called by the President, "as soon as possible." Many members said that meant within two weeks.

And they decided to turn the "turnip" session into a civil rights fight, apparently ruling out any major legislation along the lines asked by Mr. Truman in a personal appearance before a joint session this afternoon.

The President called for swift enactment of an eight-point program to halt rising prices. His chief recommendations: Some price controls now, limited rationing and wage-control in reserve, a new excess profits tax.

If inflation isn't checked, the President said, the result may be "another great depression"—just as the Communists predict—and "the world's hope for lasting peace would vanish."

The Chief Executive called too for the House to complete action on the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill, already passed by the Senate.

And he gave Congress a list of other things he wants it to do — boost the national minimum wage to 75 cents an hour, increase social security benefits, and pass a number of other laws needed now, the President said, for the benefit of our own people and to hold up our end in world affairs.

"Political Maneuver"

The Republicans, who control Congress, gave their answer in a chorus of scoffing which reached a climax with a statement tonight by GOP leaders of both houses.

They blasted the calling of a special session as a "political maneuver" by Mr. Truman "in the campaign for his own re-election."

They promised "consideration" of his anti-inflation proposals. But they said the blame for high prices rests solely on the Democratic administration. And they said flatly:

"It is our view that the restoration of OPA, subsidies, price control, wage control and rationing x x x would only make things worse."

Then they announced what they would do: Take up in the Senate, probably on Thursday, an anti-poll tax bill which southern Democrats are pledged to fight to a finish.

These Dixiecrats are all set to talk the measure to death. In doing so, they almost certainly would prevent action on any other legislation.

Republican Strategy

Thus one of the President's own proposals seems likely to be used by the opposition in an effort to prevent his other proposals from being carried out.

During the GOP huddling that preceded the statement of inten-

Truman Program Opposed By Wall Street, Business

Calmly Predict It Won't Pass Anyway

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP)—Wall Street and business today expressed disapproval of President Truman's anti-inflation program, but they weren't worried. Most said they were confident it would not pass Congress.

Most spokesmen approved the President's objectives. But they questioned his means to those ends. And they still asked, "Would the program really halt inflation?"

The President's request for price controls, excess profits taxes and allocations brought the greatest opposition from industry and financial circles.

The American Meat Institute said limited price controls and standby rationing authority "offer no solution to any problem concerning meat."

Production Called Remedy

The institute said those proposals could not increase the total supply of meat. At the same time they would drive large quantities of existing supplies "into the hands of crooks and black marketeers."

"The real remedy for the meat siuation is the production, as promptly as nature and other conditions will permit, of aduquate numbers of meat animals," the institute added.

The President's speech had little effect on the stock market and commodity market prices.

At the Chicago Board of Trade, officials said the program had been expected. Richard Uhlmann, president of the board, and O. W. Olson, business manager of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, declined to comment on the President's request for authority to regulate speculation on commodity exchanges.

Material Controls Favored

Benjamin Abrams, president of Emerson Radio and Phonograph Corporation, said he personally favored the proposal for price controls on basic materials. But the other parts of the program, he said, would be harmful to the radio industry.

He favored price control on materials because radio makers have been squeezed between rising costs and competitive price cutting on products, Abrams said.

The excess profits tax, if it were passed, would have the greatest direct effect on business, a large Wall Street broker said.

Ex-GIs To Peel Spuds With $50, Title At Stake

LONG BEACH, Wash., July 27 (AP)—They're going to decide the spud peeling championship of Southwestern Pacific County down here Saturday.

And, just as an appetizer, Red O'Connell and Lee Marsh will stage a bun-slicing contest, with the loser providing free ballons to every kid in town.

A couple of cafe-owning ex-GI's—W. W. Marsh and Carl Nosko, got into an argument over which type of knife was best for undressing potatoes.

Marie's Cabinet Passes First Test

PARIS, July 27 (AP) — Premier Andre Marie's new Cabinet successfully passed its first test in the National Assembly today.

The Assembly voted 330 to 191 against a Communist motion for a full debate on the new government's general policy. Premier Marie opposed the motion, urging the deputies to postpone discussion so the government could get to work "on the grave problems" facing France.

Although Marie did not make the vote a question of confidence in his government, all deputies realized it would be difficult for the Cabinet to remain in office if it met with defeat on its first appearance before Parliament.

A second, and more difficult test will come next week when Marie requests powers to promulgate decrees on non-political economic matters.

Most of the DeGaullists abstained on today's vote, which was prefaced by a violent attack on Paul Reynaud, the new finance minister, and Leon Blum, a socialist vice-premier.

Francois Billoux, a former Communist minister, called them "the grave diggers of the Third Republic who worked for the defeat of France in 1940."

"At a time when you were heart and soul with the Nazis," Marie interrupted.

Man Removing Pump From Well Electrocuted

FREDERICK, Md., July 27 (AP)—Paul Valentine, 52, Toms Creek, was electrocuted today when a pump he was removing from a well came in contact with a high voltage power line.

Valentine was helping his son-in-law, Marshall Sharrer, of nearby Rocky Ridge, remove a pump from the well on Sharrer's farm, Sharrer said. Also assisting was Sharrer's brother, Kenneth, and a neighbor, George Growsnickle.

Sharrer said Valentine had his hands on the pump when it brushed against a power line carrying 6,900 volts.

Growsnickle and Marshall Sharrer received burns on their hands and feet. Kenneth was knocked down by the charge and suffered a broken shoulder.

Over 400,000 Television Sets Already In Use

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 27 (AP)—More than 400,000 television sets already are in use, members of District Four of the National Association of Broadcasters were told here today.

Charles A. Batson, NAB information director, speaking at the concluding session of the district meeting, said that a recent study indicated that persons with both television and radio sets in their homes listened to the radio less than half as much as those with radios and no television sets, even in hours when television programs were unavailable.

U. S. Jet Planes Fly Over Several German Cities

Russia Is Reported Boosting Air Power

BERLIN, July 27 — (AP) — The United States Air Force demonstrated its growing air strength to Germans in the American zone today by flying jet fighters over several cities.

The German press reported at the same time that the Russians were substantially increasing the force of fighter planes, including jets, in the Soviet zone of Germany surrounding Berlin.

The three western commanders in Berlin talked at length on how to combat the Russian drive to turn the city's police force over to the Communists. By seeking to override the city government's authority to fire the Russian-appointed police chief, the Communists faced Berliners with the prospect of two police forces and two police chiefs.

The American, British and French commanders, Col. Frank Howley, Maj. Gen. E. O. Herbert and Brig. Gen. Jean Ganeval, met for more than three hours and dispatched a letter on the police crisis to Berlin's mayor, Frau Louise Schroeder. The commanders would not say what was in the note.

Police Chief Defies Order

Police Chief Paul Markgraf, Moscow-trained German war hero, defied the anti-Communist city government's order dismissing him. He said he not only would remain in office with the Soviet army to back him but would carry out Russian orders to fire Socialist Johannes Stumm. Stumm is the deputy who had been appointed his successor.

The German press speculated Stumm would transfer his headquarters to the western sectors from the Russian-controlled part of Berlin. This would mean establishment of two police departments in the blockaded city.

There was growing uneasiness, too, among the Germans over the Soviet-directed exchange of stamped money for newly-printed banknotes. When the Russians hurriedly introduced currency reform last month to meet western currency reform, they merely put a distinguishing stamp on the old Hitler mark while new money was being printed.

Exchange Deadline Near

All this money must be exchanged for new currency by tomorrow. More and more Berliners, particularly in the western sectors, said they had trouble in getting an exchange. After standing in line for hours, many western sector residents were being told their money was "forged," the western licensed press reported.

While Germans watched for the next western diplomatic step to force lifting of the blockade, Amer-

Realtor Wants Vast U. S. Housing Program

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — Members of Congress, long besieged by a real estate lobby that wants the government to stay out of the housing business, found one real estate dealer today who wants a bigger and better federal housing program.

William F. Carlin, Silver Spring, Md., admits "national pressure groups" undoubtedly would oppose his idea.

Nevertheless, he wants the government to go into the housing business on a vast scale—using subsidies, if necessary—to provide immediate relief for low-income groups.

The former president of the Veterans' Service Aid Council of Eastern Montgomery County, Md., made his appeal in letters to congressmen.

Age Will Determine Draft Order; Older Men Go First

8,000 25-Year-Olds Likely To Be Taken

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey said today men will be drafted by age groups, with men 25 down through 22 taken first in the initial six months of the program.

It was indicated clearly that although men of this age bracket would be drafted first, the bulk of draftees would come eventually from the 19 through 21 age groups.

Hershey said approximately 5,000,000 men 22 through 25 would be processed during the first six months, but only about 70,000 actually would be subject to the peacetime service of 21 months.

And he said he believes that no more than 8,000 would come from the 25-year-old group, first to be drafted.

Army Says When, How Many

The Army expects to take around 225,000 men in the first year. Later, the total will be up around 900,000.

It is up to the Army to say when it needs men, and how many. The draft service then will provide them. Hershey said today if the Army asks for as many as 30,000 in its first call, the draft may have to dip down into the 23-year-olds right at the start.

Later the Army plans to take about that many each month.

Hershey said today that deferments will be liberal, but added that Selective Service has not yet written regulations governing them.

The date for beginning of the draft has not been set, either, but Hershey said last week it probably will be shortly after October 1.

Registration Begins Aug. 30

Registration of all men 18 through 25 begins August 30 and continues through September 18. This will be done by age group, too, with men of 25 signing up first, men 24 next, and so on.

The draft head stressed that all men must register, including veterans, unless they are on active duty in the armed services.

Hershey's decision to draft men by age group was announced today after he held an hour-long unofficial conference with members of the House and Senate Armed Services Committees which worked up the draft law.

White Man Seeks To Enter Texas Negro University

AUSTIN, Tex., July 27 (AP)—Texas laws providing separate schools for white and negro students faced a test from a new angle today.

A white man, Jack Coffman, Houston, Tex., has applied for entrance into the Texas University of Negroes at Houston, Attorney General Price Daniell said.

Officials of the negro university have asked the Attorney General for a legal opinion on the question.

Syrian Proposal Rejected By U. N.

LAKE SUCCESS, July 27 (AP) — The Security Council refused today to approve a Syrian move to toss the Palestine problem before the International Court of Justice.

The vote on Syria's proposal was six to one, with four abstentions. A majority of seven votes, including all of the Big Five, was required to pass it.

Britain, China, Syria, Belgium, Argentina and Colombia voted for the Arab proposal; the Soviet Ukraine stood alone against it, and the United States, France, Canada and Russia abstained.

Dr. Philip C. Jessup, United States deputy, and Jakob A. Malik, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, led the opposition to the Syrian proposal.

Jessup told the council that the United States feared reference to the court would complicate the task of the United Nations mediator in Palestine.

He was backed by the Canadian delegate, Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton.

Malik said the General Assembly already had decided the case of Palestine; there was no need to refer it to the court. He accused Syria of trying to scuttle the United Nations Palestine partition decision.

Vegetarian Shaw Admits Taking Liver Injections

LONDON, July 27 (AP) — George Bernard Shaw, vegetarian and playwright, acknowledged today that he once took liver injections.

But he said it was years ago and "they very nearly killed me, too."

In an open letter reported by newspapers here, Associate Editor Symon Gould, of the American Vegetarian Magazine, had accused Shaw of violating the "vegetarian code of enthics" by taking such injections.

Shaw who was 92 today, was telephoned at his home in Ayot St. Lawrence for comment. He said he had resorted to liver injections "when I got pernicious anemia at a very advanced age."

Experts Predict "Letup" In N.C. Polio Epidemic

RALEIGH, N. C., July 27 L—Two experts predicted today that North Carolinians could look forward to a "letup" in the state's polio epidemic.

Despite this prediction from Dr. Roy Norton, state health officer, and Dr. Kenneth Landauer, assistant medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the total polio cases continued to rise.

The Board of Health today received reports of 33 new cases, which brought to 960 the total reported since January 1. All cases reported today were of July origin, bringing the total for the month to 544.

'Bama Truman Backers May Meet August 16

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 27 (AP) —State Sen. Joseph N. Langan has arranged to rent the Montgomery City Auditorium August 16 to hold a convention of pro-Truman Alabama Democrats.

City Commissioner W. A. Gayle said Langan tentatively rented the auditorium for that date, and will let him know definitely within a few days.

No Wonder New Mattress Made This Child Ill

COLUMBUS, O., July 27. (AP)—How would you like to sleep these hot nights on a mattress stuffed with cigaret and chewing gum wrappers, milk bottle caps, nails, match boxes, wires, nuts and bolts?

That, said Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, is what a Cincinnati woman recently found in her four-year-old daughter's new mattress after she became ill from wire jabs.

The Governor recently was shown the display of mattress stuffing by W. J. Rogers, state director of industrial relations, who called for strengthening of the Ohio bedding inspection law.

The manufacturer of the mattress said it had been made by disgruntled employes. The Industrial Relations Department can take no action against the manufacturer or the retailer.

Bradley Backs Segregation In Lower Levels Of Army

FORT KNOX, Ky., July 27—(AP)—Segregation of white and negro units in the lower levels of the Army was advocated here today by Gen. Omar Bradley, the Army's Chief of Staff.

Gen. Bradley told a news conference, however, that he favored combining these units to form larger organizations, such as battalions and divisions.

President Truman yesterday issued an executive order establishing a committee on "equality of treatment and opportunity" in the armed services.

The order declared it the policy of the President "that there shall be equality of treatment and opportunity for all persons in the armed services without regard to race, color, religion or national origin." It stated further that "this policy shall be put into effect as rapidly as possible."

Gen. Bradley, here with other ranking officers for a three-day seminar on the training of recruits under the new military expansion program, told his news conference that it will take 60 years to house the Army properly at the present rate of building.

In reply to criticism of the Army caste system, the General declared:

"Sure we've got a caste system. Do you know of any major industry that doesn't have? It's incentive that makes this country work the way it does."

He added, however, that the separation of officers and enlisted men should apply only to military relations.

The General said the United States occupation forces in Germany will not be strengthened as a result of recent developments in Berlin.

Versions Of Advice Dewey Gave Legislators Conflict

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—Just what advice did Thomas E. Dewey give to Congress?

There were conflicting versions of it tonight.

Sen. Robertson (R-Wyo) came out of a meeting of the GOP Senate Policy Committee and told reporters that Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, had advised congressional leaders to "stay around a week or so and then go home."

Robertson said Sen. Taft, of Ohio, had carried the Dewey message to the policy committee.

Newsmen sought comment from Gov. Dewey at Pawling, N. Y. at First Dewey's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, said the Governor had no comment.

Later Hagerty said:

"The Governor feels that the Congress should stay in Washington and give careful consideration to whatever was proposed in the President's message."

Meantime Sen. Taft was asked about consultations between Dewey and congressional leaders.

"There has been more or less consultation with Dewey but not in detail," Taft said. He added that Herbert Brownell, Jr., Dewey campaign manager, had conferred with congressional leaders.

Taft was asked about recommendations by Gov. Dewey.

"He made no recommendations at all but was consulted," the Senator replied.

A reporter wanted to know if Dewey had suggested Congress stay here a week or so and then adjourn.

"He was consulted and that's all I have to say," Taft replied crisply. "I'm not going to quote him on it."

The explosion occurred at the lowest level, 433 feet down, and three miles east of the tipple. The last body was removed from the mine at 4:40 p. m.

Coroner C. C. Cook said all the bodies were badly mutilated and burned.

Joseph N. Potts, 45, safety inspector for the mine, said he was working in the area, 50 feet from the scene of the explosion. He was knocked unconscious but was not injured seriously.

"It was a helluva blast," Potts said. "I don't know what could have caused it."

Early Windup Of Capitol Hill Session Is Aim

Republicans Blast Congress Recall As "Political Maneuver"

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The Republicans said no tonight to President Truman's demand for price controls and other powers to halt rising prices.

They announced plans to wind up the special session of Congress, called by the President, "as soon as possible." Many members said that meant within two weeks.

And they decided to turn the "turnip" session into a civil rights fight, apparently ruling out any major legislation along the lines asked by Mr. Truman in a personal appearance before a joint session this afternoon.

The President called for swift enactment of an eight-point program to halt rising prices. His chief recommendations: Some price controls now, limited rationing and wage-control in reserve, a new excess profits tax.

If inflation isn't checked, the President said, the result may be "another great depression"—just as the Communists predict—and "the world's hope for lasting peace would vanish."

The Chief Executive called too for the House to complete action on the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill, already passed by the Senate.

And he gave Congress a list of other things he wants it to do — boost the national minimum wage to 75 cents an hour, increase social security benefits, and pass a number of other laws needed now, the President said, for the benefit of our own people and to hold up our end in world affairs.

"Political Maneuver"

The Republicans, who control Congress, gave their answer in a chorus of scoffing which reached a climax with a statement tonight by GOP leaders of both houses.

They blasted the calling of a special session as a "political maneuver" by Mr. Truman "in the campaign for his own re-election."

They promised "consideration" of his anti-inflation proposals. But they said the blame for high prices rests solely on the Democratic administration. And they said flatly:

"It is our view that the restoration of OPA, subsidies, price control, wage control and rationing x x x would only make things worse."

Then they announced what they would do: Take up in the Senate, probably on Thursday, an anti-poll tax bill which southern Democrats are pledged to fight to a finish.

These Dixiecrats are all set to talk the measure to death. In doing so, they almost certainly would prevent action on any other legislation.

Republican Strategy

Thus one of the President's own proposals seems likely to be used by the opposition in an effort to prevent his other proposals from being carried out.

During the GOP huddling that preceded the statement of inten-

Truman Program Opposed By Wall Street, Business

Calmly Predict It Won't Pass Anyway

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP)—Wall Street and business today expressed disapproval of President Truman's anti-inflation program, but they weren't worried. Most said they were confident it would not pass Congress.

Most spokesmen approved the President's objectives. But they questioned his means to those ends. And they still asked, "Would the program really halt inflation?"

The President's request for price controls, excess profits taxes and allocations brought the greatest opposition from industry and financial circles.

The American Meat Institute said limited price controls and standby rationing authority "offer no solution to any problem concerning meat."

Production Called Remedy

The institute said those proposals could not increase the total supply of meat. At the same time they would drive large quantities of existing supplies "into the hands of crooks and black marketeers."

"The real remedy for the meat situation is the production, as promptly as nature and other conditions will permit, of aduquate numbers of meat animals," the institute added.

The President's speech had little effect on the stock market and commodity market prices.

At the Chicago Board of Trade, officials said the program had been expected. Richard Uhlmann, president of the board, and O. W. Olson, business manager of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, declined to comment on the President's request for authority to regulate speculation on commodity exchanges.

Material Controls Favored

Benjamin Abrams, president of Emerson Radio and Phonograph Corporation, said he personally favored the proposal for price controls on basic materials. But the other parts of the program, he said, would be harmful to the radio industry.

He favored price control on materials because radio makers have been squeezed between rising costs and competitive price cutting on products, Abrams said.

The excess profits tax, if it were passed, would have the greatest direct effect on business, a large Wall Street broker said.

LUGANA, Switzerland, July 27 (AP)—Five persons were killed and 11 injured today when a bus plunged 140 feet down a mountainside.

Ex-GIs To Peel Spuds With $50, Title At Stake

LONG BEACH, Wash., July 27 (AP)—They're going to decide the spud peeling championship of Southwestern Pacific County down here Saturday.

And, just as an appetizer, Red O'Connell and Lee Marsh will stage a bun-slicing contest, with the loser providing free ballons to every kid in town.

A couple of cafe-owning ex-GI's—W. W. Marsh and Carl Nosko, got into an argument over which type of knife was best for undressing potatoes.

Marie's Cabinet Passes First Test

PARIS, July 27 (AP) — Premier Andre Marie's new Cabinet successfully passed its first test in the National Assembly today.

The Assembly voted 330 to 191 against a Communist motion for a full debate on the new government's general policy. Premier Marie opposed the motion, urging the deputies to postpone discussion so the government could get to work "on the grave problems" facing France.

Although Marie did not make the vote a question of confidence in his government, all deputies realized it would be difficult for the Cabinet to remain in office if it met with defeat on its first appearance before Parliament.

A second, and more difficult test will come next week when Marie requests powers to promulgate decrees on non-political economic matters.

Most of the DeGaullists abstained on today's vote, which was prefaced by a violent attack on Paul Reynaud, the new finance minister, and Leon Blum, a socialist vice-premier.

Francois Billoux, a former Communist minister, called them "the grave diggers of the Third Republic who worked for the defeat of France in 1940."

"At a time when you were heart and soul with the Nazis," Marie interrupted.

Man Removing Pump From Well Electrocuted

FREDERICK, Md., July 27 (AP)—Paul Valentine, 52, Toms Creek, was electrocuted today when a pump he was removing from a well came in contact with a high voltage power line.

Valentine was helping his son-in-law, Marshall Sharrer, of nearby Rocky Ridge, remove a pump from the well on Sharrer's farm, Sharrer said. Also assisting was Sharrer's brother, Kenneth, and a neighbor, George Growsnickle.

Sharrer said Valentine had his hands on the pump when it brushed against a power line carrying 6,900 volts.

Growsnickle and Marshall Sharrer received burns on their hands and feet. Kenneth was knocked down by the charge and suffered a broken shoulder.

Over 400,000 Television Sets Already In Use

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 27 (AP)—More than 400,000 television sets already are in use, members of District Four of the National Association of Broadcasters were told here today.

Charles A. Batson, NAB information director, speaking at the concluding session of the district meeting, said that a recent study indicated that persons with both television and radio sets in their homes listened to the radio less than half as much as those with radios and no television sets, even in hours when television programs were unavailable.

U. S. Jet Planes Fly Over Several German Cities

Russia Is Reported Boosting Air Power

BERLIN, July 27 — (AP) — The United States Air Force demonstrated its growing air strength to Germans in the American zone today by flying jet fighters over several cities.

The German press reported at the same time that the Russians were substantially increasing the force of fighter planes, including jets, in the Soviet zone of Germany surrounding Berlin.

The three western commanders in Berlin talked at length on how to combat the Russian drive to turn the city's police force over to the Communists. By seeking to override the city government's authority to fire the Russian-appointed police chief, the Communists faced Berliners with the prospect of two police forces and two police chiefs.

The American, British and French commanders, Col. Frank Howley, Maj. Gen. E. O. Herbert and Brig. Gen. Jean Ganeval, met for more than three hours and dispatched a letter on the police crisis to Berlin's mayor, Frau Louise Schroeder. The commanders would not say what was in the note.

Police Chief Defies Order

Police Chief Paul Markgraf, Moscow-trained German war hero, defied the anti-Communist city government's order dismissing him. He said he not only would remain in office with the Soviet army to back him but would carry out Russian orders to fire Socialist Johannes Stumm. Stumm is the deputy who had been appointed his successor.

The German press speculated Stumm would transfer his headquarters to the western sectors from the Russian-controlled part of Berlin. This would mean establishment of two police departments in the blockaded city.

There was growing uneasiness, too, among the Germans over the Soviet-directed exchange of stamped money for newly-printed banknotes. When the Russians hurriedly introduced currency reform last month to meet western currency reform, they merely put a distinguishing stamp on the old Hitler mark while new money was being printed.

Exchange Deadline Near

All this money must be exchanged for new currency by tomorrow. More and more Berliners, particularly in the western sectors, said they had trouble in getting an exchange. After standing in line for hours, many western sector residents were being told their money was "forged," the western licensed press reported.

While Germans watched for the next western diplomatic step to force lifting of the blockade, Amer-

Realtor Wants Vast U. S. Housing Program

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — Members of Congress, long besieged by a real estate lobby that wants the government to stay out of the housing business, found one real estate dealer today who wants a bigger and better federal housing program.

William F. Carlin, Silver Spring, Md., admits "national pressure groups" undoubtedly would oppose his idea.

Nevertheless, he wants the government to go into the housing business on a vast scale—using subsidies, if necessary—to provide immediate relief for low-income groups.

The former president of the Veterans' Service Aid Council of Eastern Montgomery County, Md., made his appeal in letters to congressmen.

Dies In Garbage Pail

UPPER MARLBORO, Md., July 27. (AP)—Ambrose Howard Lewis, 13 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Lewis, died today after falling into a pail containing garbage for hogs on his father's farm near here.

Age Will Determine Draft Order; Older Men Go First

8,000 25-Year-Olds Likely To Be Taken

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey said today men will be drafted by age groups, with men 25 down through 22 taken first in the initial six months of the program.

It was indicated clearly that although men of this age bracket would be drafted first, the bulk of draftees would come eventually from the 19 through 21 age groups.

Hershey said approximately 5,000,000 men 22 through 25 would be processed during the first six months, but only about 70,000 actually would be subject to the peacetime service of 21 months.

And he said he believes that no more than 8,000 would come from the 25-year-old group, first to be drafted.

Army Says When, How Many

The Army expects to take around 225,000 men in the first year. Later, the total will be up around 900,000.

It is up to the Army to say when it needs men, and how many. The draft service then will provide them. Hershey said today if the Army asks for as many as 30,000 in its first call, the draft may have to dip down into the 23-year-olds right at the start.

Later the Army plans to take about that many each month.

Hershey said today that deferments will be liberal, but added that Selective Service has not yet written regulations governing them.

The date for beginning of the draft has not been set, either, but Hershey said last week it probably will be shortly after October 1.

Registration Begins Aug. 30

Registration of all men 18 through 25 begins August 30 and continues through September 18. This will be done by age group, too, with men of 25 signing up first, men 24 next, and so on.

The draft head stressed that all men must register, including veterans, unless they are on active duty in the armed services.

Hershey's decision to draft men by age group was announced today after he held an hour-long unofficial conference with members of the House and Senate Armed Services Committees which worked up the draft law.

White Man Seeks To Enter Texas Negro University

AUSTIN, Tex., July 27 (AP)—Texas laws providing separate schools for white and negro students faced a test from a new angle today.

A white man, Jack Coffman, Houston, Tex., has applied for entrance into the Texas University of Negroes at Houston, Attorney General Price Daniell said.

Officials of the negro university have asked the Attorney General for a legal opinion on the question.

Syrian Proposal Rejected By U. N.

LAKE SUCCESS, July 27 (AP) — The Security Council refused today to approve a Syrian move to toss the Palestine problem before the International Court of Justice.

The vote on Syria's proposal was six to one, with four abstentions. A majority of seven votes, including all of the Big Five, was required to pass it.

Britain, China, Syria, Belgium, Argentina and Colombia voted for the Arab proposal; the Soviet Ukraine stood alone against it, and the United States, France, Canada and Russia abstained.

Dr. Philip C. Jessup, United States deputy, and Jakob A. Malik, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, led the opposition to the Syrian proposal.

Jessup told the council that the United States feared reference to the court would complicate the task of the United Nations mediator in Palestine.

He was backed by the Canadian delegate, Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton.

Malik said the General Assembly already had decided the case of Palestine; there was no need to refer it to the court. He accused Syria of trying to scuttle the United Nations Palestine partition decision.

Vegetarian Shaw Admits Taking Liver Injections

LONDON, July 27 (AP) — George Bernard Shaw, vegetarian and playwright, acknowledged today that he once took liver injections.

But he said it was years ago and "they very nearly killed me, too."

In an open letter reported by newspapers here, Associate Editor Symon Gould, of the American Vegetarian Magazine, had accused Shaw of violating the "vegetarian code of enthics" by taking such injections.

Shaw who was 92 today, was telephoned at his home in Ayot St. Lawrence for comment. He said he had resorted to liver injections "when I got pernicious anemia at a very advanced age."

Experts Predict "Letup" In N.C. Polio Epidemic

RALEIGH, N. C., July 27 L—Two experts predicted today that North Carolinians could look forward to a "letup" in the state's polio epidemic.

Despite this prediction from Dr. Roy Norton, state health officer, and Dr. Kenneth Landauer, assistant medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the total polio cases continued to rise.

The Board of Health today received reports of 33 new cases, which brought to 960 the total reported since January 1. All cases reported today were of July origin, bringing the total for the month to 544.

'Bama Truman Backers May Meet August 16

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 27 (AP)—State Sen. Joseph N. Langan has arranged to rent the Montgomery City Auditorium August 16 to hold a convention of pro-Truman Alabama Democrats.

City Commissioner W. A. Gayle said Langan tentatively rented the auditorium for that date, and will let him know definitely within a few days.

No Wonder New Mattress Made This Child Ill

COLUMBUS, O., July 27. (AP)—How would you like to sleep these hot nights on a mattress stuffed with cigaret and chewing gum wrappers, milk bottle caps, nails, match boxes, wires, nuts and bolts?

That, said Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, is what a Cincinnati woman recently found in her four-year-old daughter's new mattress after she became ill from wire jabs.

The Governor recently was shown the display of mattress stuffing by W. J. Rogers, state director of industrial relations, who called for strengthening of the Ohio bedding inspection law.

The manufacturer of the mattress said it had been made by disgruntled employes. The Industrial Relations Department can take no action against the manufacturer or the retailer.

Bradley Backs Segregation In Lower Levels Of Army

FORT KNOX, Ky., July 27—(AP)—Segregation of white and negro units in the lower levels of the Army was advocated here today by Gen. Omar Bradley, the Army's Chief of Staff.

Gen. Bradley told a news conference, however, that he favored combining these units to form larger organizations, such as battalions and divisions.

President Truman yesterday issued an executive order establishing a committee on "equality of treatment and opportunity" in the armed services.

The order declared it the policy of the President "that there shall be equality of treatment and opportunity for all persons in the armed services without regard to race, color, religion or national origin." It stated further that "this policy shall be put into effect as rapidly as possible."

Gen. Bradley, here with other ranking officers for a three-day seminar on the training of recruits under the new military expansion program, told his news conference that it will take 60 years to house the Army properly at the present rate of building.

In reply to criticism of the Army caste system, the General declared: "Sure we've got a caste system. Do you know of any major industry that doesn't have? It's incentive that makes this country work the way it does."

He added, however, that the separation of officers and enlisted men should apply only to military relations.

The General said the United States occupation forces in Germany will not be strengthened as a result of recent developments in Berlin.

Versions Of Advice Dewey Gave Legislators Conflict

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—Just what advice did Thomas E. Dewey give to Congress?

There were conflicting versions of it tonight.

Sen. Robertson (R-Wyo) came out of a meeting of the GOP Senate Policy Committee and told reporters that Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, had advised congressional leaders to "stay around a week or so and then go home."

Robertson said Sen. Taft, of Ohio, had carried the Dewey message to the policy committee.

Newsmen sought comment from Gov. Dewey at Pawling, N. Y. at First Dewey's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, said the Governor had no comment.

Later Hagerty said:

"The Governor feels that the Congress should stay in Washington and give careful consideration to whatever was proposed in the President's message."

Meantime Sen. Taft was asked about consultations between Dewey and congressional leaders.

"There has been more or less consultation with Dewey but not in detail," Taft said. He added that Herbert Brownell, Jr., Dewey campaign manager, had conferred with congressional leaders.

Taft was asked about recommendations by Gov. Dewey.

"He made no recommendations at all but was consulted," the Senator replied.

A reporter wanted to know if Dewey had suggested Congress stay here a week or so and then adjourn.

"He was consulted and that's all I have to say," Taft replied crisply. "I'm not going to quote him on it."

Warren Urged To Deny Mississippi's Request For Extradition Of Negro

SACRAMENTO, Calif., July 27 (AP) —Spokesmen for numerous organizations urged Gov. Earl Warren today to deny Mississippi's request for extradition of Wiley King, negro accused of escaping from the Mississippi penitentiary.

King, under arrest at Oakland, was sentenced to life November 6, 1926, for the shooting of another negro near Tylertown, Miss.

Today's hearing was conducted by James Welsh, clemency secretary to the Governor.

Witnesses, both negro and white, appearing on behalf of King described the case as a miscarriage of justice—assertedly in disregard of the rights of colored citizens.

The defendant's identity became known when he was fingerprinted in an application to engage in the junk and auto parts business in Oakland. He had lived in Oakland since April, 1947, owning a half interest in a grocery store.

Attorney Robert Treuhaft, Oakland, asserted King was not knowingly a fugitive. He said the evidence indicated he believed he had been pardoned by a Mississippi governor after having paid a white prison guard $250 for helping to get the pardon. The papers, he said, were to be mailed to him at his sister's address in Arkansas.

Treuhaft also denied that King, who served time under the name of Jessie Stewart (the latter being his stepfather's name) had pleaded guilty.

It was alleged further he was not advised of his rights and the whole court proceeding lasted less than 10 minutes.

Spokesmen appearing for him said that for 21 years King had lived an exemplary life.

Wallace Calls Truman Order "Empty Gesture"

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP)—President Truman's executive order of last night, directing that discrimination in the armed forces be wiped out, was described today by Henry A. Wallace as "an empty gesture."

The Progressive Party presidential candidate also called Truman's order for a fair employment practices system for federal employes "another obvious political gesture."

Work Will Start Today On State House Subway

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 27 (AP) — Excavators start work tomorrow on a $50,000 legislative subway between the State House and Court of Appeals building, Foreman Richard R. Wolfsheimer said today.

A steam shovel will rip up the pavement of State Circle and burrow 16 feet under the street, he said. The job should be finished in about six weeks.

Wolfsheimer, superintendent for John McShain, Inc., contractor, said the glazed-tile subway will be 106 feet long, eight feet high and eight feet wide, and eight feet below the street level. It will have a terrazzo floor.

Strikes Threaten Italian Economy

ROME, July 27 (AP)—New strikes threatened the Italian economy tonight as eleventh-hour peacemakers strove to avert the break-up of the Italian General Confederation of Labor.

Labor leaders representing moderate and Republican elements in the 7,000,000-member General Labor Confederation (CGIL) went before the new Catholic Workers' Association and urged them not to quit the confederation because of the use of "political strikes," by the CGIL's Communist leaders.

But the decision apparently was irrevocable. Christian Democrat leaders said last week the "revolutionary" strike called June 14 after an attempt on the life of Com- violated the terms of labor's unity pact. The Communist-dominated CGIL executive committee today read the Christian Democrats out of the organization.

Workers of the Bank of Italy, run by the government, announced meanwhile they would quit for 24 hours tomorrow because of "indifference" to their demands for more money.

Milan dispatches said workers had seized the Catiglione copper products factory after it laid off 700 men, asserting banks would not allow the company credit to meet payrolls.

Md. Gets $652,038 For School Lunch Program

WASHINGTON, July 27—(AP)—The Agriculture Department today allocated $58,800,000 to the states and territories for the 1948-49 school lunch program.

Congress appropriated $75,000,000 for the program, $5,000,000 more than for the previous year.

Apportionments included: Maryland, $652,038; West Virginia, $1,131,379.

adjourned today, so it could be used tomorrow.

The southerners, who have perfected a tight organization, have agreed informally to let Sen. Stennis (D-Miss), Maybank (D-SC) and Stewart (D-Tenn) lead off any time-killing debate.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga), a leader of the opposition to Mr. Truman's civil rights program, was asked point-blank if the southerners plan a filibuster.

Suavely he answered:

"It will take considerable argument to get the facts before the country. The arguments will start when the bill is in the proper parliamentary position. We will debate only the merits of the issue—the philosophy of state's rights. There will be no extraneous matter brought into the debate."

Early Windup

tions, Sen. Robertson (R-Wyo) said Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had advised Congress to "stay around a week or so and then go home."

Asked for comment, James C. Hagerty, press secretary to the Presidential nominee, said at Pawling, N. Y.:

"The Governor feels that the Congress should stay in Washington and give careful consideration to whatever was proposed in the President's message. . ."

Prices came first in Mr. Truman's appeal to Congress. Housing came second. He said the need for low-rent homes is desperate. He urged the House to pass the Taft-Ellender-Wagner long-range housing bill already adopted by the Senate.

GOP leaders turned him down on that, too. They said a long-range program "cannot be dealt with at this special session." But the promised "further consideration" of the housing shortage and said "much already has been done" by the 80th Congress to solve it.

The Republicans' answer to the President in general: "Serious legislative problems cannot be satisfactorily handled in the midst of a political campaign."

There is a fundamental difference, the Republicans said, between what Mr. Truman thinks and what Congress thinks—he wants to "regiment" the country, Congress believes in the historic "principles of liberty."

It's up to the voters, the statement said, to decide between them in November.

Today's tempest of charges and counter-charges began with the President's speech at 11:30 a. m. (EST).

Grimly addressing the lawmakers he has denounced and called into a special, election-year session, Mr. Truman warned that "the Communists, both here and abroad, are counting on our present prosperity turning into a depression."

We must prevent, he said, a crash that would "cut the ground from under the free nations of Europe" and wreck "the world's hope f lasting peace."

Other major items on the assign ment sheet he handed Congres Federal aid to education, mo money for public power plants, an a bill admitting 400,000 displace persons in four years without re ligious or other discrimination.

Warren Urged To Deny Mississippi's Request For Extradition Of Negro

SACRAMENTO, Calif., July 27 (AP)—Spokesmen for numerous organizations urged Gov. Earl Warren today to deny Mississippi's request for extradition of Wiley King, negro accused of escaping from the Mississippi penitentiary.

King, under arrest at Oakland, was sentenced to life November 6, 1926, for the shooting of another negro near Tylertown, Miss.

Today's hearing was conducted by James Welsh, clemency secretary to the Governor.

Witnesses, both negro and white, appearing on behalf of King described the case as a miscarriage of justice—assertedly in disregard of the rights of colored citizens.

The defendant's identity became known when he was fingerprinted in an application to engage in the junk and auto parts business in Oakland. He had lived in Oakland since April, 1947, owning a half interest in a grocery store.

Attorney Robert Treuhaft, Oakland, asserted King was not knowingly a fugitive. He said the evidence indicated he believed he had been pardoned by a Mississippi governor after having paid a white prison guard $250 for helping to get the pardon. The papers, he said, were to be mailed to him at his sister's address in Arkansas.

Treuhaft also denied that King, who served time under the name of Jessie Stewart (the latter being his stepfather's name) had pleaded guilty.

It was alleged further he was not advised of his rights and the whole court proceeding lasted less than 10 minutes.

Spokesmen appearing for him said that for 21 years King had lived an exemplary life.

Wallace Calls Truman Order "Empty Gesture"

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP)—President Truman's executive order of last night, directing that discrimination in the armed forces be wiped out, was described today by Henry A. Wallace as "an empty gesture."

The Progressive Party presidential candidate also called Truman's order for a fair employment practices system for federal employes "another obvious political gesture."

Work Will Start Today On State House Subway

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 27 (AP)—Excavators start work tomorrow on a $50,000 legislative subway between the State House and Court of Appeals building, Foreman Richard R. Wolfsheimer said today.

A steam shovel will rip up the pavement of State Circle and burrow 16 feet under the street, he said. The job should be finished in about six weeks.

Wolfsheimer, superintendent for John McShain, Inc., contractor, said the glazed-tile subway will be 106 feet long, eight feet high and eight feet wide, and eight feet below the street level. It will have a terrazzo floor.

Strikes Threaten Italian Economy

ROME, July 27 (AP)—New strikes threatened the Italian economy tonight as eleventh-hour peacemakers strove to avert the break-up of the Italian General Confederation of Labor.

Labor leaders representing moderate and Republican elements in the 7,000,000-member General Labor Confederation (CGIL) went before the new Catholic Workers' Association and urged them not to quit the confederation because of the use of "political strikes," by the CGIL's Communist leaders.

But the decision apparently was irrevocable. Christian Democrat leaders said last week the "revolutionary" strike called June 14 after an attempt on the life of Com- violated the terms of labor's unity pact. The Communist-dominated CGIL executive committee today read the Christian Democrats out of the organization.

Workers of the Bank of Italy, run by the government, announced meanwhile they would quit for 24 hours tomorrow because of "indifference" to their demands for more money.

Milan dispatches said workers had seized the Catiglione copper products factory after it laid off 700 men, asserting banks would not allow the company credit to meet payrolls.

Dixie's Senate

adjourned today, so it could be used tomorrow.

The southerners, who have perfected a tight organization, have agreed informally to let Sen. Stennis (D-Miss), Maybank (D-SC) and Stewart (D-Tenn) lead off any time-killing debate.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga), a leader of the opposition to Mr. Truman's civil rights program, was asked point-blank if the southerners plan a filibuster.

Suavely he answered:

"It will take considerable argument to get the facts before the country. The arguments will start when the bill is in the proper parliamentary position. We will debate only the merits of the issue—the philosophy of state's rights. There will be no extraneous matter brought into the debate."

U. S. Jet Planes

ican jet fighters zoomed over the American zone in what Air Force officers termed "familiarization" flights.

The 16 "Shooting Star" jets, which arrived in Germany Sunday after a flight across the Atlantic, took off from Fuerstenfeldbruck field, near Munich. Four planes flew over Wiesbaden and Frankfurt and four more over Heidelburg and Stuttgart for an hour and a half.

BALTIMORE, July 27 (AP)—The Public Service Commission has ordered the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to continue operating its passenger and freight station at Barnesville.

McMath Leads In Ark.

Md. Gets $652,038 For School Lunch Program

WASHINGTON, July 27—(AP)—The Agriculture Department today allocated $58,800,000 to the states and territories for the 1948-49 school lunch program.

Congress appropriated $75,000,000 for the program, $5,000,000 more than for the previous year.

Apportionments included: Maryland, $652,038; West Virginia, $1,131,379.

Union Office Picketed

AMBRIDGE, Pa., July 27. (AP)—The CIO-United Steelworkers office here had the table turned on it today—it was picketed by a 19-year-old ex-union stenographer.

The stenographer, Demaris Zagrocki, called out two other union secretaries to march around the union office in protest against her dismissal by the local president.

Early Windup

tions, Sen. Robertson (R-Wyo) said Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had advised Congress to "stay around a week or so and then go home."

Asked for comment, James C. Hagerty, press secretary to the Presidential nominee, said at Pawling, N. Y.:

"The Governor feels that the Congress should stay in Washington and give careful consideration to whatever was proposed in the President's message. . "

Prices came first in Mr. Truman's appeal to Congress. Housing came second. He said the need for low-rent homes is desperate. He urged the House to pass the Taft-Ellender-Wagner long-range housing bill already adopted by the Senate.

GOP leaders turned him down on that, too. They said a long-range program "cannot be dealt with at this special session." But the promised "further consideration" of the housing shortage and said "much already has been done" by the 80th Congress to solve it.

The Republicans' answer to the President in general: "Serious legislative problems cannot be satisfactorily handled in the midst of a political campaign."

There is a fundamental difference, the Republicans said, between what Mr. Truman thinks and what Congress thinks—he wants to "regiment" the country, Congress believes in the historic "principles of liberty."

It's up to the voters, the statement said, to decide between them in November.

Today's tempest of charges and counter-charges began with the President's speech at 11:30 a. m. (EST).

Grimly addressing the lawmakers he has denounced and called into a special, election-year session, Mr. Truman warned that "the Communists, both here and abroad, are counting on our present prosperity turning into a depression."

We must prevent, he said, a crash that would "cut the ground from under the free nations of Europe" and wreck "the world's hope for lasting peace."

Other major items on the assignment sheet he handed Congress: Federal aid to education, more money for public power plants, and a bill admitting 400,000 displaced persons in four years without religious or other discrimination.

BROADWAY

By DANTON WALKER

Two Presidents of the United States, Grover Cleveland and Theodore Roosevelt, were patrons of Cavanagh's, but it was the Irish politicians of Tammany Hall who did most to spread its fame. At their beefsteak parties, held upstairs, the Sachems and their satellites would gather around tables groaning with robust victuals and would dispose of tasty slices of broiled beefsteak, eaten without knife or fork, mountains of potato chips and barrels of beer. After which the boys would harmonize with "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" and "Who Threw the Overalls in Mrs. Murphy's Chowder?" Like every other good Irish boniface, John Cavanagh was a Tammanyite and in on these proceedings . . . Another custom that has vanished with the years was the tally-ho, run from Cavanagh's to McGowan's Pass during the 1890's. The fashionable coach crowd would gather on 23d St. to make merry before climbing into their coaches and dashing for Central Park.

With the shifting of the Rialto towards Times Square, John Cavanagh had many offers to move his restaurant nearer the entertainment center, but he loved the old neighborhood through which he would strut daily in top hat and frock coat, the unelected "Mayor of Chelsea." Now 81, he has retired from restaurant activities. A former song-and-dance man, Ray Doyle, now fronts for the place. Though some concessions have been made by way of "modernizing" the interior, the atmosphere and decor of another day predominate. Outside, the glass-bordered overhanging roof and lamp posts are nostalgic symbols of a more colorful past. Old-time waiters, with such characteristic Hibernian names as Tim, Mike and Pat, wearing traditional neat black frock coats, serve the latter-day politicians, including Frank Sampson, recently deposed Tammany Hall head, and Jim Farley, who is referred to as The Chief.

•—•—•

Jack's, Burns', Browne's, Dorlon's and O'Neill's were some of the Irish chop houses contemporary with Cavanagh's. Most of these have passed out of the picture, but one restaurant dating from the same era and which, like Cavanaugh's, preserves much of its original atmosphere is Billy, the Oysterman's, founded by a young English immigrant named George Ockenden. Deserting a sailing ship in New York Harbor in 1875, Ockenden, whose capital was a few coins and two books — the Bible and Tom Paine's "Age of Reason"—worker as porter in a saloon before opening a small oyster stand at Wooster and Third Streets, then a shady neighborhood of brothels and French wine shops. His two sons, George, Jr. and Billy, became his helpers. A daily diner on Ockenden's sea food was the operator of a neighborhood cloth sponging factory, William Fox. The latter, then much interested in the nickelodeon, leased a store in Brooklyn and Ockenden helped him move his equipment to the new location, which became the birthplace of the great William Fox moving picture enterprises.

•—•—•

In 1908, Billy Ockenden and his brother assumed active direction of their father's restaurant and took a new location on 19th St., east of Sixth Ave. (opposite Siegel-Cooper's department store). With sawdust covered floors and bare tables, the spot became famous for oysters and fish, attracting members of the Princeton Club and theatrical and sports figures — Wilton Lackaye, Blanche Ring, Frank Craven, Jake Ruppert and John McGraw. In 1913, Billy Ockenden—by now Billy the Oysterman—moved to 20th St. between Fifth Ave. and Broadway, where the tradition of its predecessors carried on. Among the famous parties held there was a joint birthday party for Daniel Frohman and August Heckscher given by Fanny Hurst, with Walter Damrosch, Roy Howard and other celebrities as guests. The same evening of the party, a rising politician, Fiorello LaGuardia, protested so shrilly against having his picture taken that the cameramen gave up on the chore. Also present that evening was District Attorney William Dodge, a regular patron. Later his successor, Thomas E. Dewey patronized Billy's.

•—•—•

Over a half century, Billy the Oysterman has played host to such diversified celebrities as Admiral Dewey, Mark Twain, Stanford White, Tex Rickard, Enrico Caruso, Rex Beach, Mary Garden, Fanny Brice, Ernestine Schumann-Heink and members of the "original" Florodora Sextette. It is still operated by the family, with William T. Ockenden as head. Eleven years ago he opened a branch on W. 47th St., but gourmets who are nostalgically inclined prefer the older location.

A Map Of Wallace's Mind And The Party He Directs

Henry Wallace's object in launching a new party and calling it in convention at Philadelphia was doubtless that of the so-called Adullamites, as set forth in the Bible in the Twenty-second chapter of Kings: to gather together in the cave of Adullam "every one that was in distress, and every one that was in debt, and every one that was discontented."

That, however, was not the sort of crowd which assembled in the City of Brotherly Love. Instead, it was a gathering, in a boom period, of well-nourished but cantankerous faddists, who are against all accepted national policies—against the draft, the Truman doctrine to aid Greece and Turkey, the Marshall Plan to help western Europe, the House un-American Activities Committee, the Taft-Hartley labor act, the national resolve to take a firm stand and no longer acquiesce in Soviet aggression.

In a word, the platform, as outlined, is a map of Henry Wallace's mind, which is a network of negations. This clears the track for the one major affirmation which is to find "areas of agreement" with Russia. Naturally the Kremlin applauds.

He has, following the cue of the Communist Daily Worker, chose the name "Progressive" for his Party. The word "progressive" had been an honored designation in American politics until now. It will become so abused under the Wallace banner that, like the term "liberal," it will become distorted. The Wallace people can claim nothing in common with the Progressive Party launched by Theodore Roosevelt or same designation Senator Bob La Follette gave his political movement.

In urging the repeal of the Draft Act, Wallace's foreign policy plank is an outright one for Russian appeasement. It would cancel the Marshall Plan. In its place the "Progressive Party" would set up a "United Nations Plan" in which Russia would have veto rights. Of course, the American people, through taxation, would put up the money. The Kremlin powers would be given additional territory now controlled by the United States, Britain and France. For all this, Russia would not be called upon to make a single concession.

Ownership by government of banks of certain size, railroads, electric power and gas utilities and the merchant marine is advocated, and made part of the Wallace party's program.

It will not, in our opinion, hold any appeal to the vast majority of this nation's voters, "Joe" Stalin's belief to the contrary notwithstanding. There is no American sentiment for appeasing those who are scheming against all those this side of the Iron Curtain.

Truman May Travel While Congress Is In Session

It is announced from Washington that a two-months' tour by train is being planned for President Truman.

It seems a little strange that the Chief Executive feels himself able to take so long a time away from the White House while he is demanding in most virtuous terms that Congress stay on the job. He wants Congress to pass a program, which, given reasonable consideration, could be made into law only after some months.

Congressmen and Senators, according to this Truman philosophy are supposed to keep out of the campaign while he in a Pullman car makes himself as far as he can the center of it.

In announcing his call for the extra session, President Truman practically avowed a purpose to put the Republican majority in a hole. At least—as it now appears—he could punish the nation's recalcitrant legislators by bringing them to humid Washington in the hottest weeks of the year. Of course, Republicans and Democrats would be equally uncomfortable; but since there are more of the one party than the other, there might be some net Administration gain. As we said. the President, in the meanwhile, could go riding around the country in an air-cooled train, as he did in June at the very time when the closing weeks of the regular session required his presence in Washington.

If the Republicans chose to retaliate in kind they could easily avail of the extra session in launching a series of investigations into the executive departments and bureaus, specializing on those whose chiefs are Mr. Truman's cronies and closest political advisers. We don't say that they should do this, and we don't say that they shouldn't. Whether or not Harry Truman could ever put them in a hole, there seem to be abundant opportunities to get some of his Palace Guard out on a limb.

Hoped FBI Has Sound Case Against Communists

Naturally the public is not being informed about the kind of evidence which the government presented in obtaining indictments against 12 of the nation's ranking Communists. But the case had better be a good one. To lose out in the trial will be almost worse than to have done nothing at all.

We share the general hostility to active Communists and regard them as enemies of the United States. We suspect that they are plotting to destroy our form of government and to establish their own system of totalitarianism. Suspicion, however, is not enough to win convictions in a court of law. So it is to be hoped that the year's investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation which preceded the indictments has resulted in an adequate volume of actual proof.

To read the general indictment is to appreciate the magnitude of the task before the Department of Justice. It is alleged that the defendants "from on or about April 1 1945, up to the present day conspired to organize as the Communist Party of the United States of America a society of persons to teach and advocate the destruction and overthrow of the government of the United States by force and violence, and that the defendants knowingly and willfully conspired to teach and advocate the duty and necessity of overthrowing and destroying the government of the United States by force and violence."

Evidence on those points is obviously hard to get. If the FBI has succeeded in getting it and can make it stand up before a jury, it will deserve a vote of commendation from the American people.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Chasing the Itch Mite

Many individuals have the idea that scabies is prevalent only during wars and not when the world is at peace. The notion probably stems from the stories brought back by our men about "cooties," "mechanized dandruff," and other forms of vermin which they encountered.

Dr. Van Dellen

Actually it is listed as one of our more common skin disturbances.

The itch mite (Acarus scabiei), the responsible parasite, is barely visible to the eye but when seen under a microscope is an ugly looking thing—oval in shape, covered with bristles and possessing several legs. No wonder the first man who saw this critter under the microscope was terrified. Back in the olden days every one was afflicted and while a scientist was studying the new gadget, a mite fell from his arm and scooted across the slide. After recuperating from the sight, he concluded that this was undoubtedly the smallest living creature in the world. Little did he realize that shortly thereafter improved leness would demonstrate microorganisms so tiny that this mite can be considered a giant by comparison.

It is the female of the species that attacks humans. The pest is passed from one victim to another through direct contact or indirectly through contaminated towels and sheets. On reaching the skin, it burrows beneath the first layer and continues to travel much like a mole beneath the ground. In these tunnels, the eggs are laid and the new forms grow. If these pathways can be seen, diagnosis is easy but this rarely occurs because the meanderings of the mite are extremely irritating to the surrounding skin. As a result, other eruptions appear such as tiny water blisters, pustules, and papules.

It is this irritation that also causes itching, which is most severe at night. When the lesions are scratched, others are encouraged and in time the epidermis is literally a mess. The wrists and the web of the fingers are most likely to be affected but the armpits, elbows, buttocks, legs, and abdomen are also favored sites. The face usually escapes. Once the disease develops in one member of the family, spread to others may be expected.

Sulfur onitment, massaged into the skin once or twice daily, is the time-honored remedy. This preparation worked but it was "gooey." Now, ointments containing benzyl benzoate are used, sometimes combined with benzocaine and DDT. The emulsion is applied to all body surfaces except the face, with particular attention to the irritated patches, where it is rubbed in gently with a piece of gauze. Twenty-four hours later, the individual changes his clothing and bed linen and takes a bath with soap and water. One such treatment affects a cure in over 90 per cent of the cases. Occasionally a second application is necessary 7 to 10 days later.

Sometimes it is extremely difficult to eliminate the pest from the household especially if the underclothing, linens, and blankets are not washed after the final bath has been taken. The only recourse may be to leave the house for a week or two. This time limit can be shortened considerably if the house is warm. Only a week end is required if temperatures between 85 and 90 degrees F. can be maintained in which case the mites remaining in the empty house could not survive for long.

CORONARY DISORDERS

H. T. writes: Is coronary spasm the same as coronary thrombosis?

Reply

No. Spasm refers to a condition in which the flow of blood is slowed temporarily by a contraction of the wall of the vessel. This is in contrast to an occlusion, in which the passageway is blocked by a clot.

LATERAL CURVATURE

H. C. writes: What is the meaning of scoliosis?

Reply

A type of curvature of the spine in which the back is bent from side to side.

Rare

L. C. writes: Could a swollen prostate cause hemorrhoids?

REPLY

This would be an unusual complication.

UNNECESSARY

M. T. writes: What are the objections to the use of medicinal forms of calcium, phosphorous, and vitamin D to aid in the knitting of a major fracture?

Reply

When an adequate amount of these substances are present in the system, they are not needed to encourage bone healing.

FLECKS OF BLOOD

F. T. writes: Once in a while when blowing my nose, small particles of blood appear. I am otherwise healthy. Does this indicate tuberculosis?

Reply

No. This is not unusual, particularly if the nose is blown vigorously. In the circumstances, tiny vessels rupture and a few drops of blood escape.

HERNIA

D. C. writes: "What is a hiatus hernia?

Reply

In this condition, a small part of the stomach protrudes above the diaphragm because of a weakness in this area or a shortening of the esophagus (the tube from the mouth to the stomach). A variety of symptoms is possible ranging from those resembling heart trouble to gastric distress.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Russian Propaganda Feeds On American Feuds; Kremlin Plays Down U. S. Democracy But Broadcasts U. S. Discord; United Front At Home Would Help

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, July 27—A lot of my southern friends have been telling me I should be awfully careful how I discuss the current political rebellion below the Mason-Dixon line. Undoubtedly they are right.

But, since so many people are already sore because of my nose-poking into all sorts of things, from the high cost of ambassadorships to Secretary of the Treasury Snyder's bibulousness at the President's birthday dinner, I suppose it won't hurt to get a few more people sore. So here goes.

One thing I can't help thinking about the civil-rights row is that the boy who is getting most satisfaction out of it all is Joe Stalin. He and his pals in the Kremlin must be licking their chops—and pumping stuff out over the Moscow radio every day about how Americans are feuding and name-calling over civil rights.

I also can't help thinking that a time when we are very much on the spot in Berlin is a time when we ought to be preserving a reasonably united front back home.

What The Russians Forget

The Russians, of course, don't know—or care—that all things are relative and that we've made a lot of progress in this country. It was only as recently as the 1919-20 post-war period that a horrible massacre of negroes occurred in East St. Louis, while disgraceful race riots took place even in the nation's capital. The present post-war period has been largely free from such violence.

And on the same night Birmingham was staging its rebellion, Satchell Paige, negro pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, pitched against the Washington Senators in the nation's capital and a white batter who tried to unnerve him was booed.

I remember also the great furor created when Oscar De Priest, Republican negro congressman, was invited to a White House tea in the Hoover administration. The Republicans were supposed to be the champions of the Negro, but so many of them protested and Mr. Hoover got so worried, that Congressman De Priest discreetly stayed away.

In recent Democratic administrations, two Negroes have served consistently in Congress, both Democrats; and Rep. Dawson of Chicago has informed me that his colleagues from the South have treated him with respect and courtesy. There has been no protest when Negro congressmen were invited to recent White House receptions.

And today in Georgia, a negro is running for the U. S. Senate against Senator Dick Russell and is free to campaign where he pleases throughout the state.

These are things the Soviet propagandists will not mention.

The South's Real Leaders

They also will not mention—and a lot of people have forgotten—that Gov. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, the man now leading the Dixiecrat revolt, is the same Governor Thurmond who got a lot of his own southern white friends boiling mad when he insisted on trying some taxi-drivers for lynching a Negro near Greenville, S. C.

Local sentiment was violently against Governor Thurmond, but he insisted that the men charged with lynching be prosecuted—which they were.

There are a lot of southerners honestly working for fair play in the south. Only they don't like to have reforms rammed down their throats by outsiders. Ellis Arnall, when governor of Georgia, had no trouble getting Georgia to abolish the poll tax. Most Georgians took pride in this, though currently a lot of them have their backs up and if the poll-tax issue came along today they would vote the other way.

What northerners don't always realize is that the Talmadges, the Rankins and the Bilbos aren't really typical of the South, and that there are a lot of fine southerners who don't at all share their views.

Anyway, it seems to me we should all work a little harder on both sides of the Mason-Dixon line at understanding each other.

Wiping Out Mason-Dixon Line

The other day I met a man who has been doing his part at better understanding between the North and the South—a gentleman named Champ Pickens, of Montgomery, Ala., who has organized the Blue and Grey Association. He is trying to get folks who followed the confederate grey during the civil war, and those who followed the federal blue to get together at least once a year at a football game between the all-star team of the North and the all-star team of the South. He stages the game at Montgomery, cradle of the confederacy, and as many northern folks as possible are invited down to see the game.

Perhaps it might be a good idea for us to stage a lot of things like this—and to think a little bit more about our own internal problems. We have been giving a lot of thought to friendship abroad—which cannot be neglected—but we must also work at friendship at home—which is equally important.

For instance, most people don't realize that there is no one Memorial Day to commemorate the veterans who wore the Blue and the Grey. Memorial Days are sprinkled all over the calendar. While the North sets aside May 30, North and South Carolina set aside May 10, Louisiana, Tennessee, and Kentucky June 3, while Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, and Alabama commemorate April 26.

Therefore, why not pick one day mutually agreeable to the south, and pay tribute not only to the fallen heroes of the past, but at that time promote more friendship for the future.

Also, it might be a fine idea for the Rotary Clubs, the Kiwanis and Lions Clubs, and the Junior Chambers of Commerce which all do such a good job of promoting worthwhile community enterprises, to take up the problem of better understanding between the North and South. If some of the southern clubs invited northern clubs down to their cities, and vice versa, a lot of solid friendship might result.

It may seem foolish to say that we need more understanding right here in our own country, but the fact is that we do.

It's not a matter of Democrats or Republicans, but rather of sympathy on both sides and presenting a united front at home at a time when the whole world—especially the Russians—is watching us intently.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Wallace Or War

THE WALLACE Convention must be taken seriously even if his adherents look like the side-show of a circus. Of such stuff are mass movements woven. The hysteria over nothing in Philadelphia, the holy-roller singing of doggerel, the repetition of the words "China and Greece," the Tower-of-Babel-like rhythm of sounds with only emotional content—this is the pattern of the mob, driven by fear or hunger or passion, or just driven because it wants to be driven.

The essence of this movement is Soviet Russia. This was clear not only in the set speeches but in the ugly roar of this gaily traitorous mob. These same people persecuted the Bund, the Christian Front, the Ku Klux Klan.

Had anyone done for Hitler what they are doing for Stalin, they would have organized lynching parties. Yet there is no difference between them either in spirit or in purpose. The mob always reacts with the same hysteria. And it never knows its direction, except that it hates.

The New Party is in the service of Soviet Russia. It attacks indiscriminately every American who is not in the service of Soviet Russia. It attacks Truman, Dewey, Dulles, Vandenberg, Marshall, Forrestal, General Draper, General Clay—the list is long but it is indiscriminate. The speeches closely followed the line on foreign and domestic policies of The Daily Worker, and The New Times, a weekly publication issued in Moscow and circulating in four languages, including English, in the United States.

These Wallaceites are not Communists, because to be an avowed Communist requires conviction and courage and a religious faith, which, while from my standpoint is wholly wrong, nonetheless must be recognized for what it is.

The Wallaceites are not of such stock; they are rather like the swooning adulators of Rudolph Valentino or Frank Sinatra; they are rather masochists who revel in their umbrages; they are rather like those mystics who follow Father Divine, or those pursuers of the impossible who produced the Ham-and-Eggs and the Townsend Movements. Unhappy, clutching to their disabilities, this is their outlet.

This New Party for a moment frees their souls from an imprisonment of their own making. They shriek; they shout; their eyes shine fanatically. They are masters of power. Then they sink back to nursing their griefs.

Lenin never organized such into a force, but Hitler did. For them, Lenin had only contempt and over them he established what he called a dictatorship of the proletariat, held in a trusteeship by an oligarchy of his own devising. Dr. Sun Yat-sen recognized their menace and he organized China into a state of "tutelage," as he called it, with the Kuomintang as trustee and tutor. Kemal Pasha ignored them and frightened them.

But Mussolini and Hitler welded them in to a force which both dominated, each in his own country, by hypnotic oratory and mannerisms. And both brought their countries to destruction.

In the United States such a movement is particularly menacing because of the heterogeneous character of the American population. The Wallaceites are making a special appeal to the Negroes, of whom there are 13,000,000 in this country and who are growing increasingly discontented over the discriminations practiced against them both in the North and the South. When the Temporary Chairman of Wallace's convention challenged President Truman to issue an Executive Order abolishing Jim Crow in the armed forces, he put his finger on Truman's hyprocrisy.

For whereas Truman demands that Congress abolish discrimination in this country by law, he had not dared to abolish discrimination where the law already permits him to do it at his own discretion. And he had not dared to do it until politics intervened, because he knew that a time of national crisis, such an act would imperil the national defense.

When Wallace and his cohorts issue such a challenge in our present peril, they strike not at Truman but at the United States, just as Truman's convocation of Congress for this purpose, in special session, strikes not at Dewey but at the United States.

This then is what we face as a people: Wallace, having stimulated Negro rebelliousness, has channeled American history into a treacherous and perilous course.

Administration's Loose Talk On "Lobbies" Faces Congress

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 27. — Congress is back here amid a lot of loose talk from the Administration about "lobbies." The implication is that the pressure groups are the only ones that do the lobbying.

The real issue in the whole lobby business is the misuse of public funds by the Administration in power which, in turn, encourages the private lobbies to organize in self-defense.

The aspersions cast on "lobbying" have come often from legislators themselves, who dislike to be beaten on any issue. Out of resentment they blaze away at lobbyists. Actually the organization of pressure groups would not affect votes in Congress unless the arguments were plausible. A lobby may spearhead the attack but many a lobby is futile because it doesn't make a case or doesn't have a case to make.

The right of petition is guaranteed by the Constitution itself. One of the first symptoms of totalitarianism is the effort to curtail the people's right of petition. The legislators and the executive officials who are subject to pressure by lobby groups are or ought to be able to take care of themselves. There are laws against bribery and improper influence.

Chief Difficulty With Problem

The chief difficulty with the lobby problem is the enormous amount of public money and influence used to prevent legislation from being enacted. Officials of government departments and agencies are forbidden by law to lobby for or against pending legislation, but the Department of Justice under the Democratic administration does not prosecute such offenses.

Not so long ago a House committee uncovered flagrant examples of lobbying in behalf of the National Labor Relations Board by public officials. It was revealed that public funds had been used. The attention of the Department was called to these offenses. Nothing was done about it.

Every time a lobby controversy starts, there is talk of more legislation to restrict the lobbies. What is needed is some means of bringing to the bar of justice those officials who lobby with the use of taxpayers money.

The private lobbies spend an infinitesimal amount of money compared to the influence and public money they have to combat. If new legislation is in order, some means is needed to empower local grand juries to take the initiative in indicting public officials who use the long-distance telephones, government stationery and facilities for travel—all at government expense—to line up votes for or against pending legislation. Otherwise, the people's interests cannot be protected. For the Administration in power will not prosecute itself but will prosecute anybody trying to lobby for an opposite point of view.

The Real-Estate Lobby

There has been a lot of talk about the real-estate lobby. Plainly such a lobby wouldn't be effective unless it were able to line up votes back home. If the real-estate interests didn't maintain a lobby here, the landlords might. It isn't difficult to organize those whose pocketbooks are likely to be affected adversely by legislation.

The answer to the lobby problem is not to cut down debate or the cources of opposition but to make sure that both sides in a controversy have access to public opinion. The publicity powers of an administration holding office here are much greater than those of private institutions. There is no difficulty in making the government's viewpoint known.

The existence of pressure groups, on the other hand, cannot be ended by legislation. In one way or another citizens will organize in labor unions, manufacturers associations, investor groups and trade bodies and they will make their influence felt at the polls notwithstanding any laws that may be passed by Congress requiring a cumbersome system of registration and filing of expenses.

If men in public life have the courage of their convictions, if they are ready to accept defeat at the polls in defense of basic principles, and if the people are kept constantly informed on current issues, the presence or absence of lobbies shouldn't make the least difference in the enactment of legislation.

Civil Rights Discussion Needs The Spirit Of Abraham Lincoln

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

Today's heated discussion on civil rights needs the spirit of Abraham Lincoln. Lincoln would free the slave, but not by making war against the South.

The Emancipation Proclamation is shrouded in myth. Why was it issued? Who and what did it embrace?

Fort Sumter was fired upon on April 12, 1861. The war to preserve the Union began. The Emancipation Proclamation was not issued until January 1, 1863. Before Lincoln acted, Congress had abolished slavery in the District of Columbia and in the territories. In a series of "Confiscation Acts," Congress had already declared that all Negroes employed in forts or trenches, or in the transportation of stores and ammunition should be liberated; that slaves in territory conquered by Union armies should be free; that slaves escaping into Union lines should not be returned. This last overruled the Dred Scott case and repealed the Fugitive Slave Law as to the states in rebellion.

Signed Bills With Reluctance

Lincoln signed these bills with great reluctance. He would make haste slowly.

Two Union generals issued military proclamations freeing all slaves in territory subject to their authority. Lincoln, as Commander-in-Chief, immediately disavowed and annulled these proclamations—and for this reason. Four slave states, Delaware, Maryland, Kentucky and Missouri had remained loyal to the Union. Lincoln feared that hot-headed measures would drive these loyal slave states into the Confederacy. It was the Union that Lincoln placed first.

In his famous letter to Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune, dated August 22, 1862, Lincoln said: "My paramount object in the struggle is to save the Union, and is not either to save or destroy slavery."

This brings us to the Emancipation Proclamation in 1863. It did not emancipate a single one of the 430,000 slaves in Delaware, Maryland, Kentucky or Missouri—the loyal slave states. It declared free only those slaves in states and parts of states then in rebellion and under Confederate control.

The Emancipation Proclamation was a war measure, defended by Lincoln himself "upon military necessity." The Proclamation actually freed no slave. Gettysburg and Appomattox were still in the future. Lincoln believed, however, that the fact of declaring the slaves to be free would weaken Southern resistance. It was hoped that the slaves would now refuse to work for their masters. This might shorten the war.

Place Made Sure In History

Lincoln was against slavery. In his debates with Douglas in 1858 he had said: "A house divided against itself cannot stand. I believe this government cannot endure permanently half salve and half free—I do not expect the house to fall; but I do expect it will cease to be divided." That uttertance makes sure his place in history.

But how did Lincoln expect the Union to "cease to be divided"? Not by war. In his first inaugural, Lincoln said: "I have no purpose to interfere with the institution of slavery in the states where it exists."

Lincoln believed that time, and the growth of moral sentiment which he did so much to promote, would eventually free the slaves in the South as had already been accomplished without bloodshed, in Northern states.

Lincoln strove to end slavery, but without using force. "Why should there not be a patient confidence in the ultimate justice of the people?" That spirit could be used today.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The Tongue

Reams have been written about almost every organ of the body. Especially do the health experts and doctors tell us just how to take care of the heart, foaming away at our eating habits, and forever warning us about this and that. But how few—if any—are those who have taken up with a discussion of the Tongue, its great uses and possibilities.

For a moment imagine how you would feel with no tongue. How would you talk or eat? You would have to resort to all sorts of schemes to make yourself understood. Isn't it about time that we got the habit of thanking God for this wonderful organ of the tongue?

What a servant and friend—the tongue? Think of the kind words it can fashion, the songs it can enunciate, and its power of expression when its owner is a Patrick Henry or a Winston Churchill. On the other hand, when this tongue is in the head of a Hitler, how its hate and bitterness can foul the air! "Kind words are more than coronets."

One of the masterful achievements in this life is to learn just when to hold the tongue, and when to let it do its best. What a waste of words this tongue can create, yet how it can change an entire day from gloom to glory. It can even part clouds and let the sunshine in.

You can quite accurately judge a person's age by the use of his tongue. The older people get the more they are apt to use their tongues for complaining. The young tongue is touched with hope and optimism. It doesn't matter what kind of a face you may have been endowed with, so long as the tongue works kindly and happily behind it.

A trained tongue stays still at the right time. The tongue can give a lashing that has more terror in it than any lash of the whip. And what scars it often leaves! Some of them never heal. The silent tongue is always to be envied.

When people begin to make conversation about their ailments you know they are getting old. Yet there are old people whose tongues are so acclimated to beauty and good deeds that you may look upon them as young at eighty!

Baering Down On The News

Folks are asking me if Martin or Barkley ran the best convention. Well, when a fellow is slapping a table with a gavel you never know whether he is cracking walnuts or killing roaches.

When they make you chairman of anything they side-track you by putting you in front. When they kick you upstairs in a bungalow you have left the premises.

That's what they did to Martin who has sucked as many eggs as any Republican living. He certainly is used to seeing six white hosses turn back to mice at the twitching hour of midnight.

Barkley got himself the V.P. citation. So maybe Martin has the best of it after all.

A Map Of Wallace's Mind And The Party He Directs

Henry Wallace's object in launching a new party and calling it in convention at Philadelphia was doubtless that of the so-called Adullamites, as set forth in the Bible in the Twenty-second chapter of Kings: to gather together in the cave of Adullam "every one that was in distress, and every one that was in debt, and every one that was discontented."

In a word, the platform, as outlined, is a map of Henry Wallace's mind, which is a network of negations. This clears the track for the one major affirmation which is to find "areas of agreement" with Russia. Naturally the Kremlin applauds.

The Wallace people can claim nothing in common with the Progressive Party launched by Theodore Roosevelt or same designation Senator Bob La Follette gave his political movement.

In urging the repeal of the Draft Act, Wallace's foreign policy plank is an outright one for Russian appeasement. It would cancel the Marshall Plan. In its place the "Progressive Party" would set up a "United Nations Plan" in which Russia would have veto rights. Of course, the American people, through taxation, would put up the money. The Kremlin powers would be given additional territory now controlled by the United States, Britain and France. For all this, Russia would not be called upon to make a single concession.

Ownership by government of banks of certain size, railroads, electric power and gas utilities and the merchant marine is advocated, and made part of the Wallace party's program.

It will not, in our opinion, hold any appeal to the vast majority of this nation's voters, "Joe" Stalin's belief to the contrary notwithstanding. There is no American sentiment for appeasing those who are scheming against all those this side of the Iron Curtain.

Truman May Travel While Congress Is In Session

It is announced from Washington that a two-months' tour by train is being planned for President Truman.

It seems a little strange that the Chief Executive feels himself able to take so long a time away from the White House while he is demanding in most virtuous terms that Congress stay on the job. He wants Congress to pass a program, which, given reasonable consideration, could be made into law only after some months.

Congressmen and Senators, according to this Truman philosophy are supposed to keep out of the campaign while he in a Pullman car makes himself as far as he can the center of it.

In announcing his call for the extra session, President Truman practically avowed a purpose to put the Republican majority in a hole. At least—as it now appears—he could punish the nation's recalcitrant legislators by bringing them to humid Washington in the hottest weeks of the year. Of course, Republicans and Democrats would be equally uncomfortable; but since there are more of the one party than the other, there might be some net Administration gain. As we said, the President, in the meanwhile, could go riding around the country in an air-cooled train, as he did in June at the very time when the closing weeks of the regular session required his presence in Washington.

If the Republicans chose to retaliate in kind they could easily avail of the extra session in launching a series of investigations into the executive departments and bureaus, specializing on those whose chiefs are Mr. Truman's cronies and closest political advisers. We don't say that they should do this, and we don't say that they shouldn't. Whether or not Harry Truman could ever put them in a hole, there seem to be abundant opportunities to get some of his Palace Guard out on a limb.

Hoped FBI Has Sound Case Against Communists

Naturally the public is not being informed about the kind of evidence which the government presented in obtaining indictments against 12 of the nation's ranking Communists. But the case had better be a good one. To lose out in the trial will be almost worse than to have done nothing at all.

We share the general hostility to active Communists and regard them as enemies of the United States. We suspect that they are plotting to destroy our form of government and to establish their own system of totalitarianism. Suspicion, however, is not enough to win convictions in a court of law. So it is to be hoped that the year's investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation which preceded the indictments has resulted in an adequate volume of actual proof.

To read the general indictment is to appreciate the magnitude of the task before the Department of Justice. It is alleged that the defendants "from on or about April 1 1945, up to the present day conspired to organize as the Communist Party of the United States of America a society of persons to teach and advocate the destruction and overthrow of the government of the United States by force and violence, and that the defendants knowingly and willfully conspired to teach and advocate the duty and necessity of overthrowing and destroying the government of the United States by force and violence."

Evidence on those points is obviously hard to get. If the FBI has succeeded in getting it and can make it stand up before a jury, it will deserve a vote of commendation from the American people.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Chasing the Itch Mite

Many individuals have the idea that scabies is prevalent only during wars and not when the world is at peace. The notion probably stems from the stories brought back by our men about "cooties," "mechanized dandruff," and other forms of vermin which they encountered.

Dr. Van Dellen

Actually it is listed as one of our more common skin disturbances.

The itch mite (Acarus scabiei), the responsible parasite, is barely visible to the eye but when seen under a microscope is an ugly looking thing—oval in shape, covered with bristles and possessing several legs. No wonder the first man who saw this critter under the microscope was terrified. Back in the olden days every one was afflicted and while a scientist was studying the new gadget, a mite fell from his arm and scooted across the slide. After recuperating from the sight, he concluded that this was undoubtedly the smallest living creature in the world. Little did he realize that shortly thereafter improved leness would demonstrate microorganisms so tiny that this mite can be considered a giant by comparison.

It is the female of the species that attacks humans. The pest is passed from one victim to another through direct contact or indirectly through contaminated towels and sheets. On reaching the skin, it burrows beneath the first layer and continues to travel much like a mole beneath the ground. In these tunnels, the eggs are laid and the new forms grow. If these pathways can be seen, diagnosis is easy but this rarely occurs because the meanderings of the mite are extremely irritating to the surrounding skin. As a result, other eruptions appear such as tiny water blisters, pustules, and papules.

It is this irritation that also causes itching, which is most severe at night. When the lesions are scratched, others are encouraged and in time the epidermis is literally a mess. The wrists and the web of the fingers are most likely to be affected but the armpits, elbows, buttocks, legs, and abdomen are also favored sites. The face usually escapes. Once the disease develops in one member of the family, spread to others may be expected.

Sulfur onitment, massaged into the skin once or twice daily, is the time-honored remedy. This preparation worked but it was "gooey." Now, ointments containing benzyl benzoate are used, sometimes combined with benzocaine and DDT. The emulsion is applied to all body surfaces except the face, with particular attention to the irritated patches, where it is rubbed in gently with a piece of gauze. Twenty-four hours later, the individual changes his clothing and bed linen and takes a bath with soap and water. One such treatment affects a cure in over 90 per cent of the cases. Occasionally a second application is necessary 7 to 10 days later.

Sometimes it is extremely difficult to eliminate the pest from the household especially if the underclothing, linens, and blankets are not washed after the final bath has been taken. The only recourse may be to leave the house for a week or two. This time limit can be shortened considerably if the house is warm. Only a week end is required if temperatures between 85 and 90 degrees F. can be maintained in which case the mites remaining in the empty house could not survive for long.

CORONARY DISORDERS

H. T. writes: Is coronary spasm the same as coronary thrombosis?

Reply

No. Spasm refers to a condition in which the flow of blood is slowed temporarily by a contraction of the wall of the vessel. This is in contrast to an occlusion, in which the passageway is blocked by a clot.

LATERAL CURVATURE

H. C. writes: What is the meaning of scoliosis?

Reply

A type of curvature of the spine in which the back is bent from side to side.

L. C. writes: Could a swollen prostate cause hemorrhoids?

REPLY

This would be an unusual complication.

UNNECESSARY

M. T. writes: What are the objections to the use of medicinal forms of calcium, phosphorous, and vitamin D to aid in the knitting of a major fracture?

When an adequate amount of these substances are present in the system, they are not needed to encourage bone healing.

FLECKS OF BLOOD

F. T. writes: Once in a while when blowing my nose, small particles of blood appear. I am otherwise healthy. Does this indicate tuberculosis?

No. This is not unusual, particularly if the nose is blown vigorously. In the circumstances, tiny vessels rupture and a few drops of blood escape.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Russian Propaganda Feeds On American Feuds; Kremlin Plays Down U. S. Democracy But Broadcasts U. S. Discord; United Front At Home Would Help

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, July 27—A lot of my southern friends have been telling me I should be awfully careful how I discuss the current political rebellion below the Mason-Dixon line. Undoubtedly they are right.

But, since so many people are already sore because of my nose-poking into all sorts of things, from the high cost of ambassadorships to Secretary of the Treasury Snyder's bibulousness at the President's birthday dinner, I suppose it won't hurt to get a few more people sore. So here goes.

One thing I can't help thinking about the civil-rights row is that the boy who is getting most satisfaction out of it all is Joe Stalin. He and his pals in the Kremlin must be licking their chops—and pumping stuff out over the Moscow radio every day about how Americans are feuding and name-calling over civil rights.

I also can't help thinking that a time when we are very much on the spot in Berlin is a time when we ought to be preserving a reasonably united front back home.

What The Russians Forget

The Russians, of course, don't know—or care—that all things are relative and that we've made a lot of progress in this country. It was only as recently as the 1919-20 post-war period that a horrible massacre of negroes occurred in East St. Louis, while disgraceful race riots took place even in the nation's capital. The present post-war period has been largely free from such violence.

And on the same night Birmingham was staging its rebellion, Satchell Paige, negro pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, pitched against the Washington Senators in the nation's capital and a white batter who tried to unnerve him was booed.

I remember also the great furor created when Oscar De Priest, Republican negro congressman, was invited to a White House tea in the Hoover administration. The Republicans were supposed to be the champions of the Negro, but so many of them protested and Mr. Hoover got so worried, that Congressman De Priest discreetly stayed away.

In recent Democratic administrations, two Negroes have served consistently in Congress, both Democrats; and Rep. Dawson of Chicago has informed me that his colleagues from the South have treated him with respect and courtesy. There has been no protest when Negro congressmen were invited to recent White House receptions.

And today in Georgia, a negro is running for the U. S. Senate against Senator Dick Russell and is free to campaign where he pleases throughout the state.

These are things the Soviet propagandists will not mention.

The South's Real Leaders

They also will not mention—and a lot of people have forgotten—that Gov. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, the man now leading the Dixiecrat revolt, is the same Governor Thurmond who got a lot of his own southern white friends boiling mad when he insisted on trying some taxi-drivers for lynching a Negro near Greenville, S. C.

Local sentiment was violently against Governor Thurmond, but he insisted that the men charged with lynching be prosecuted—which they were.

There are a lot of southerners honestly working for fair play in the south. Only they don't like to have reforms rammed down their throats by outsiders. Ellis Arnall, when governor of Georgia, had no trouble getting Georgia to abolish the poll tax. Most Georgians took pride in this, though currently a lot of them have their backs up and if the poll-tax issue came along today they would vote the other way.

What northerners don't always realize is that the Talmadges, the Rankins and the Bilbos aren't really typical of the South, and that there are a lot of fine southerners who don't at all share their views.

Anyway, it seems to me we should all work a little harder on both sides of the Mason-Dixon line at understanding each other.

Wiping Out Mason-Dixon Line

The other day I met a man who has been doing his part at better understanding between the North and the South—a gentleman named Champ Pickens, of Montgomery, Ala., who has organized the Blue and Grey Association. He is trying to get folks who followed the confederate grey during the civil war, and those who followed the federal blue to get together at least once a year at a football game between the all-star team of the North and the all-star team of the South. He stages the game at Montgomery, cradle of the confederacy, and as many northern folks as possible are invited down to see the game.

Perhaps it might be a good idea for us to stage a lot of things like this—and to think a little bit more about our own internal problems. We have been giving a lot of thought to friendship abroad—which cannot be neglected—but we must also work at friendship at home—which is equally important.

For instance, most people don't realize that there is no one Memorial Day to commemorate the veterans who wore the Blue and the Grey. Memorial Days are sprinkled all over the calendar. While the North sets aside May 30, North and South Carolina set aside May 10, Louisiana, Tennessee, and Kentucky June 3, while Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, and Alabama commemorate April 26.

Therefore, why not pick one day mutually agreeable to the south, and pay tribute not only to the fallen heroes of the past, but at that time promote more friendship for the future.

Also, it might be a fine idea for the Rotary Clubs, the Kiwanis and Lions Clubs, and the Junior Chambers of Commerce which all do such a good job of promoting worthwhile community enterprises, to take up the problem of better understanding between the North and South. If some of the southern clubs invited northern clubs down to their cities, and vice versa, a lot of solid friendship might result.

It may seem foolish to say that we need more understanding right here in our own country, but the fact is that we do.

It's not a matter of Democrats or Republicans, but rather of sympathy on both sides and presenting a united front at home at a time when the whole world—especially the Russians—is watching us intently.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Wallace Or War

THE WALLACE Convention must be taken seriously even if his adherents look like the side-show of a circus. Of such stuff are mass movements woven. The hysteria over nothing in Philadelphia, the holy-roller singing of doggerel, the repetition of the words "China and Greece," the Tower-of-Babel-like rhythm of sounds with only emotional content—this is the pattern of the mob, driven by fear or hunger or passion, or just driven because it wants to be driven.

The essence of this movement is Soviet Russia. This was clear not only in the set speeches but in the ugly roar of this gaily traitorous mob. These same people persecuted the Bund, the Christian Front, the Ku Klux Klan.

Had anyone done for Hitler what they are doing for Stalin, they would have organized lynching parties. Yet there is no difference between them either in spirit or in purpose. The mob always reacts with the same hysteria. And it never knows its direction, except that it hates.

The New Party is in the service of Soviet Russia. It attacks indiscriminately every American who is not in the service of Soviet Russia. It attacks Truman, Dewey, Dulles, Vandenberg, Marshall, Forrestal, General Draper, General Clay—the list is long but it is indiscriminate. The speeches closely followed the line on foreign and domestic policies of The Daily Worker, and The New Times, a weekly publication issued in Moscow and circulating in four languages, including English, in the United States.

These Wallaceites are not Communists, because to be an avowed Communist requires conviction and courage and a religious faith, which, while from my standpoint is wholly wrong, nonetheless must be recognized for what it is.

The Wallaceites are not of such stock; they are rather like the swooning adulators of Rudolph Valentino or Frank Sinatra; they are rather masochists who revel in their umbrages; they are rather like those mystics who follow Father Divine, or those pursuers of the impossible who produced the Ham-and-Eggs and the Townsend Movements. Unhappy, clutching to their disabilities, this is their outlet.

This New Party for a moment frees their souls from an imprisonment of their own making. They shriek; they shout; their eyes shine fanatically. They are masters of power. Then they sink back to nursing their griefs.

Lenin never organized such into a force, but Hitler did. For them, Lenin had only contempt and over them he established what he called a dictatorship of the proletariat, held in a trusteeship by an oligarchy of his own devising. Dr. Sun Yat-sen recognized their menace and he organized China into a state of "tutelage," as he called it, with the Kuomintang as trustee and tutor. Kemal Pasha ignored them and frightened them.

But Mussolini and Hitler welded them in to a force which both dominated, each in his own country, by hypnotic oratory and mannerisms. And both brought their countries to destruction.

In the United States such a movement is particularly menacing because of the heterogeneous character of the American population. The Wallaceites are making a special appeal to the Negroes, of whom there are 13,000,000 in this country and who are growing increasingly discontented over the discriminations practiced against them both in the North and the South. When the Temporary Chairman of Wallace's convention challenged President Truman to issue an Executive Order abolishing Jim Crow in the armed forces, he put his finger on Truman's hyprocrisy.

For whereas Truman demands that Congress abolish discrimination in this country by law, he had not dared to abolish discrimination where the law already permits him to do it at his own discretion. And he had not dared to do it until politics intervened, because he knew that a time of national crisis, such an act would imperil the national defense.

When Wallace and his cohorts issue such a challenge in our present peril, they strike not at Truman but at the United States, just as Truman's convocation of Congress for this purpose, in special session, strikes not at Dewey but at the United States.

This then is what we face as a people: Wallace, having stimulated Negro rebelliousness, has channeled American history into a treacherous and perilous course.

Administration's Loose Talk On "Lobbies" Faces Congress

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 27. — Congress is back here amid a lot of loose talk from the Administration about "lobbies." The implication is that the pressure groups are the only ones that do the lobbying.

The real issue in the whole lobby business is the misuse of public funds by the Administration in power which, in turn, encourages the private lobbies to organize in self-defense.

The aspersions cast on "lobbying" have come often from legislators themselves, who dislike to be beaten on any issue. Out of resentment they blaze away at lobbyists. Actually the organization of pressure groups would not affect votes in Congress unless the arguments were plausible. A lobby may spearhead the attack but many a lobby is futile because it doesn't make a case or doesn't have a case to make.

The right of petition is guaranteed by the Constitution itself. One of the first symptoms of totalitarianism is the effort to curtail the people's right of petition. The legislators and the executive officials who are subject to pressure by lobby groups are or ought to be able to take care of themselves. There are laws against bribery and improper influence.

Chief Difficulty With Problem

The chief difficulty with the lobby problem is the enormous amount of public money and influence used to prevent legislation from being enacted. Officials of government departments and agencies are forbidden by law to lobby for or against pending legislation, but the Department of Justice under the Democratic administration does not prosecute such offenses.

Not so long ago a House committee uncovered flagrant examples of lobbying in behalf of the National Labor Relations Board by public officials. It was revealed that public funds had been used. The attention of the Department was called to these offenses. Nothing was done about it.

Every time a lobby controversy starts, there is talk of more legislation to restrict the lobbies. What is needed is some means of bringing to the bar of justice those officials who lobby with the use of taxpayers money.

The private lobbies spend an infinitesimal amount of money compared to the influence and public money they have to combat. If new legislation is in order, some means is needed to empower local grand juries to take the initiative in indicting public officials who use the long-distance telephones, government stationery and facilities for travel—all at government expense—to line up votes for or against pending legislation. Otherwise, the people's interests cannot be protected. For the Administration in power will not prosecute itself but will prosecute anybody trying to lobby for an opposite point of view.

The Real-Estate Lobby

There has been a lot of talk about the real-estate lobby. Plainly such a lobby wouldn't be effective unless it were able to line up votes back home. If the real-estate interests didn't maintain a lobby here, the landlords might. It isn't difficult to organize those whose pocketbooks are likely to be affected adversely by legislation.

The answer to the lobby problem is not to cut down debate or the cources of opposition but to make sure that both sides in a controversy have access to public opinion. The publicity powers of an administration holding office here are much greater than those of private institutions. There is no difficulty in making the government's viewpoint known.

The existence of pressure groups, on the other hand, cannot be ended by legislation. In one way or another citizens will organize in labor unions, manufacturers associations, investor groups and trade bodies, and they will make their influence felt at the polls notwithstanding any laws that may be passed by Congress requiring a cumbersome system of registration and filing of expenses.

If men in public life have the courage of their convictions, if they are ready to accept defeat at the polls in defense of basic principles, and if the people are kept constantly informed on current issues, the presence or absence of lobbies shouldn't make the least difference in the enactment of legislation.

Civil Rights Discussion Needs The Spirit Of Abraham Lincoln

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

Today's heated discussion on civil rights needs the spirit of Abraham Lincoln. Lincoln would free the slave, but not by making war against the South.

The Emancipation Proclamation is shrouded in myth. Why was it issued? Who and what did it embrace?

Fort Sumter was fired upon on April 12, 1861. The war to preserve the Union began. The Emancipation Proclamation was not issued until January 1, 1863. Before Lincoln acted, Congress had abolished slavery in the District of Columbia and in the territories. In a series of "Confiscation Acts," Congress had already declared that all Negroes employed in forts or trenches, or in the transportation of stores and ammunition should be liberated; that slaves in territory conquered by Union armies should be free; that slaves escaping into Union lines should not be returned. This last overruled the Dred Scott case and repealed the Fugitive Slave Law as to the states in rebellion.

Signed Bills With Reluctance

Lincoln signed these bills with great reluctance. He would make haste slowly.

Two Union generals issued military proclamations freeing all slaves in territory subject to their authority. Lincoln, as Commander-in-Chief, immediately disavowed and annulled these proclamations—and for this reason. Four slave states, Delaware, Maryland, Kentucky and Missouri had remained loyal to the Union. Lincoln feared that hot-headed measures would drive these loyal slave states into the Confederacy. It was the Union that Lincoln placed first.

In his famous letter to Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune, dated August 22, 1862, Lincoln said: "My paramount object in the struggle is to save the Union, and is not either to save or destroy slavery."

This brings us to the Emancipation Proclamation in 1863. It did not emancipate a single one of the 430,000 slaves in Delaware, Maryland, Kentucky or Missouri—the loyal slave states. It declared free only those slaves in states and parts of states then in rebellion and under Confederate control.

The Emancipation Proclamation was a war measure, defended by Lincoln himself "upon military necessity." The Proclamation actually freed no slave. Gettysburg and Appomattox were still in the future. Lincoln believed, however, that the fact of declaring the slaves to be free would weaken Southern resistance. It was hoped that the slaves would now refuse to work for their masters. This might shorten the war.

Place Made Sure In History

Lincoln was against slavery. In his debates with Douglas in 1858 he had said: "A house divided against itself cannot stand. I believe this government cannot endure permanently half salve and half free—I do not expect the house to fall; but I do expect it will cease to be divided." That uttertance makes sure his place in history.

But how did Lincoln expect the Union to "cease to be divided"? Not by war. In his first inaugural, Lincoln said: "I have no purpose to interfere with the institution of slavery in the states where it exists."

Lincoln believed that time, and the growth of moral sentiment which he did so much to promote, would eventually free the slaves in the South as had already been accomplished without bloodshed, in Northern states.

Lincoln strove to end slavery, but without using force. "Why should there not be a patient confidence in the ultimate justice of the people?" That spirit could be used today.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The Tongue

Reams have been written about almost every organ of the body. Especially do the health experts and doctors tell us just how to take care of the heart, foaming away at our eating habits, and forever warning us about this and that. But how few—if any—are those who have taken up with a discussion of the Tongue, its great uses and possibilities.

For a moment imagine how you would feel with no tongue. How would you talk or eat? You would have to resort to all sorts of schemes to make yourself understood. Isn't it about time that we got the habit of thanking God for this wonderful organ of the tongue?

What a servant and friend—the tongue? Think of the kind words it can fashion, the songs it can enunciate, and its power of expression when its owner is a Patrick Henry or a Winston Churchill. On the other hand, when this tongue is in the head of a Hitler, how its hate and bitterness can foul the air! "Kind words are more than coronets."

One of the masterful achievements in this life is to learn just when to hold the tongue, and when to let it do its best. What a waste of words this tongue can create, yet how it can change an entire day from gloom to glory. It can even part clouds and let the sunshine in.

You can quite accurately judge a person's age by the use of his tongue. The older people get the more they are apt to use their tongues for complaining. The young tongue is touched with hope and optimism. It doesn't matter what kind of a face you may have been endowed with, so long as the tongue works kindly and happily behind it.

A trained tongue stays still at the right time. The tongue can give a lashing that has more terror in it than any lash of the whip. And what scars it often leaves! Some of them never heal. The silent tongue is always to be envied.

When people begin to make conversation about their ailments you know they are getting old. Yet there are old people whose tongues are so acclimated to beauty and good deeds that you may look upon them as young at eighty!

Baering Down On The News

Folks are asking me if Martin or Barkley ran the best convention. Well, when a fellow is slapping a table with a gavel you never know whether he is cracking walnuts or killing roaches.

When they make you chairman of anything they side-track you by putting you in front. When they kick you upstairs in a bungalow you have left the premises.

That's what they did to Martin who has sucked as many eggs as any Republican living. He certainly is used to seeing six white hosses turn back to mice at the twitching hour of midnight.

Barkley got himself the V.P. citation. So maybe Martin has the best of it after all.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

Answer: Adah Isaacs Menken; born, New Orleans, 1835; died, Paris, 1868.

Billy Rose

What's that? You never heard of the lady? Well, then I can speak freely, kiddies. Pull up a chair and I'll tell you about a lollapalooza who rates with Helen of Troy, Cleopatra, Lola Montez and the other standouts in the cuddle-up sweepstakes.

Adah Menken went to work when she was 11 as a dancing girl in an opera company. While tripping with fantastic lightness through Cuba and Mexico, she taught herself French, Spanish and Greek, and at 13, during a two-week layoff, translated Homer's "Iliad."

At 18, already divorced from her first husband, Adah made the headlines with her bland claim that she had been kidnapped and wooed by an Indian chief. According to her story, a horse had thrown her and knocked her unconscious. When she came to, and found herself in a wigwam in the arms of an Indian brave. She squawked, but apparently not too loudly because she was made a member of the tribe and fed antelope meat for three weeks before she managed to escape.

Soon after this undocumented escapade, she married a music master, divorced him and wrote a book of poetry. And then married and divorced John C. Heenan, the bare-knuckle heavyweight boxing champ of America.

So far, so bad. When she was 26, she appeared in a play called "Mazeppa." Playing the male lead, this curvaceous cutie was stripped of her clothing by the villain and lashed to a horse. When the audience got a good look at the charms of this male impersonator, it gave out with the first wolf calls ever heard in an American theatre. From then on, the show played to packed houses in every city where the constabulary agreed to look the other way.

Adah's popularity made it possible for her to pick her playmates and boy, how this literary-minded lass picked them Mark Twain was so taken with her talents that he took to hanging around the stage door, and even Walt Whitman and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow sat at her shapely feet. Adah made merry with an occasional statesman, but her real yen was for the boys with the by-lines.

After meeting most of our prominent pencil pushers, the stripteuse took her show to Europe. There, for prestige purposes, she exchanged courtsies with Napoleon III, the Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Oscar of Sweden and the King of Greece. But her more serious moments were reserved for the big names in literature. Dickens was one of her pen pals, Roosetti another.

Before leaving London in 1866, she announced to the press, "Alexandre Dumas shall be my lover." The day after "Mazeppa" opened in Paris, she moved her bags into Alex's apartment, and to celebrate, went out and bought a camera. A few days later, snappy photos of the two literateurs were being hawked on the Champs Elysses. Dumas didn't object—the publicity was helping the sale of "The Three Musketeers."

Back in London, one evening Adah decided she'd like to be kissed by Swinburne whom she had never met. Then hours later she thanked the poet for the kippers. Twenty hours later, snapshots of the love birds were being peddled on the streets of London, and with every complete set the buyer received a copy of "Dolorida," a passionate bit of rhyming which the sonneteer had dedicated to Adah.

The following year our shutter-happy heroine published a book of her own poems, and for years, if the record isn't fibbing, these Kinsey-esque couplets were a best seller.

Adah Menken died in Paris in 1868 with Longfellow at her bedside. With one of her last dozen breaths, she said her only regret was that she had never met Edgar Allen Poe. When the lawyers figured up her estate, they were amazed at the size of the fortune left by the kiss-and-click girl.

P. S. to Gypsy Rose Lee: Perhaps you'd better throw away that typewriter ribbon, my sweet, and get yourself a camera. There's evidently a lot of dough in those photo finishes.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

Answer: Adah Isaacs Menken; born, New Orleans, 1835; died, Paris, 1868.

Billy Rose

What's that? You never heard of the lady? Well, then I can speak freely, kiddies. Pull up a chair and I'll tell you about a lollapalooza who rates with Helen of Troy, Cleopatra, Lola Montez and the other standouts in the cuddle-up sweepstakes.

Adah Menken went to work when she was 11 as a dancing girl in an opera company. While tripping with fantastic lightness through Cuba and Mexico, she taught herself French, Spanish and Greek, and at 13, during a two-week layoff, translated Homer's "Iliad."

At 18, already divorced from her first husband, Adah made the headlines with her bland claim that she had been kidnapped and wooed by an Indian chief. According to her story, a horse had thrown her and knocked her unconscious. When she came to, and found herself in a wigwam in the arms of an Indian brave. She squawked, but apparently not too loudly because she was made a member of the tribe and fed antelope meat for three weeks before she managed to escape.

Soon after this undocumented escapade, she married a music master, divorced him and wrote a book of poetry. And then married and divorced John C. Heenan, the bare-knuckle heavyweight boxing champ of America.

So far, so bad. When she was 26, she appeared in a play called "Mazeppa." Playing the male lead, this curvaceous cutie was stripped of her clothing by the villain and lashed to a horse. When the audience got a good look at the charms of this male impersonator, it gave out with the first wolf calls ever heard in an American theatre. From then on, the show played to packed houses in every city where the constabulary agreed to look the other way.

Adah's popularity made it possible for her to pick her playmates and boy, how this literary-minded lass picked them Mark Twain was so taken with her talents that he took to hanging around the stage door, and even Walt Whitman and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow sat at her shapely feet. Adah made merry with an occasional statesman, but her real yen was for the boys with the by-lines.

After meeting most of our prominent pencil pushers, the stripteuse took her show to Europe. There, for prestige purposes, she exchanged courtsies with Napoleon III, the Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Oscar of Sweden and the King of Greece. But her more serious moments were reserved for the big names in literature. Dickens was one of her pen pals, Roosetti another.

Before leaving London in 1866, she announced to the press, "Alexandre Dumas shall be my lover." The day after "Mazeppa" opened in Paris, she moved her bags into Alex's apartment, and to celebrate, went out and bought a camera. A few days later, snappy photos of the two literateurs were being hawked on the Champs Elysses. Dumas didn't object—the publicity was helping the sale of "The Three Musketeers."

Back in London, one evening Adah decided she'd like to be kissed by Swinburne whom she had never met. Then hours later she thanked the poet for the kippers. Twenty hours later, snapshots of the love birds were being peddled on the streets of London, and with every complete set the buyer received a copy of "Dolorida," a passionate bit of rhyming which the sonneteer had dedicated to Adah.

The following year our shutter-happy heroine published a book of her own poems, and for years, if the record isn't fibbing, these Kinsey-esque couplets were a best seller.

Adah Menken died in Paris in 1868 with Longfellow at her bedside. With one of her last dozen breaths, she said her only regret was that she had never met Edgar Allen Poe. When the lawyers figured up her estate, they were amazed at the size of the fortune left by the kiss-and-click girl.

P. S. to Gypsy Rose Lee: Perhaps you'd better throw away that typewriter ribbon, my sweet, and get yourself a camera. There's evidently a lot of dough in those photo finishes.

Girls Have Trouble Convincing Boy Friend He Is The "One And Only"

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Many of my teen-age readers who, as they should at their age, change their preference in boys friends now and again, complain that they have trouble convincing the boy friend of the moment that he is their "one and only," and that any previous romances are over and done with.

Here is the sort of thing I mean:

"I am a girl of 16, and very much in love with a boy 20 who says he loves me very much and wants to marry me.

"Before I met him I used to like another boy. I told the one I go with now the other thing was all over with but he doesn't believe me or trust me. Before I marry him I want him to believe in me and trust me. Could you please tell me if he is really true or am I just another passing fancy?"

And this one:

"I went with a fellow quite some time ago. I cared a great deal for him but he used to drink a lot. Finally, I couldn't take it any longer so we broke off.

"Some time later I started going with his cousin and we have discussed becoming enagaged. Then one night he accused me of being in love with the fellow I used to go with. I just laughed at first and told him he was being silly, but he keeps harping on the subject. Not one night goes by with out his bringing it up.

"What can I do to stop all this nonsense? I want to be happy, but since all this started, I am getting more and more disgusted."

These are only two examples of what seems to happen to a great many young people. And it seems to be very silly for them to waste time on any boy who behaves in such a way.

There are just two reasons for such behavior, and either of them should indicate to the girl that the less seriously she takes it, the better.

One reason is that the boy is trying to think up a good excuse for breaking off with the girl himself, and thinks that to accuse her of being more interested in someone else than she is in him, is an easy way out. The other is that he is a natually jealous type and ready to seize on any little thing to stir up a scene.

Either of these things should disqualify a chap as a desirable boy friend, for no girl is going to be happy very long under such circumstances. It is sheer waste of time to argue with this type of person and try to convince him that he is tops in a girl's heart, for he doesn't really want to be convinced.

A smart girl will wave good-bye lightheartedly to any young man who starts this kind of thing, and look around for the new heart interest she is certain to find.

Dead-Pan Joke

ISTANBUL (AP)—A practical joker climbed into a coffin that had been put aboard a bus at the nearby spa of Bursa.

As the bus and its passengers bounced along a rough road, the joker pushed up the cover of the coffin and raised his head.

All Homes Should Be Built Around Bedroom--Boyle

The architects have it all wrong when it comes to designing houses, says Hal Boyle, well-known columnist. In his opinion, the bedroom should be the heart of the home with the whole house built around it.

Not for him the modern home with a tiny bedroom, almost too small for any bed and far too small for twin beds. Mr. Boyle visualizes a large bedroom with a hospital-type adjustable bed. A convenient cupboard would hold all the necessary equipment so that he could both prepare and eat his breakfast in bed. Mail would come in through the window beside his bed. In between eating and answering his mail, he would listen to the radio, make telephone calls, read, and, probably, take a nap every now and then. It sounds like a very pleasant way to start the day.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Girls Have Trouble Convincing Boy Friend He Is The "One And Only"

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Many of my teen-age readers who, as they should at their age, change their preference in boys friends now and again, complain that they have trouble convincing the boy friend of the moment that he is their "one and only," and that any previous romances are over and done with.

Here is the sort of thing I mean:

"I am a girl of 16, and very much in love with a boy 20 who says he loves me very much and wants to marry me.

"Before I met him I used to like another boy. I told the one I go with now the other thing was all over with but he doesn't believe me or trust me. Before I marry him I want him to believe in me and trust me. Could you please tell me if he is really true or am I just another passing fancy?"

And this one:

"I went with a fellow quite some time ago. I cared a great deal for him but he used to drink a lot. Finally, I couldn't take it any longer so we broke off.

"Some time later I started going with his cousin and we have discussed becoming enagaged. Then one night he accused me of being in love with the fellow I used to go with. I just laughed at first and told him he was being silly, but he keeps harping on the subject. Not one night goes by with out his bringing it up.

"What can I do to stop all this nonsense? I want to be happy, but since all this started, I am getting more and more disgusted."

These are only two examples of what seems to happen to a great many young people. And it seems to be very silly for them to waste time on any boy who behaves in such a way.

There are just two reasons for such behavior, and either of them should indicate to the girl that the less seriously she takes it, the better.

One reason is that the boy is trying to think up a good excuse for breaking off with the girl himself, and thinks that to accuse her of being more interested in someone else than she is in him, is an easy way out. The other is that he is a natually jealous type and ready to seize on any little thing to stir up a scene.

Either of these things should disqualify a chap as a desirable boy friend, for no girl is going to be happy very long under such circumstances. It is sheer waste of time to argue with this type of person and try to convince him that he is tops in a girl's heart, for he doesn't really want to be convinced.

A smart girl will wave good-bye lightheartedly to any young man who starts this kind of thing, and look around for the new heart interest she is certain to find.

Dead-Pan Joke

ISTANBUL (AP)—A practical joker climbed into a coffin that had been put aboard a bus at the nearby spa of Bursa.

As the bus and its passengers bounced along a rough road, the joker pushed up the cover of the coffin and raised his head.

All Homes Should Be Built Around Bedroom--Boyle

The architects have it all wrong when it comes to designing houses, says Hal Boyle, well-known columnist. In his opinion, the bedroom should be the heart of the home with the whole house built around it.

Not for him the modern home with a tiny bedroom, almost too small for any bed and far too small for twin beds. Mr. Boyle visualizes a large bedroom with a hospital-type adjustable bed. A convenient cupboard would hold all the necessary equipment so that he could both prepare and eat his breakfast in bed. Mail would come in through the window beside his bed. In between eating and answering his mail, he would listen to the radio, make telephone calls, read, and, probably, take a nap every now and then. It sounds like a very pleasant way to start the day.

Gallup Poll

Famly Food Budget Advance Puts Spotlight On Price Control Demand

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., July 27—President Truman's renewed demand to Congress for inflation controls comes at a time when the food bill of the average American family is more than double what it was six years ago.

A good part of that increase has come in the past eleven months because since last August more than $200 has been added to the yearly cost of food for the typical non-farm family.

The Institute since 1942 has been keeping tabs on how much people spend for food. On four occasions interviewers throughout the country have asked this identical question of typical non-farmer families:

"On the average, how much does your family spend on food, including milk, each week?"

August, 1942	$11 per week
March, 1946	$17 per week
August, 1947	$21 per week
TODAY	$25 per week

This periodic survey by the Institute differs from other cost-of-living figures, because it is based on what consumers in American cities say they actually pay out for food, while other indexes are based on the average retail price of a standard group of food products.

The commodity indexes also show a steady rise, of course, and for comparative purposes here are the figures of the Bureau of Labor Statistics food index (based on 100 as the consumers average price paid for food during the 1935-1939 period:)

March, 1946	140.1
June, 1947	190.5
June, 1948	214.1

An analysis of today's Institute survey reveals some interesting sidelights on how soaring food prices have effected America's pocketbooks. For example three times as many families today as in 1946 are spending over $30 a week for food. And today only every fifth family manages to stay under $15 weekly, whereas two years ago almost half the families were spending less than that amount.

Both economic and political implications can be drawn from the figures in today's survey. In the first place, a sizable boost in the family's food bill is bound to have an important effect on the amount of money the members spend for other things.

This is so because, while the average family income is higher than it has been at any time, it has not risen at as high a rate as the advance in food costs. This may account for the current business decline in the entertainment field, and may later affect other fields, if the food price spiral does not level off.

Politically, the soaring food budget focuses attention on Truman's battle with Congress over inflation controls and his attempt to place the blame for high prices on the Republican Party.

The Democratic candidate has chosen to fight the campaign on an issue which vitally interests the rank and file voters of the nation. It is also an issue where his party enjoys certain advantages over the Republicans.

Previous Institute surveys have shown that voters today regard high living costs as the most important domestic issue facing the nation, rating it far above labor and housing problems. Also, a majority of voters believe that the Democratic Party can handle the problem of inflation better than the GOP.

"Catch-All" Room Can Be Show Place

One wonders what architects had in mind when they included rooms too small for bedrooms and too large for closets in house plans. Many old houses today—and some not so old, too—have a room of this description which is invariably a headache to the owner.

Such a room seems to be just so much waste space and often becomes a general "catch-all" for items which should be disposed of or stored more practically in other places. However, with proper furnishings and decorative treatment it can be the show place of the house and serve two practical purposes to boot.

Splashy, colorful wall paper on one wall, a blending pastel shade on the other three, a dressing table with a skirt to match window draperies, and a drawer chest with simple lines will turn the store room into an attractive dressing room. Add a convertible love seat and you have a comfortable guest room.

New styles and beautiful cover fabrics in convertible love seats are winning decorative honors these days. Improved construction provides restful sleeping comfort when the love seat is pulled out into a bed. During the day it furnishes comfortable seating space.

Just Between Us

Student Government Will Not Work Without Help Of Faculty

By NANCY MOTTRAM

(Q) "Dear Nancy: Just before school closed, a very serious problem came up in our local high school, and we'll have to act on it next fall. We'd like to have some ideas by then, so here it is: A constitution was drawn up to establish a student government, which we've wanted for a long time. But to be accepted, it must have a majority vote of the students, and there are a few articles that have caused a lot of disagreement. Among these is the one which states that if the student body desires any activity, such as "after-game" dances, we must have a three-fourths vote of the students plus the principal's signature. If he vetoes it, it's taken off the calendar. We want a democratic student government and one which has some rights. We would like some power in the constitution which guarantees them, otherwise many of the fellows and girls won't vote for the idea, and we'll lose our chance to have a say in school government. Can you suggest anything?"

Nancy Mottram

(A) An article which would enable the students to override the veto would never gain the faculty's approval. You have a point, however, when you say you want a good student administration with some authority, and a right to make decisions and plans. However, it wouldn't work unless you had the faculty on your side, and were able to work out and compromise on any differences of opinion between the students and teachers. Instead of a fight for an article which gives the students absolute right to decide their own affairs—which wouldn't be successful—why don't you try for a board made up of members of the faculty and student body to talk over all the various issues and try to come to some sort of an agreement? If your government is to last and really work, both sides must get together and by compromising and understanding, discuss and draw up new and more democratic amendments.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: I've been away at college for the last year, and before I left, I had been dating a girl steadily. While we've been apart, I don't think I heard from her more than once a month. I'm visiting my roommate now, but I'll be going home very soon, and I don't know if I should even call her up. She never mentioned anything about us, and the last letter I received was dated May. What shall I do?"

(A) If you still care for her, you'll be fooling only yourself if you don't see her. Wait a few days after you arrive home before calling and making a date. After you talk to her, you'll know how you and she stand at the present. Then you'll be able to decide accordingly when you begin making your plans for the summer.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: A friend of mine has just started to go steady with a boy I hardly know. Just about two days ago, I saw him out with a girl who was not my friend. Do you think I should tell her about it, or just stay out of it and say nothing?"

(A) Don't mix in their personal problems. Stay on the outside and don't be the one to carry the news or spread it through the grape-vine. You might be mistaken, but even if you're absolutely positive, don't be the "tale-bearer." It's only natural to want to save her any hurt feelings, but it's better to wait and see which way the wind is blowing before you involve yourself.

Nancy can help with all your teen-age problems. Write her in care of this newspaper.

Gets Suspended Sentence On Assault

George Sapp, 19 Humbird Street, who was given a suspended sentence on a contempt of court charge last week in Circuit Court Monday received another suspended sentence in Trial Magistrates Court where he was arraigned on an assault count.

The charges were preferred by Sapp's wife, Ronelda Sapp, on July 16, but the defendant was being held in Allegany County Jail on the contempt charge at the time. When he was released Saturday the assault charge was pressed and Sapp was given the hearing Monday.

Student Government Will Not Work Without Help Of Faculty

By NANCY MOTTRAM

(Q) "Dear Nancy: Just before school closed, a very serious problem came up in our local high school, and we'll have to act on it next fall. We'd like to have some ideas by then, so here it is: A constitution was drawn up to establish a student government, which we've wanted for a long time. But to be accepted, it must have a majority vote of the students, and there are a few articles that have caused a lot of disagreement. Among these is the one which states that if the student body desires any activity, such as "after-game" dances, we must have a three-fourths vote of the students plus the principal's signature. If he vetoes it, it's taken off the calendar. We want a democratic student government and one which has some rights. We would like some power in the constitution which guarantees them, otherwise many of the fellows and girls won't vote for the idea, and we'll lose our chance to have a say in school government. Can you suggest anything?"

Nancy Mottram

(A) An article which would enable the students to override the veto would never gain the faculty's approval. You have a point, however, when you say you want a good student administration with some authority, and a right to make decisions and plans. However, it wouldn't work unless you had the faculty on your side, and were able to work out and compromise on any differences of opinion between the students and teachers. Instead of a fight for an article which gives the students absolute right to decide their own affairs—which wouldn't be successful—why don't you try for a board made up of members of the faculty and student body to talk over all the various issues and try to come to some sort of an agreement? If your government is to last and really work, both sides must get together and by compromising and understanding, discuss and draw up new and more democratic amendments.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: I've been away at college for the last year, and before I left, I had been dating a girl steadily. While we've been apart, I don't think I heard from her more than once a month. I'm visiting my roommate now, but I'll be going home very soon, and I don't know if I should even call her up. She never mentioned anything about us, and the last letter I received was dated May. What shall I do?"

(A) If you still care for her, you'll be fooling only yourself if you don't see her. Wait a few days after you arrive home before calling and making a date. After you talk to her, you'll know how you and she stand at the present. Then you'll be able to decide accordingly when you begin making your plans for the summer.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: A friend of mine has just started to go steady with a boy I hardly know. Just about two days ago, I saw him out with a girl who was not my friend. Do you think I should tell her about it, or just stay out of it and say nothing?"

(A) Don't mix in their personal problems. Stay on the outside and don't be the one to carry the news or spread it through the grape-vine. You might be mistaken, but even if you're absolutely positive, don't be the "tale-bearer." It's only natural to want to save her any hurt feelings, but it's better to wait and see which way the wind is blowing before you involve yourself.

Nancy can help with all your teen-age problems. Write her in care of this newspaper.

Interest Shown In Retirement Law For Guard

With President Truman recently signing a bill now known as Public Law No. 810 providing retirement pay for National Guardsmen and Army Reserves of all grades and ranks at age 60 after 20 years or more of service, local servicemen, guardsmen and reserves are showing considerable interest.

Col. Randolph Millholland, commander of the First Battalion, Maryland National Guard here, said a copy of the new law has not been received officially, but it is his opinion a large number of county men will eventually benefit from the measure.

Retirement pay is based on the number of years of active Federal service and credit is also given for the years of service in the Guard or Reserve.

Benefits Payable at 60

Main purpose of the bill, it is said, is to give encouragement to officers and enlisted men for length of service in the National Guard and Reserve Corps, with the idea that many of these men will stay in service to qualify for retirement pay.

The law provides that these benefits do not become payable until the officer or enlisted man reaches the age of 60 and requires a minimum period of service of twenty years. It is the understanding here that some federal service in the last war is required.

The bill gives two and one-half per cent of the base pay of the officer or enlisted man for every year of federal service—the same pay rate which is now made to retired regular army officers. Service under Federal pay arrangement include Mexican border, World War, 1, World War II, summer training camps and armory drills.

For example, the retirement pay of a captain who served in both wars for a period of five years, and had 15 years service in the guard, would be computed somewhat as follows:

Assuming that he attended summer training camp each year for two weeks, he would have federal credit on this score of approximately 30 weeks over a period of 15 years.

Assuming he attended drill regularly (there are approximately 50 drills a year) he would have 750 days or around 120 weeks on this score. That would make a summer camp-drill credit of about 150 weeks or about three years.

This would add to his five years of federal service during the wars —giving him eight years of federal service at two and one half per cent of his base pay per year—or in all about 20 per cent of his base pay.

Sergeants To Predominate

For his 15 years service in the Guard, he would be entitled to a credit of roughly three-eighths of one per cent per year. In five years this would amount to about five per cent. He would therefore be entitled, in all, to 25 per cent of his base pay as retirement benefit. It is not clear as yet, but it is believed the base pay also includes longevity benefits (so much additional pay for each year of service).

Sergeants of various grades will probably form the largest group of enlisted men who will gradually become eligible for payments, which will be figured on the same basis as officers.

The law is administered by the Secretary of the Army who is authorized to put it into effect as soon as he is ready but not later than January 1, 1949. It is understood that his office is preparing the necessary application forms.

Council Defers Traffic Decision

No definite decision was reached yesterday by the Mayor and Council on a proposed overall traffic survey which would cost the city $4,500. Parking and narrow streets were termed the chief problems.

Meeting in the office of Mayor Thomas S. Post with George N. Lewis, Jr., of the State Roads Commission and F. W. Lovejoy of the Public Roads Administration, Mayor and Council heard an explanation of how the survey is conducted and the benefits derived by three other Maryland cities, Baltimore, Hagerstown and Frederick.

Commissioner of Police William V. Keegan declared that the survey would not work because there are not enough men in the Police Department now to keep traffic going.

Commissioner Edgar Reynolds and Miles Thompson, of the Chamber of Commerce traffic committee, agreed with Keegan that the major problems are parking and traffic.

Lewis pointed out that the purpose of the survey is not to make suggestions but to give a general picture of the flow of traffic. Motorists are stopped, he said, and asked where they are going and over what route. From this is determined where the flow of traffic is heaviest.

Lewis said that after he and Lovejoy drove through town Monday, he could suggest that parking should be removed from one side of Mechanic and Center Streets.

Importance of having the survey was emphasized by Lewis who said that future traffic decisions would necessarily be based on its results. Having the survey is also desirable in obtaining federal aid under the Federal Aid Urban System. This system is designed to aid cities with heavy traffic problems, especially incoming and outgoing, it was pointed out, and does not apply to local street improvements. Widening of a street, however, to aid the flow of foreign travel would be classed as eligible for federal monies under the plan.

The plan to make Frederick and Bedford Streets one way, traffic going north on Frederick and south on Bedford, is considered a good prospect for federal funds if Frederick Street is widened at certain points. As in other instances the traffic survey would be desirable, Lewis said.

Lewis said that in the event the city decides to make the survey, police will be needed for three weeks to help stop motorists. In addition to five or six officers, approximately 30 local persons would be employed under five or six supervisors from the State Roads Commission.

Attending the meeting, in addition to Mayor Post, Keegan, Reynolds and Thompson, were Water Commissioner William J. Edwards, City Attorney Thomas B. Finan and City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer.

Racing History Added To Public Library

"The ABC of Horseracing," by Dan Parker, New York Daily Mirror sports editor, is among the new books received by the Cumberland Free Public Library, Miss Mary Walsh, librarian, said yesterday.

Some of the other books added to the library's collection are a book on microfilming by Ralph Desola, "George Washington's Country," by Marietta M. Andrew, "The First Woman Doctor, Rachel Blackwell," by Rachel Baker, "Historic Restoration of the D.A.R.," by Lewis Barrington, and "Secret and Urgent" by Fletcher Pratt, a story of codes and ciphers.

Success Of Gephart Festival Reported

The Gephart Recreation Association realized enough money on its recent festival to make several improvements on the playground, it was announced at a meeting of the group Monday night.

A committee has been named to contact contractors for the laying of a concrete base to be used for tennis, basketball, roller skating and winter ice skating.

A part of the graded area already completed will serve as a softball, croquet and horseshoe area.

On August 12, those who worked in the festival two weeks ago will be honored by the association with a covered dish dinner to be held in the school cafeteria.

Will Of Moscow Woman Probated

The will of Mary Jane Andrews, Moscow, this county, who died July 12, 1948, was admitted to probate yesterday in Orphans Court. The document names her daughter, Dora A. Miller, Barton, sole beneficiary and executrix. The will was signed June 22, 1948, and witnessed by Leonard W. Johnson, Leon Johnson and James Park.

$25,000 Damage Suit Filed In Cycle Mishap

A suit for $25,000 damages was docketed yesterday in Circuit Court by Albert S. Pisaneschi 21, of 927 Grand Avenue, against Taylor J. Van Meter, 20, of Oldtown, and Marlene E. (Kifer) Van Meter, for severe injuries received in the collision of a car and motorcycle at the intersection of State Route 51 and the Willow Road in the Oldtown section April 17, 1947.

Filed by Morgan C. Harris, attorney for Pisaneschi, the declaration states that Pisaneschi was a passenger on a motorcycle owned and operated by James E. Clark, 22, of 509 Williams Street.

It is alleged that the car operated by Van Meter and owned by Marlene E. Van Meter was operated in a reckless and negligent manner and that Van Meter failed to give the right of way to Clark.

Pisaneschi claims he suffered a compound fracture of the right leg, fractured jaw, three shattered teeth, concussion of the brain and avers that the injuries are permanent. He also claims that he incurred heavy hospital and medical expenses and lost a year's attendance in school as a result of his condition.

Probe Morning Swimming

Richard H. Welsh, 310 Furnace Street, was questioned yesterday by police after he reported hearing someone "splash around" in the Potomac River near Ridgeley Bridge at 1:30 a. m. yesterday.

Authorities said the incident probably resulted from several youths playing around on the bridge.

Cyclist Injured

Richard Moore, 18, 126 Humbird Street, suffered a shoulder injury Monday morning when his motorcycle collided with a car operated by Raymond K. Catlett, 58, 621 Quebec Avenue, at the intersection of Virginia and Laing Avenues.

Moore told police he received hospital treatment as a result of the injury.

$25,000 Damage Suit Filed In Cycle Mishap

A suit for $25,000 damages was docketed yesterday in Circuit Court by Albert S. Pisaneschi 21, of 927 Grand Avenue, against Taylor J. Van Meter, 20, of Oldtown, and Marlene E. (Kifer) Van Meter, for severe injuries received in the collision of a car and motorcycle at the intersection of State Route 51 and the Willow Road in the Oldtown section April 17, 1947.

Filed by Morgan C. Harris, attorney for Pisaneschi, the declaration states that Pisaneschi was a passenger on a motorcycle owned and operated by James E. Clark, 22, of 509 Williams Street.

It is alleged that the car operated by Van Meter and owned by Marlene E. Van Meter was operated in a reckless and negligent manner and that Van Meter failed to give the right of way to Clark.

Pisaneschi claims he suffered a compound fracture of the right leg, fractured jaw, three shattered teeth, concussion of the brain and avers that the injuries are permanent. He also claims that he incurred heavy hospital and medical expenses and lost a year's attendance in school as a result of his condition.

Bi-State League Fines, Suspends Westvaco Players

Two Penalized For Molesting Umpire Davis

Mosser And Petrone Set Down For Action

Four Clubs Awarded Forfeit Victories

The Bi-State Baseball League met at Mt. Savage on Monday night and "cracked down" on the Westvaco Club by fining and suspending Francis Petrone and "Bud" Mosser on the charge of "molesting" Umpire Stanley Davis following an argument Sunday at Lonaconing which culminated in the Papermakers walking off the field while trailing 5-1 in the fourth inning.

It was testified Petrone and Mosser jostled and shoved Umpire Davis around after the latter had ruled that Nicol of Lonaconing had touched third base while scoring on a single to center by Johnny Meyers. Westvaco players, led by Mosser, third sacker, argued that Nicol failed to touch the base.

As a result of the "rhubarb" President Robert M. Smith fined Petrone $5 and suspended him for two games and plastered a $5 fine on Mosser and tossed him out of five games.

Smith Sounds Warning

"Players must learn to keep their hands off the umpires and the league will not tolerate players shoving the arbiters around," Smith declared.

Umpire Davis declared Lonaconing the winner of Sunday's game when the Westvaco Club quit and the league upheld the decision.

The league also ruled in favor of Midland, Queen City and Hyndman Firemen in their claims for forfeit victories over Westvaco, the Amvets and Barton when the latter teams participated in the Maryland Semi-Pro Tournament at Westernport instead of fulfilling their obligation of playing regularly schedule league contests on dates adopted by the circuit.

The games were scheduled Sunday, July 18, and the forfeit wins go to Midland over Westvaco, Queen City over the Amvets and Hyndman over Barton.

Frostburg claimed a forfeit win over Westvaco on Saturday, July 17, but this was disallowed because the Frostburg team did not put in its appearance for the game in Westernport where the tourney was in progress.

McKenzie Heads All-Stars

Lawrence McKenzie of Lonaconing was named manager of the Bi-State All-star team which will play the Interstate All-Stars Wednesday, August 4, at Memorial Park, Westernport. Francis Patrone of Westvaco and Norman Gerdeman of the Amvets will assist McKenzie in selecting the players of the team.

President Smith called attention to the fact that the deadline for signing players is Saturday, July 31 at midnight, and no more contracts will be approved after that date. He also announced that when postponed games are rescheduled only players signed on the date the game was originally scheduled will be allowed to participate.

The Keyser A. C. was fined $2 for not having a representative present and a $2 fine was imposed on the Amvets for missing a previous meeting in Frostburg.

Thomas Replaces Clark

Al Thomas has replaced Fred "Tack" Clark as manager of the Keyser A. C., due to the latter being away for the remainder of the season.

Queen City's Brewers have released Robert Doman and signed Robert Holsinger, of Martinsburg, Pa. Midland has signed David Wilson of Lonaconing and Stewart Doney of Altoona, and Joe Collins and Glenn Foster of Westernport have signed Barton contracts.

White Handicap Tops Cumberland Day Racing Card

'Miss Cumberland' Will Present White Trophy

Today is Cumberland Day at Fairgo and the top feature on the racing card arranged by Secretary Matthias "Ty" Shea is the fifth running of the Clifton W. White Handicap, named in honor of the president and general manager of the Cumberland Fair Association.

The White trophy which was won by John Foster's Cushlamacree in 1944 and 1945, Lawless Miss in 1946 and N. S. Scava's Beau Wynn last year, will be presented to the owner of the winner by "Miss Cumberland"—Miss Juanita Lookabaugh.

Run as the fifth event on the card over the route of one mile and a sixteenth, the White has attracted a classy field, including Certified, which finished fourth in the Leonard Richard Stakes at Delaware Park; Rough Cloud, two times winner at Fairgo; Miss Prime, victor in six consecutive races; Comedy Player, a favorite here for many years, Friendly Miss and Casset.

With a half holiday declared here, one of the largest crowds of the meeting is expected to witness the eight-race card, commencing at 2:30 p. m., E. D. T.

Two other trophy races appear on the program. The Col. William H. Robertson Memorial winner will receive a trophy donated by Mrs. William H. Robertson while the owner of the winner in the eighth will receive the Clary Club Trophy.

Star Bouts For Pittsburgh

The first track record established at Fairgo since the 1946 meeting was hung up in the 8th race on Saturday when Mrs. L. Everhart's Chiff Chaff negotiated the mile and five-sixteenths in 2:22 4/5.

The eight-year-old bay gelding, trained by M. H. Everhart and ridden by Sammy Palumbo, knocked a full second off the previous record of 2:23 4/5 set by Valdina Haven with "Skeets" Holland in the saddle on August 24, 1946.

Mike Valan of Wheeling, president, postponed the meeting of the All-American Professional Basketball League scheduled for the past weekend at Pittsburgh because the circuit's franchise committee needs more time to study applications and make contacts before conferring with present franchise holders in Altoona, Youngstown, Dayton, Cumberland and Wheeling.

The A-A prexy reports that some of the present applications do not seem to be the type that would go well in a league of this calibre.

In this country race tracks are compelled by law to pay a minimum of at least five cents to a dollar regardless of how great a minus pool develops. The law in Maryland is 10 cents on a dollar.

The lowest price winner of the current meeting was recorded in last Thursday's fifth race when Miss Prime returned 70 cents on the dollar. Holders of $2 win tickets received $3.40.

That was an unwise move the Westvaco Club made on Sunday when it walked off the field in the 4th inning at Lonaconing following an argument over an umpire's decision. 'Coney was leading at the time by the score of 5-1.

Regardless of whether the arbiter was right or wrong Westvaco should have finished the game under protest.

A quitter is not a good sportsman and we believe Westvaco will come in for a lot of criticism throughout the league for the action it took before a large turnout of fans on Sunday.

We are reminded that it wasn't the first time that Westvaco "walked off the diamond" before completion of the regulation game. The same club took a walk in the Maryland Semi-Pro Tournament at Frederick, Md., last year.

It's bad business and it's the shortest route to unpopularity.

Much of the credit for the success of the West Virginia Trapshooting Tournament Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the traps of the Ridgeley Rod and Gun Club belongs to Tony Francis of Westernport, chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Francis is one of the best known trapshooters in this section and his contacts with gunners at many other shoots he attended was instrumental in attracting an all-time high of 70 shooters to the event which was held at Ridgeley for the second straight year. The three-day event attracted the largest field in the 28-year history of the tourney. Scatter gun artists from five states participated.

Tony was in charge in 1947 also when 60 figured in the competition.

Some fight fans still argue that Max Schmeling knocked out Joe Louis after the latter became champion. For the 'steenth time we say that is incorrect. Schmeling kayoed Louis June 19, 1936 in the 12th round at New York City. Louis won the heavyweight title from James J. Braddock via an eight round K.O. in Chicago, June 22, 1937 and flattened Schmeling in one round in New York, June 22, 1938.

Boxing fans will get an opportunity to see a couple of good battles in Pittsburgh next Tuesday night when Rusty Payne, the negro heavyweight K.O. artist from the Pacific Coast, tackles Sid Peaks in a return go and Lavern Roach, classy middleweight from Texas, collides with Charley (Zivic) Affif.

Payne put the lights out for Peaks in two heats in their first match at Pittsburgh but Sid believes he can put the whammy on Payne in the return go.

The Rooney-McGinley Club is putting on the card headed by the two 10-rounders at Forbes Field.

Dodgers Nose Out St. Louis In 9th By Score Of 3-2

Misjudged Fly Paves Way To Brooklyn Win

BROOKLYN, July 27 (AP)—A misjudged fly by Terry Moore and Pee Wee Reese's run producing fly enabled the Brooklyn Dodgers to score twice in the ninth inning and nip the St. Louis Cardials, 3-2, today.

The Dodgers were trailing, 2-1, going into the last frame. Gene Hermanski singled to start the inning, the fifth hit off Howie Pollet. Hermanski moved to second on a sacrifice and romped home with the tying run when Moore misjudged Bruce Edwards' drive, the blow falling for a double.

Pollet intentionally passed Tommy Brown. A wild pitch moved the runners up a base and after Gil Hodges was purposely walked to load the sacks, Reese sent a long fly to Moore, Edwards scoring after the catch with the winning run.

Joe Hatten started for the Dodgers and yielded all the Cardinal runs and hits. He left for a pinch-hitter in the eighth and rookie Carl Erskine pitched the ninth and held the Cards hitless.

For Erskine, it is his second victory without a loss since his recall from Fort Worth of the Texas League last week. Box:

Beat Horses With Chain, Trainer Loses Licenses

CHICAGO, July 27—(INS)—Richard Lee Hanna, a horse trainer from Philadelphia, today has his license revoked and was barred for life from Illinois tracks by the Illinois State Racing Board.

The board accused Hanna of inhumane treatment toward horses and conduct detrimental to the best interests of racing.

Specifically Hanna was accused of beating two horses owned by O. L. Nyberg of Baltimore on July 20 with a length of chain.

Bi-State League Fines, Suspends Westvaco Players

Two Penalized For Molesting Umpire Davis

Mosser And Petrone Set Down For Action

Four Clubs Awarded Forfeit Victories

The Bi-State Baseball League met at Mt. Savage on Monday night and "cracked down" on the Westvaco Club by fining and suspending Francis Petrone and "Bud" Mosser on the charge of "molesting" Umpire Stanley Davis following an argument Sunday at Lonaconing which culminated in the Papermakers walking off the field while trailing 5-1 in the fourth inning.

It was testified Petrone and Mosser jostled and shoved Umpire Davis around after the latter had ruled that Nicol of Lonaconing had touched third base while scoring on a single to center by Johnny Meyers. Westvaco players, led by Mosser, third sacker, argued that Nicol failed to touch the base.

As a result of the "rhubarb" President Robert M. Smith fined Petrone $5 and suspended him for two games and plastered a $5 fine on Mosser and tossed him out of five games.

Smith Sounds Warning

"Players must learn to keep their hands off the umpires and the league will not tolerate players shoving the arbiters around," Smith declared.

Umpire Davis declared Lonaconing the winner of Sunday's game when the Westvaco Club quit and the league upheld the decision.

The league also ruled in favor of Midland, Queen City and Hyndman Firemen in their claims for forfeit victories over Westvaco, the Amvets and Barton when the latter teams participated in the Maryland Semi-Pro Tournament at Westernport instead of fulfilling their obligation of playing regularly scheduled league contests on dates adopted by the circuit.

The games were scheduled Sunday, July 18, and the forfeit wins go to Midland over Westvaco, Queen City over the Amvets and Hyndman over Barton.

Frostburg claimed a forfeit win over Westvaco on Saturday, July 17, but this was disallowed because the Frostburg team did not put in its appearance for the game in Westernport where the tourney was in progress.

McKenzie Heads All-Stars

Lawrence McKenzie of Lonaconing was named manager of the Bi-State All-star team which will play the Interstate All-Stars Wednesday, August 4, at Memorial Park, Westernport. Francis Patrone of Westvaco and Norman Gerdeman of the Amvets will assist McKenzie in selecting the players of the team.

President Smith called attention to the fact that the deadline for signing players is Saturday, July 31 at midnight, and no more contracts will be approved after that date. He also announced that when postponed games are rescheduled only players signed on the date the game was originally scheduled will be allowed to participate.

The Keyser A. C. was fined $2 for not having a representative present and a $2 fine was imposed on the Amvets for missing a previous meeting in Frostburg.

Thomas Replaces Clark

Al Thomas has replaced Fred "Tack" Clark as manager of the Keyser A. C., due to the latter being away for the remainder of the season.

Queen City's Brewers have released Robert Doman and signed Robert Holsinger, of Martinsburg, Pa. Midland has signed David Wilson of Lonaconing and Stewart Doney of Altoona, and Joe Collins and Glenn Foster of Westernport have signed Barton contracts.

PETERSBURG, W. Va., July 27—Petersburg defeated Bartow in both ends of an Allegheny Baseball League doubleheader Sunday by scores of 9-5 and 9-3. White Handicap Tops Cumberland Day Racing Card

'Miss Cumberland' Will Present White Trophy

Today is Cumberland Day at Fairgo and the top feature on the racing card arranged by Secretary Matthias "Ty" Shea is the fifth running of the Clifton W. White Handicap, named in honor of the president and general manager of the Cumberland Fair Association.

The White trophy which was won by John Foster's Cushlamacree in 1944 and 1945, Lawless Miss in 1946 and N. S. Scava's Beau Wynn last year, will be presented to the owner of the winner by "Miss Cumberland"—Miss Juanita Lookabaugh.

Run as the fifth event on the card over the route of one mile and a sixteenth, the White has attracted a classy field, including Certified, which finished fourth in the Leonard Richard Stakes at Delaware Park; Rough Cloud, two times winner at Fairgo; Miss Prime, victor in six consecutive races; Comedy Player, a favorite here for many years, Friendly Miss and Casset.

With a half holiday declared here, one of the largest crowds of the meeting is expected to witness the eight-race card, commencing at 2:30 p. m., E. D. T.

Two other trophy races appear on the program. The Col. William H. Robertson Memorial winner will receive a trophy donated by Mrs. William H. Robertson while the owner of the winner in the eighth will receive the Clary Club Trophy.

Chiff Chaff Sets Record

Westvaco Makes Blunder

An Orchid For Mr. Francis

Star Bouts For Pittsburgh

By C. V. BURNS

The first track record established at Fairgo since the 1946 meeting was hung up in the 8th race on Saturday when Mrs. L. Everhart's Chiff Chaff negotiated the mile and five-sixteenths in 2:22 4/5.

The eight-year-old bay gelding, trained by M. H. Everhart and ridden by Sammy Palumbo, knocked a full second off the previous record of 2:23 4/5 set by Valdina Haven with "Skeets" Holland in the saddle on August 24, 1946.

Mike Valan of Wheeling, president, postponed the meeting of the All-American Professional Basketball League scheduled for the past weekend at Pittsburgh because the circuit's franchise committee needs more time to study applications and make contacts before conferring with present franchise holders in Altoona, Youngstown, Dayton, Cumberland and Wheeling.

The A-A prexy reports that some of the present applications do not seem to be the type that would go well in a league of this calibre.

In this country race tracks are compelled by law to pay a minimum of at least five cents to a dollar regardless of how great a minus pool develops. The law in Maryland is 10 cents on a dollar.

The lowest price winner of the current meeting was recorded in last Thursday's fifth race when Miss Prime returned 70 cents on the dollar. Holders of $2 win tickets received $3.40.

That was an unwise move the Westvaco Club made on Sunday when it walked off the field in the 4th inning at Lonaconing following an argument over an umpire's decision. 'Coney was leading at the time by the score of 5-1.

Regardless of whether the arbiter was right or wrong Westvaco should have finished the game under protest.

A quitter is not a good sportsman and we believe Westvaco will come in for a lot of criticism throughout the league for the action it took before a large turnout of fans on Sunday.

We are reminded that it wasn't the first time that Westvaco "walked off the diamond" before completion of the regulation game. The same club took a walk in the Maryland Semi-Pro Tournament at Frederick, Md., last year.

It's bad business and it's the shortest route to unpopularity.

Much of the credit for the success of the West Virginia Trapshooting Tournament Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the traps of the Ridgeley Rod and Gun Club belongs to Tony Francis of Westernport, chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Francis is one of the best known trapshooters in this section and his contacts with gunners at many other shoots he attended was instrumental in attracting an all-time high of 70 shooters to the event which was held at Ridgeley for the second straight year. The three-day event attracted the largest field in the 28-year history of the tourney. Scatter gun artists from five states participated.

Tony was in charge in 1947 also when 60 figured in the competition.

Some fight fans still argue that Max Schmeling knocked out Joe Louis after the latter became champion. For the 'steenth time we say that is incorrect. Schmeling kayoed Louis June 19, 1936 in the 12th round at New York City. Louis won the heavyweight title from James J. Braddock via an eight round K.O. in Chicago, June 22, 1937 and flattened Schmeling in one round in New York, June 22, 1938.

Boxing fans will get an opportunity to see a couple of good battles in Pittsburgh next Tuesday night when Rusty Payne, the negro heavyweight K.O. artist from the Pacific Coast, tackles Sid Peaks in a return go and Lavern Roach, classy middleweight from Texas, collides with Charley (Zivic) Affif.

Payne put the lights out for Peaks in two heats in their first match at Pittsburgh but Sid believes he can put the whammy on Payne in the return go.

The Rooney-McGinley Club is putting on the card headed by the two 10-rounders at Forbes Field.

Dodgers Nose Out St. Louis In 9th By Score Of 3-2

Misjudged Fly Paves Way To Brooklyn Win

BROOKLYN, July 27 (AP)—A misjudged fly by Terry Moore and Pee Wee Reese's run producing fly enabled the Brooklyn Dodgers to score twice in the ninth inning and nip the St. Louis Cardials, 3-2, today.

The Dodgers were trailing, 2-1, going into the last frame. Gene Hermanski singled to start the inning, the fifth hit off Howie Pollet. Hermanski moved to second on a sacrifice and romped home with the tying run when Moore misjudged Bruce Edwards' drive, the blow falling for a double.

Pollet intentionally passed Tommy Brown. A wild pitch moved the runners up a base and after Gil Hodges was purposely walked to load the sacks, Reese sent a long fly to Moore, Edwards scoring after the catch with the winning run.

Joe Hatten started for the Dodgers and yielded all the Cardinal runs and hits. He left for a pinch-hitter in the eighth and rookie Carl Erskine pitched the ninth and held the Cards hitless.

For Erskine, it is his second victory without a loss since his recall from Fort Worth of the Texas League last week. Box:

Beat Horses With Chain, Trainer Loses Licenses

CHICAGO, July 27—(INS)—Richard Lee Hanna, a horse trainer from Philadelphia, today has his license revoked and was barred for life from Illinois tracks by the Illinois State Racing Board.

The board accused Hanna of inhumane treatment toward horses and conduct detrimental to the best interests of racing.

Specifically Hanna was accused of beating two horses owned by O. L. Nyberg of Baltimore on July 20 with a length of chain.

Joe Tinker Dies On 68th Birthday In Orlando, Fla.

Starred With Cubs, Piloted Four Clubs

ORLANDO, Fla., July 27 (AP)—Joe Tinker, one of baseball's greats, died suddenly today on his 68th birthday.

He was cheerful to the last hour of his life, although he died in an oxygen tent where he had been placed because of a respiratory ailment which no one considered serious.

Ten days ago the last surviving member of the Chicago Cubs' Tinker to Evers to Chance double play combination was taken to Orange Memorial Hospital for treatment for his indisposition and to have his diet straightened out.

Daily he laughed and joked, even when occasion necessitated his being placed under a tent until the respiratory constriction passed.

This morning he suffered another attack and was placed under the tent. Still, he talked with friends and said he never felt better. That was about 8:30. At 11:15 he died.

He is survived by four children: Joe Jr., of Tallahassee; William of Baltimore; Mrs. Charles Clapp of Boulder, Colo., and Rowland of Orlando.

Tinker was born Joseph Bert Tinker in Muscotah, Kan., on July 27, 1880.

He broke into baseball with the Coffeyville, Kansas, team when he was 19 and through it reached the Cubs three years later in 1902.

He stayed with the Cubs until 1912, managed the Cincinnati Reds in 1913, moved back to Chicago as manager of the old Federal League the next two years; for four years was president and manager of the Columbus Club of the American Association and from 1921 to 1923 led the Orlando Club in the Florida State League.

Tinker was wealthy at one time but lost much of his money. He engaged in various enterprises and during World War II was a boiler inspector at the army's Orlando Air Field and served as a committeeman at Longwood Track, greyhound racing spot near here.

PLAQUE IS DRAPED

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., July 27 (AP)—The metal plaque bearing the likeness of Joe Tinker in Baseball's Hall of Fame was draped in mourning today in tribute to the famed Chicago Cubs' shortstop.

Officials of the baseball shrine said the crepe will remain on the plaque for 30 days.

Tinker, a member of the immortal Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance double play combination of the 1906-1912 era, died in Orlando, Fla., today.

Tinker, Evers and Chance were named to the Hall of Fame in 1946.

AMERICAN SWIMMERS SHOCKED AT COSTUMES WORN BY EUROPEONS

LONDON, July 27 (AP) — America's olympic women swimmers are shocked at the scanty costumes worn by European swimmers. And they mean the men as well as the women.

"Why they hardly cover anything," gasped Nancy Merki Lees, 400 meter free styler from Ashville, N. C. "The men's suits are even worse than the women's."

"They're making me self conscious," said Mary Patricia Healy of Newark, N. J., of the relay squad.

Joe Tinker Dies On 68th Birthday In Orlando, Fla.

Starred With Cubs, Piloted Four Clubs

He was cheerful to the last hour of his life, although he died in an oxygen tent where he had been placed because of a respiratory ailment which no one considered serious.

Ten days ago the last surviving member of the Chicago Cubs' Tinker to Evers to Chance double play combination was taken to Orange Memorial Hospital for treatment for his indisposition and to have his diet straightened out.

Daily he laughed and joked, even when occasion necessitated his being placed under a tent until the respiratory constriction passed.

This morning he suffered another attack and was placed under the tent. Still, he talked with friends and said he never felt better. That was about 8:30. At 11:15 he died.

He is survived by four children: Joe Jr., of Tallahassee; William of Baltimore; Mrs. Charles Clapp of Boulder, Colo., and Rowland of Orlando.

Tinker was born Joseph Bert Tinker in Muscotah, Kan., on July 27, 1880.

He broke into baseball with the Coffeyville, Kansas, team when he was 19 and through it reached the Cubs three years later in 1902.

He stayed with the Cubs until 1912, managed the Cincinnati Reds in 1913, moved back to Chicago as manager of the old Federal League the next two years; for four years was president and manager of the Columbus Club of the American Association and from 1921 to 1923 led the Orlando Club in the Florida State League.

Tinker was wealthy at one time but lost much of his money. He engaged in various enterprises and during World War II was a boiler inspector at the army's Orlando Air Field and served as a committeeman at Longwood Track, greyhound racing spot near here.

PLAQUE IS DRAPED

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., July 27 (AP)—The metal plaque bearing the likeness of Joe Tinker in Baseball's Hall of Fame was draped in mourning today in tribute to the famed Chicago Cubs' shortstop.

Officials of the baseball shrine said the crepe will remain on the plaque for 30 days.

Tinker, a member of the immortal Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance double play combination of the 1906-1912 era, died in Orlando, Fla., today.

Tinker, Evers and Chance were named to the Hall of Fame in 1946.

AMERICAN SWIMMERS SHOCKED AT COSTUMES WORN BY EUROPEONS

LONDON, July 27 (AP) — America's olympic women swimmers are shocked at the scanty costumes worn by European swimmers. And they mean the men as well as the women.

"Why they hardly cover anything," gasped Nancy Merki Lees, 400 meter free styler from Ashville, N. C. "The men's suits are even worse than the women's."

"They're making me self conscious," said Mary Patricia Healy of Newark, N. J., of the relay squad.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, July 27—(INS)—Four top male stars at 20th Century-Fox are slated for "Unseen Harbor," Frank Laskier's unpublished novel roughly described as a "Mr. Roberts" on a British tramp steamer.

Cornel Wilde

Sol Siegel, the producer, has two already lined up—Richard Widmark and Dana Andrews.

As this is an adventure tale about he-men on the briny deep, the feminine roles are of secondary importance. It seems a shame to waste Mr. Widmark's snarly menace and Mr. Andrews' devastating charms on two other male stars, but that's the way the plot goes.

Picture will be filmed in England and on the high seas from Milton Krims' adaptation and screenplay.

With their first independent, "Million Dollar Weekend," delivered to Eagle-Lion, Gene Raymond and Matty Kemp are taking on "Flight Into Infinity" for their second production.

The thriller is based on the development of the X-1 — first rocket propelled aircraft to pierce the sound wall — from an original story by Kemp. The boys have Washington's official nod on the production. (The X-1 is not a military aircraft. It is, in fact, a flying laboratory).

Gene Raymond again directs and stars.

Cornel Wilde faces a serious operation. He has been wearing a steel belt ever since the fight scene with Richard Widmark in "Road House," in which his back was badly strained.

He didn't pay much attention to it at the time and went into a scene the next day carrying Celeste Holm up a flight of stairs. That did it. Cornel's doctor put him in the steel "trap" the next day.

Although he has worn the contraption about a month and even started a new picture, "The Lovers," with his wife, Pat Knight, his condition has not improved. Now they say the operation is necessary as soon as he finishes the Columbia picture.

Mary Pickford cabled from Cannes, shocked and grieved over the passing of D. W. Griffith, the man who started her on her career.

She did not know of the industry memorial tribute to his memory held today in Hollywood, when she cabled: "I hope the industry at large will pay him the respect and tribute our beloved D. W. so richly deserves. Only those who were privileged to work under his inspired direction realize what a genius he was. I am grief stricken with memories of the man whose name leads all others in the history of our country."

Hollywood in shorts: Marshall Thompson has given his "frat" pin to Barbara Long. You know what that means. The young actors met during rehearsals for "Outward Bound" at the Laguna Playhouse.

The Walter Lantzes — he is the producer of "Woody Woodpecker" cartoons — have switched interests to the stork.

Norma Shearer and her husband, Marty Arrouge, munching hot dogs with Greta Garbo in the beach restaurant of Ocean House.

Credit Esther Williams with the fanciest business "deal" of the week. She rented her home in Acapulco to famed hat designer, Keneth Hopkins. Hopkins is paying off with bonnets instead of money.

After all these years, Jimmy Durante has finally been persuaded to take out an accident policy on his famous schnozzola. Jimmy decided on the step after a recent accident which almost required an operation which might have "beautified" his meal ticket.

Johnny Longden, who broke all jockey records riding his 105th winner at Hollywood Park, took a night off to look and listen to another record breaker, Tony Martin, at Slapsy Maxie's. Also in the crowd, the Burt Lancasters, the Robert Youngs and Mecca Graham.

The Sidney Franklins leave for Rio early in August. They will visit his married daughter living there. First picture Dore Schary looked at on the MGM lot was Sidney's "Command Decision," and the new boss decided it is terrific.

Rosalind Courtright — did you ever see a dream singing? — back from her sensational tour of the best eastern night spots. She will say hello to all her friends at the cocktail party proud Hernando Courtright tosses in her honor Friday night — at the Beverly Hills hotel, of course.

That's all today.

Chic AND Charming

COLLEGE 1948-49 FASHIONS: Tea or date dress, the off-white woolen blouse top shot with non-tarnishable silver yarn and attached to the trim black wool skirt, by a New York designer. Small silver buttons fasten the blouse, and black grosgrain ribbon ties under the collar. Skirt tapers from curved hipline pockets, and is tucked on the sides and down the center from waistline to hem.

Easy Tests Reveal Qualities Of Finish

All furniture wood today needs some kind of finish to be completed. Finishes must bring out the most beauty without destroying characteristics of the natural wood and must protect the surface from inside and outside damage.

The variety of finishes used today makes it difficult to know good from bad. However, there are definite ways to find out whether or not the finish—regardless of the kind—is a good one.

To test the top coat, run a fingernail across an unexposed furniture part. If it cracks and leaves a white mark, it is obvious that the job is a poor one.

Another good test is to rub a finger back and forth over a small section of the surface until it becomes warm. If the surface feels sticky or if it powders, the finish is of low quality.

Fine finishes are smooth and lustrous without gritty, rough surfaces. The grain shows up with a transparency and certain highlights.

Mary Pickford cabled from Cannes, shocked and grieved over the passing of D. W. Griffith, the man who started her on her career.

She did not know of the industry memorial tribute to his memory held today in Hollywood, when she cabled: "I hope the industry at large will pay him the respect and tribute our beloved D. W. so richly deserves. Only those who were privileged to work under his inspired direction realize what a genius he was. I am grief stricken with memories of the man whose name leads all others in the history of our country."

Hollywood in shorts: Marshall Thompson has given his "frat" pin to Barbara Long. You know what that means. The young actors met during rehearsals for "Outward Bound" at the Laguna Playhouse.

The Walter Lantzes — he is the producer of "Woody Woodpecker" cartoons — have switched interests to the stork.

Nancy Guild is recovering at her Malibu home from an operation undergone last week and will be confined for about a week.

Norma Shearer and her husband, Marty Arrouge, munching hot dogs with Greta Garbo in the beach restaurant of Ocean House.

Credit Esther Williams with the fanciest business "deal" of the week. She rented her home in Acapulco to famed hat designer, Keneth Hopkins. Hopkins is paying off with bonnets instead of money.

After all these years, Jimmy Durante has finally been persuaded to take out an accident policy on his famous schnozzola. Jimmy decided on the step after a recent accident which almost required an operation which might have "beautified" his meal ticket.

Johnny Longden, who broke all jockey records riding his 105th winner at Hollywood Park, took a night off to look and listen to another record breaker, Tony Martin, at Slapsy Maxie's. Also in the crowd, the Burt Lancasters, the Robert Youngs and Mecca Graham.

The Sidney Franklins leave for Rio early in August. They will visit his married daughter living there. First picture Dore Schary looked at on the MGM lot was Sidney's "Command Decision," and the new boss decided it is terrific.

Rosalind Courtright — did you ever see a dream singing? — back from her sensational tour of the best eastern night spots. She will say hello to all her friends at the cocktail party proud Hernando Courtright tosses in her honor Friday night — at the Beverly Hills hotel, of course.

That's all today.

Easy Tests Reveal Qualities Of Finish

All furniture wood today needs some kind of finish to be completed. Finishes must bring out the most beauty without destroying characteristics of the natural wood and must protect the surface from inside and outside damage.

The variety of finishes used today makes it difficult to know good from bad. However, there are definite ways to find out whether or not the finish—regardless of the kind—is a good one.

To test the top coat, run a fingernail across an unexposed furniture part. If it cracks and leaves a white mark, it is obvious that the job is a poor one.

Another good test is to rub a finger back and forth over a small section of the surface until it becomes warm. If the surface feels sticky or if it powders, the finish is of low quality.

Fine finishes are smooth and lustrous without gritty, rough surfaces. The grain shows up with a transparency and certain highlights.

Mineral County Jury Returns 7 Indictments

Judge See Attacks Delinquent Parents

KEYSER, W. Va.—The Mineral County grand jury returned seven indictments yesterday afternoon, according to Paul W. Dayton, clerk of the circuit court. Indicted were:

Gerald Clifton Fazenbaker, felony in the theft of a 1946 Dodge one-half ton truck, valued at $1,500, property of Stanley Spencer.

John William Wilson, Jr., two misdemeanors, exhibiting a gaming device commonly known as a tip board, and operating a slot machine, both in the Veterans of Foreign War Club, Blaine.

Edward Dale Schoonover, misdemeanor, contributing to the delinquency of two minors.

Frank Seymore Mayhew, misdemeanor, contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The jury failed to return an indictment against G. M. Martin, who was charged with the theft of harness valued at $40 from Creed Mott.

The absence of three jurors, S. M. Eisler, Piedmont District; Virgil Kitzmiller, Elk District, and Richard Stickley, Welton District, held up the opening of the jury session for about an hour yesterday morning.

Three men called in as substitutes by Jury Commissioners Luke McDowell and Irvin Bane to serve in the absence of the three were Melvin Allen, Harry Reese and Ray Bright, all of Keyser.

Judge Ernest A. See of the Mineral County Circuit Court outlined the duties and rights of the jurymen.

Judge See stated that "Parents are often as much to blame in contributing to the delinquency of minors as are others."

He also commented on the fact that the slot machine and gambling situation in Mineral County is better than it used to be but added:

"Displaying and playing slot machines in the State of West Virginia is against the law. Such a crime is the same as stealing and the offense should not be passed over lightly."

He referred to such machines as not only gambling devices but also demoralizing machines.

W. B. Helmick, Frankfort District, was named foreman of the jury. Following the return of the indictments by the jury, Judge See stated that no petit jury will be named during the July term of court.

BE FIRM—"Peace depends on being firm on essentials, conciliatory on non-essentials and eternally competent," GOP presidential nominee Thomas E. Dewey stated at his farm home, Pawling, N. Y., after conferring with Senator Arthur Vandenberg (left) and John Foster Dulles (right). Dulles, it is believed, is slated to be named secretary of state if Dewey is elected.

Poultry Field Day Will Be Held On August 5 At Reymann Farms

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—A poultry Field Day will be held at Reymann Memorial Farms, Wardensville, beginning at 9:30 in the morning on Thursday, August 5. The Field Day will be under the auspices of the Winchester Area Poultry Council, composed of poultry producers from six counties in West Virginia and six counties in Virginia.

The poultry business is by far the largest business in Hardy County with 4,000,000 broilers and 100,000 turkeys raised and marketed annually. In addition to the broilers, large breeding flocks and egg producing flocks are maintained to supply the hatcheries and egg markets. The poultry industry, including feeds, equipment and buildings amounts to over $10,000,000 annually in the county.

County Agent S. L. Dodd announced the program for the Poultry Field Day begins with a talk by Dean C. R. Orton, director of the West Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station. This will be followed by a short talk by Irvin Williams, president of the Winchester Area Poultry Council. At 10:15 Dr. Norman Olson, professor of Animal Pathology, West Virginia University, will speak on the diseases of poultry and turkeys. At 11:15 C. J. Cunningham, superintendent of the Reymann Memorial Farms, will talk on Broiler Research of West Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station. At 1:30 p. m., J. O. Knapp, director of the Extension Division, will speak on Poultry Production in the Future and Karl Bletner, assistant professor of Poultry Husbandry, will speak on Turkey Production. At 2 p. m., Ted R. Hash, extension poultryman, West Virginia University, will speak on Managing the Breeding Flock and at 3 Harry L. Moore, head of the Poultry Department of V. P. I., Blacksburg, Va., will summarize the day's program.

Lunch, consisting of fried chicken, will be served at 12:15. All poultry producers and affiliated businesses are urged to attend the Field Day.

County Agent Dodd pointed out that competition was keen in the poultry industry and that the successful poultryman of the future will be those men who have learned how to solve problems related to production and who learn the most efficient methods of production. For those reasons, Dodd said, poultrymen are urged to keep up with the latest results of research in the poultry industry. Dodd also pointed out that all the speakers on the program are experts in their field.

State Vo-Ag Head Commends Deahl

MOOREFIELD, W. Va. — M. H. Deahl, co-ordinator of the Institutional On Farm Training Program under the Hardy County Broad of Education, received a letter of commendation from H. E. Edwards, assistant state supervisor of vocational agriculture. Edwards stated that Hardy County was the first county in the state submitting all material which completed the files for the fiscal year.

Deahl said that Hardy County's number one position was due to the cooperation of all parties connected with the program in the county, School Superintendent R. S. Dispanet, Vo-ag Instructor C. B. Hiett and Vo-ag Instructor Lacy Cochran.

County Institutional On Farm Instructors Marion H. Deahl, Aleck Welton, Raymond Shipe, I. A. Harter and J. N. Harter attended an intensive training course at the University in Morgantown last week where all phases of the training program were discussed. Subjects studied were dairy and beef cattle, sheep, hogs, poultry, pasture, grains, hay crops and miscellaneous farm products.

A five-member committee was appointed from the state instructors who will meet with a similar five-man committee made up of county school superintendants. They will form the policy and program for the state during the coming year. Deahl was named as one of the committee members.

Davis Firemen Praised For Aid To Mine Victim

PARSONS—A letter was received by the Davis Volunteer Fire Department from the Davis Coal and Coke Company, Thomas, thanking them for the "splendid way in which your department functioned when called to the Sam Polina strip mine June 12 to render first aid to Richard Paugh who was electrocuted."

H. L. Beattie, vice president of the coal company added "too much cannot be said for the ability and untiring efforts made in a fruitless effort to revive the victim."

The fire department, of which Belmont S. Cleaver is chief, worked four hours with the vesuscitator on Paugh but failed to revive him.

The fire department this month accepted one new member, Kenneth Arnold of Davis.

A carnival is being sponsored by the fire department during the week of August 2 to 7. They are being assisted by the Junior Woman's Club of that town. A feature of the week will be the selection of Miss Blackwater Falls, as Queen of the week.

The contestants must be between the ages of 5 and 8 and will be selected by popular vote.

Mineral County Jury Returns 7 Indictments

Judge See Attacks Delinquent Parents

KEYSER, W. Va.—The Mineral County grand jury returned seven indictments yesterday afternoon, according to Paul W. Dayton, clerk of the circuit court. Indicted were:

Gerald Clifton Fazenbaker, felony in the theft of a 1946 Dodge one-half ton truck, valued at $1,500, property of Stanley Spencer.

John William Wilson, Jr., two misdemeanors, exhibiting a gaming device commonly known as a tip board, and operating a slot machine, both in the Veterans of Foreign War Club, Blaine.

Edward Dale Schoonover, misdemeanor, contributing to the delinquency of two minors.

Frank Seymore Mayhew, misdemeanor, contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The jury failed to return an indictment against G. M. Martin, who was charged with the theft of harness valued at $40 from Creed Mott.

The absence of three jurors, S. M. Eisler, Piedmont District; Virgil Kitzmiller, Elk District, and Richard Stickley, Welton District, held up the opening of the jury session for about an hour yesterday morning.

Three men called in as substitutes by Jury Commissioners Luke McDowell and Irvin Bane to serve in the absence of the three were Melvin Allen, Harry Reese and Ray Bright, all of Keyser.

Judge Ernest A. See of the Mineral County Circuit Court outlined the duties and rights of the jurymen.

Judge See stated that "Parents are often as much to blame in contributing to the delinquency of minors as are others."

He also commented on the fact that the slot machine and gambling situation in Mineral County is better than it used to be but added:

"Displaying and playing slot machines in the State of West Virginia is against the law. Such a crime is the same as stealing and the offense should not be passed over lightly."

He referred to such machines as not only gambling devices but also demoralizing machines.

W. B. Helmick, Frankfort District, was named foreman of the jury. Following the return of the indictments by the jury, Judge See stated that no petit jury will be named during the July term of court.

BE FIRM—"Peace depends on being firm on essentials, conciliatory on non-essentials and eternally competent," GOP presidential nominee Thomas E. Dewey stated at his farm home, Pawling, N. Y., after conferring with Senator Arthur Vandenberg (left) and John Foster Dulles (right). Dulles, it is believed, is slated to be named secretary of state if Dewey is elected.

Poultry Field Day Will Be Held On August 5 At Reymann Farms

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—A poultry Field Day will be held at Reymann Memorial Farms, Wardensville, beginning at 9:30 in the morning on Thursday, August 5. The Field Day will be under the auspices of the Winchester Area Poultry Council, composed of poultry producers from six counties in West Virginia and six counties in Virginia.

The poultry business is by far the largest business in Hardy County with 4,000,000 broilers and 100,000 turkeys raised and marketed annually. In addition to the broilers, large breeding flocks and egg producing flocks are maintained to supply the hatcheries and egg markets. The poultry industry, including feeds, equipment and buildings amounts to over $10,000,000 annually in the county.

County Agent S. L. Dodd announced the program for the Poultry Field Day begins with a talk by Dean C. R. Orton, director of the West Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station. This will be followed by a short talk by Irvin Williams, president of the Winchester Area Poultry Council. At 10:15 Dr. Norman Olson, professor of Animal Pathology, West Virginia University, will speak on the diseases of poultry and turkeys. At 11:15 C. J. Cunningham, superintendent of the Reymann Memorial Farms, will talk on Broiler Research of West Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station. At 1:30 p. m., J. O. Knapp, director of the Extension Division, will speak on Poultry Production in the Future and Karl Bletner, assistant professor of Poultry Husbandry, will speak on Turkey Production. At 2 p. m., Ted R. Hash, extension poultryman, West Virginia University, will speak on Managing the Breeding Flock and at 3 Harry L. Moore, head of the Poultry Department of V. P. I., Blacksburg, Va., will summarize the day's program.

Lunch, consisting of fried chicken, will be served at 12:15. All poultry producers and affiliated businesses are urged to attend the Field Day.

County Agent Dodd pointed out that competition was keen in the poultry industry and that the successful poultryman of the future will be those men who have learned how to solve problems related to production and who learn the most efficient methods of production. For those reasons, Dodd said, poultrymen are urged to keep up with the latest results of research in the poultry industry. Dodd also pointed out that all the speakers on the program are experts in their field.

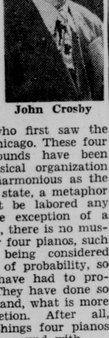
Radio in Review

By JOHN CROSBY

Piano Quartet and Melton

I approached the First Piano Quartet with the naive enthusiasm of the non-expert, and before I get any further, I'd better warn you that you'll find more scholarly criticism on the music page. Here you'll get only the lay opinion, which is another way of saying ignorance.



John Crosby

The First Piano Quartet, the only organization of its kind, is composed of four concert pianists — Adam Garner, native of Poland; Vee Padwa, who was born in Moscow; Frank Mittler, who hails from Vienna, and Edward Edson, who first saw the light of day in Chicago. These four disparate backgrounds have been fused into a musical organization as delicate and harmonious as the dream of a world state, a metaphor which shall not be labored any further. With the exception of a few obscure works, there is no musical literature for four pianos, such an organization being considered beyond the ream of probability, so these musicians have had to produce their own. They have done so with imagination and, what is more important, discretion. After all, there are some things four pianos shouldn't monkey around with.

Since my competence as a critic of even one piano, much less four, is somewhat suspect, I shall pass hurriedly over the quartet's technical skill, and plunge into their program. You'll find, of course, a good deal of the masters of piano composition—Chopin, Debussy, Grieg—but also a number of things which were never intended primarily for piano. Their superb arrangement of Wagner's "Libestod," for example, is something I shall not soon forget. Apparently a number of other people feel the same way, for they have repeated it several times.

The impulse toward the exhibition of sheer razzle-dazzle piano virtuosity is powerful in even one pianist, and in four pianists it's apparently irresistible. At least once in every program, the boys demonstrate how fast they can get around the keyboard and I must admit they are not only agile, but wonderfully evenly matched.

The emphasis, however, is largely on melodic harmony, and I'm happy to report that the arrangers are careful not to hammer your ears off with the accumulated power of four instruments. Incidentally, the quartet pays its respects to the moderns as well as the classics—Virgil Thomson and Abram Chasins being two who come easily to mind.

If you are as bewitched, bothered and bewildered by pianos as I am, I think you'll find this program about as good as radio ever gets. The First Piano Quartet is on twice a week (N. B. C. Sundays at 2 p. m. E. D. T. and Mondays at 8 p. m. E. D. T.)

To pass from the sublime to James Melton, let's consider "Harvest of Stars," which is on C. B. S. (9:30 p. m. E. D. T. Wednesdays). This is a spirited musical program in which M. Melton is assisted by Frank Black and his large orchestra, a chorus and usually a guest singer of some sort. I can think of no more fitting way to describe it than to run over a single program.

The other night Mr. Melton, in rich tenor, embraced—perhaps tackled is the word I'm groping for—"Amour, Amour, Amour," a song better suited to the Milwaukee gallicism of Hildegarde. It was quite an experience for all of us. Amour under the lash of Mr. Melton's rough Irish tongue, takes on the appearance of a gay but rather exhausting wrestling match, which isn't, I'm sure, what the lyricists had in mind exactly.

From there Melton went into a duet with a young lady named Nancy Carr, whose penetrating but somewhat stilted soprano vied wiell enough with Melton's bracing tenor in "People Will Think We're In Love." Love gets tossed around like an adagio dancer on this show. Melton then bounded into "The Song of the Open Road," and I'm forced to confess he appears more at home out on the broad highway than in the bouroir. The program ended in rousing style with Vincent Youman's "Without a Son," with the chorus, the orchestra and Melton all contributing. If you like a lot of bounce and noise on your musical show, this has got it.

Incidentally, "Harvest of Stars" has a bit of saluting things. The other night it was road builders. The history for road building in America was dramatized fulsomely from the first rutted wagon tracks to the Merritt Parkway. It must have seemed like a good idea to the sponsor, who builds trucks.

Thin Man Moved To Wednesday; Olympic Preview

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, July 27.—The Thin Man now is back in the detecting business. He's given up the scripts in which that idea was eliminated so that he could broadcast at 9 o'clock. Now he's on the air at 10:30, which is an hour after the NBC curfew against crime stories.

But in getting the new time, he had to move to Wednesday nights, which was done last week at the usual network last minute. As surmised, he is still the NBC network and still a summer fill for Eddie Cantor. Les Tremayne and Claudia Morgan play the leads, which are identified on the air as Nick Charles and the Mrs.

The Olympics games will soon be getting under way, and all the sports broadcasts are taunting their attention in that London direction. In this connection CBS at 5 p. m. will have a preview broadcast from the British capital.

The On Trial courtroom type of forum on ABC now 10:30 Wednesday nights, is continuing its discussion of the party platforms.

Tex and Jinx, going along very well with their summer series as the summer fill for Duffy's, will have a couple of young film folk as the guests. They are Jane Powell and Elizabeth Taylor. They have just made a film based on the Date with Judy radio series. T and J are on NBC at 9, just in case you've forgotten.

Market Greets Truman's Message With Fairly Substantial Advance

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP)—The stock market greeted President Truman's message to Congress today with a slow but fairly substantial advance. Closing prices were up fractions to nearly two points and a little under the day's best levels.

Wright Aeronautical Corporation stock provided the only market action to amount to anything. The stock scored a new high at one time with a jump of more than 14 points and wound up with a tidy 14-point advance at 92. The advance followed word that directors had voted two dividends of $5 a share each. About 97 per cent of the company's stock is owned by Curtiss-Wright.

Higher by around a point or more were United States Steel at 80½, Youngstown Sheet 83, General Motors 63⅜, Chrysler 62⅝, Studebaker 26¼, Montgomery Ward 57, J. I. Case 45½, Kennecott Copper 49, American Can 85½, Westinghouse Electric 27½, du Pont 183⅞, American Woolen 55¾, Santa Fe 111, New York Central 17¾, Southern Pacific 57¾, Southern Railway, Sinclair Oil 27⅜, Standard Oil (NJ) 82, and Richfield Oil 42¼.

Central of Georgia consolidated 5s advanced two points to 73 and St. Louis and San Francisco 4½s moved ahead a point to 61. Other bonds advancing included Southern Railway 6½s, Pacific Telephone 2¾s and Rio Grande income 4½s.

Chicago and Eastern Illinois 3¾s fell 2½ to 76⅝ and Central New York Power 3s dropped 2¼ to 100¾. Other losers included Great Northern 3½s, International Great Northern 5s of 1956, series C, and Pacific Gas and Electric 3s.

Radio in Review

By JOHN CROSBY

Piano Quartet and Melton

I approached the First Piano Quartet with the naive enthusiasm of the non-expert, and before I get any further, I'd better warn you that you'll find more scholarly criticism on the music page. Here you'll get only the lay opinion, which is another way of saying ignorance.

John Crosby

The First Piano Quartet, the only organization of its kind, is composed of four concert pianists — Adam Garner, native of Poland; Vee Padwa, who was born in Moscow; Frank Mittler, who hails from Vienna, and Edward Edson, who first saw the light of day in Chicago. These four disparate backgrounds have been fused into a musical organization as delicate and harmonious as the dream of a world state, a metaphor which shall not be labored any further. With the exception of a few obscure works, there is no musical literature for four pianos, such an organization being considered beyond the ream of probability, so these musicians have had to produce their own. They have done so with imagination and, what is more important, discretion. After all, there are some things four pianos shouldn't monkey around with.

Since my competence as a critic of even one piano, much less four, is somewhat suspect, I shall pass hurriedly over the quartet's technical skill, and plunge into their program. You'll find, of course, a good deal of the masters of piano composition—Chopin, Debussy, Grieg—but also a number of things which were never intended primarily for piano. Their superb arrangement of Wagner's "Libestod," for example, is something I shall not soon forget. Apparently a number of other people feel the same way, for they have repeated it several times.

The impulse toward the exhibition of sheer razzle-dazzle piano virtuosity is powerful in even one pianist, and in four pianists it's apparently irresistible. At least once in every program, the boys demonstrate how fast they can get around the keyboard and I must admit they are not only agile, but wonderfully evenly matched.

The emphasis, however, is largely on melodic harmony, and I'm happy to report that the arrangers are careful not to hammer your ears off with the accumulated power of four instruments. Incidentally, the quartet pays its respects to the moderns as well as the classics—Virgil Thomson and Abram Chasins being two who come easily to mind.

If you are as bewitched, bothered and bewildered by pianos as I am, I think you'll find this program about as good as radio ever gets. The First Piano Quartet is on twice a week (N. B. C. Sundays at 2 p. m. E. D. T. and Mondays at 8 p. m. E. D. T.).

To pass from the sublime to James Melton, let's consider "Harvest of Stars," which is on C. B. S. (9:30 p. m. E. D. T. Wednesdays). This is a spirited musical program in which M. Melton is assisted by Frank Black and his large orchestra, a chorus and, usually a guest singer of some sort. I can think of no more fitting way to describe it than to run over a single program.

The other night Mr. Melton, in rich tenor, embraced — perhaps tackled is the word I'm groping for — "Amour, Amour," a song better suited to the Milwaukee gallicism of Hildegarde. It was quite an experience for all of us. Amour under the lash of Mr. Melton's rough Irish tongue, takes on the appearance of a gay but rather exhausting wrestling match, which isn't, I'm sure, what the lyricists had in mind exactly.

From there Melton went into a duet with a young lady named Nancy Carr, whose penetrating but somewhat stilted soprano vied wieli enough with Melton's bracing tenor in "People Will Think We're In Love." Love gets tossed around like an adagio dancer on this show. Melton then bounded into "The Song of the Open Road," and I'm forced to confess he appears more at home out on the broad highway than in the boudoir. The program ended in rousing style with Vincent Youman's "Without a Son," with the chorus, the orchestra and Melton all contributing. If you like a lot of bounce and noise on your musical show, this has got it.

Incidentally, "Harvest of Stars" has a bit of saluting things. The other night it was road builders. The history for road building in America was dramatized fulsomely from the first rutted wagon tracks to the Merritt Parkway. It must have seemed like a good idea to the sponsor, who builds trucks.

Thin Man Moved To Wednesday; Olympic Preview

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, July 27.—The Thin Man now is back in the detecting business. He's given up the scripts in which that idea was eliminated so that he could broadcast at 9 o'clock. Now he's on the air at 10:30, which is an hour after the NBC curfew against crime stories.

But in getting the new time, he had to move to Wednesday nights, which was done last week at the usual network last minute. As surmised, he is still the NBC network and still a summer fill for Eddie Cantor. Les Tremayne and Claudia Morgan play the leads, which are identified on the air as Nick Charles and the Mrs.

The Olympics games will soon be getting under way, and all the sports broadcasts are slanting their attention in that direction. In this connection CBS at 5 p. m. will have a preview broadcast from the British capital.

Tex and Jinx, going along very well with their summer series as the summer fill for Duffy's, will have a couple of young film folk as the guests. They are Jane Powell and Elizabeth Taylor. They have just made a film based on the Date with Judy radio series. T and J are on NBC at 9, just in case you've forgotten.

Market Greets Truman's Message With Fairly Substantial Advance

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP)—The stock market greeted President Truman's message to Congress today with a slow but fairly substantial advance. Closing prices were up fractions to nearly two points and a little under the day's best levels.

Wright Aeronautical Corporation stock provided the only market action to amount to anything. The stock scored a new high at one time with a jump of more than 14 points and wound up with a tidy 14-point advance at 92. The advance followed word that directors had voted two dividends of $5 a share each. About 97 per cent of the company's stock is owned by Curtiss-Wright.

Higher by around a point or more were United States Steel at 80½, Youngstown Sheet 83, General Motors 63⅜, Chrysler 62⅝, Studebaker 26¼, Montgomery Ward 57, J. I. Case 45½, Kennecott Copper 49, American Can 85½, Westinghouse Electric 27½, du Pont 183⅞, American Woolen 55¼, Santa Fe 111, New York Central 17⅜, Southern Pacific 57¼, Southern Railway, Sinclair Oil 27⅝, Standard Oil (NJ) 82, and Richfield Oil 42⅛.

The bond market showed strengthening tendencies in its closing minutes and many issues erased some of their earlier losses.

United States government bonds were off fractionally in over-the counter dealings. Australian loans moved ahead a little on the foreign dollar list.

Central of Georgia consolidated 5s advanced two points to 73 and St. Louis and San Francisco 4½s moved ahead a point to 61. Other bonds advancing included Southern Railway 6½s, Pacific Telephone 2¾s and Rio Grande income 4½s.

Chicago and Eastern Illinois 3¾s fell 2½ to 76½ and Central New York Power 3s dropped 2¼ to 100¾.

Tucker Scouts Get Camp Site

PARSONS — Grantly L. Wilson, scoutmaster of Troop 97, Parsons, stated the Parsons troop and Troop 92, Hambleton, have received a special Use Permit from the Government to the one acre tract of land at Elk Lick, near Hambleton, known as Tract No. 1, lying within the Fernow Experimental forest.

The log cabin on the land is also leased to the Scouts and will be used for winter camping as soon as necessary repairs are made and the cabin is equipped. The cabin and grounds will be used by all scouts of the area when ready.

Members of Troop 97 Boy Scouts of Parsons will have a course in the use of firearms in the near future, Wilson said.

Scouts will have a rifle range and will be given instructions through the courtesy of Sheriff D. E. Crosten, Parsons, Thomas State Police and Tucker county conservation officers.

Tenderfoot scouts will be taught the proper handling of guns, rules and safety factions. Second class scouts will be instructed in firing of a gun, and how to handle a gun in the forest. First class scouts will be taught how to tear down, clean and repair simple damages to a gun, to shoot according to the American Rifle Association rules and to pass the merit badge test in marksmanship.

Instructors will stress the danger of guns in the hands of unexperienced boys and the damages done by them.

Soapy scrub

Elevated rest

WANT to swap a summer-weary limp for a bouncy step? Brush up on hot-weather foot care. First step is a daily scrub, using rich lather; a brush that makes feet tingle from heel to toes. After you dunk your feet, dry thoroughly and sprinkle on foot powder, especially between toes. Keep your feet in finer fettle with exercise. After you bathe your feet, stand on a towel and pleat it with your toes. Or pick up a pencil with your toes. Either exercise is good for what ails tired feet. Take the burden off your feet as much as possible. When you lie down for a few minutes' rest, hoist your feet higher than your head. See how happily these down-trodden members react to this elevating treatment.

Duffy Memorial Church Will Reopen Sunday

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—Regular services at the Duffy Memorial Methodist Church will be resumed Sunday, August 1. The church has been closed during the past two weeks while undergoing repairs.

The interior of the church has been repainted and redecorated. All the woodwork has been refinished and floors refinished. The public is cordially invited to attend Sunday.

Board Extends Potomac Park Discount Date

An order was passed yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners extending to August 31 the discount date for the special assessment of property owners in Potomac Park. The action was taken, Board members explained, because the special tax plan, provided under a special act of Legislature, was not effective in time to have bills sent out at the regular period.

The special assessment for the Potomac Park area amounts to 15 cents per $100 of real estate and the total assessable basis for the community is $591,390 on 375 property owners.

The money realized from the special tax will be used for street lights installed in the community last December and since then maintained through dues paid by the Potomac Park Improvement Association. The special tax monies can also be used for fire hydrants in protection against fire.

The money collected in the special tax account will not be paid over to the Citizens Committee of the community until a proper bond has been furnished by John C. Cook, committee treasurer.

Officials of the Potomac Park group are also planning further improvements such as sewage.

The group has been able to obtain gas lines for the section. It was organized several years ago with Milton J. Dick the first president.

DEATHS

The body will be in the Charles R. Bast Funeral Home, Hancock, until 1 p. m., Friday. It will then be moved to the Evangelical Church, Sphores Crossroads, W. Va., where a service will be held at 2 p. m. with Rev. Vernon Keesecker, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

Celanese Trying To Start Strike, Aldridge Says

Allan Vigorously Denies Accusation

Playford Aldridge, president of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, asserted last night that the Celanese Corporation of America is "deliberately trying to provoke a strike at the Amcelle plant."

The charge was vigorously denied by Edward R. Allan, personnel superintendent, who declared, "There's not a figment of truth in the whole statement."

The TWUA official said he believed the company's purpose in arbitrarily handing out two-day suspensions to five workers in the filtration department within the past week is to provoke a work stoppage, knowing the National Labor Relations Board will not conduct an election in a plant while a strike is in progress.

The company, Aldridge said, arbitrarily set two hours for assignments in the filtration department which has never had a work load.

In the past, Aldridge continued, whenever a new job or change in method, process or procedure was contemplated, it has been customary to sit down and discuss the change with union officials before placing it into effect. If a difference of opinion arose, an effort was made to iron out the differences.

Aldridge said top supervision of the Amcelle plant has been acquainted with the grievance but has not intervened.

Denies Charge

"There is no truth whatever in the statement that we are trying to foment trouble," Allan said.

If there are grievances, there is a method of taking care of them to the top level and to arbitration if that fails, the company official said.

The grievance to which the union is referring, he explained, has not gone beyond the department level.

The contract provides that in event a matter is not adjusted with the department superintendent, it shall be referred to the general committee of the union and the plant manager or his representative. If the matter is not settled at that stage, the matter may be submitted to arbitration for final disposal.

If there are grievances, they can be processed according to the contract, Allan concluded.

Method Is Changed

Aldridge said the company instituted a change in the filtration department on July 14 which involved a change in the method of existing operation in violation of the contract and arbitrarily set two hours for the job.

He said the firm violated the contract in failing to co-operate with the union in setting up the work load of the department.

Despite the obstacles, Aldridge said, the workers involved have notified the union they intend to stay on the job so as not to violate the contract or place in jeapordy the union security election planned here next week by the NLRB.

Legion Plans To Promote Jobs For Unemployed Vets

A meeting of district American Legion post representatives, civic leaders and public officials of Western Maryland, and representatives of the Maryland Employment Service will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at the home of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, Frostburg, according to James E. Kenney, Westernport, Mountain District Legion vice commander.

The meeting has been called for the purpose of formulating a program or considering means of helping alleviate the unemployment situation in the area.

Kenney said unemployment is increasing in Western Maryland, particularly among veterans and handicapped veterans. Jobs are needed for several hundred men and women, it is claimed.

Among those expected to be present representing the Employment Service, Kenney said, are Patrick J. Carroll and C. William Spangler, of the local Employment office, and Grafton Brown, Baltimore.

Kenney said representatives of all Legion posts are urged to attend and it is hoped a program of publicity and other activity can be worked out to help these jobless veterans obtain employment

Election Plans To Be Aired To TWUA Committee

Victory Predicted In Union Shop Poll

Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, has scheduled four committee meetings today and tomorrow to acquaint the 497 union committee members of their job in the coming union security election, according to notices posted in the union hall.

The meetings will be held at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. in the union hall.

Playford Aldridge, union president, said the union committeemen will lead the drive to win the union security election planned for the some 7,500 hourly rated employes of the Amcelle plant next Monday through Friday by the National Labor Relations Board.

The only significant change in the arrangements for the election is that the tent which was to be placed in the Frostburg Parking Lot will be moved to the Main Parking Lot on the north side of the union booth, the union said.

Will Aid Voting

The change, the union said, will facilitate the voting since the polling place will be convenient for about half of the workers.

Aldridge said the refusal of the company to co-operate in the election has given the union members a determination to win which could not have been accomplished by 50 organizers.

"There's no doubt in my mind," Aldridge said, "that we'll win with a greater majority than if we had had the consent election."

Can't Prejudice Case

The company last week explained it tried to get the NLRB to rule on the legality of such an election in Maryland before it was conducted and said it was not the purpose of the company to make the situation awkward.

The firm pointed out it is helping to make arrangements for the election such as the distribution of identification slips to employes and location of the polling places.

The company, Edward R. Allan, superintendent of personnel said, has done all it can to assist in the matter without prejudicing its case.

Schmidt Manager Wins Promotion

Harold A. MacMannis, 779 MacDonald Terrace, manager of the Cumberland plant of the Schmidt Baking Company since 1936, has been promoted to manger of sales for company plants in Cumberland, Johnstown, Pa., and Martinsburg, W. Va.

MacMannis will leave tomorrow for Baltimore. where he will work out of the company's home office.

His successor as plant manager here will be Kenton B. Farrell, a former Schmidt employe who has been serving as manager of a soft drink manufacturing plant in Harrisburg, Pa.

MacMannis began his career with the Schmidt Baking Company 18 years ago as a salesman. He is a member of the Elks and Moose lodges here.

He will be accompanied to Baltimore by his wife and daughter, Kathryn, who was graduated from Allegany High School this year. Another daughter, Mrs. Charles Beckwith, resides in Arlington, Va.

A brother, J. Edgar MacMannis, Frostburg, will be host at a farewell dinner tonight at Big Savage Inn.

Celanese Contract Meeting Set Today

James A. Holden, Federal conciliator, has arranged a contract negotiating session between the Celanese Corporation of America and Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, today at 2 p. m., it was learned last night.

The conciliator made no effort to arrange a contract session here last week. The last session, held July 15, ended with an agreement that both parties would meet whenever Holden requested another conference.

The conciliator at that time reported "some progress" including "a tentative agreement on the important issue of the check off of union dues." Discussions are still deadlocked on the wage issue.

C. & P. Will Spend $197,000 In State

A $197,000 construction and improvement program was authorized yesterday by the Board of Directors of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City for facilities throughout Maryland.

The new program will bring total improvement expenditures for the year to $19,367,000, according to W. G. Morrel, vice president and general manager of C. and P.

The directors also approved an expenditure of approximately $41,000 for the conversion of more than 3,500 main telephones from manual to dial operation in the areas served by the Wolfe central office.

One Enlistment Remains In July For 18-Year-Old

Applicants Must Sign Waiting List

Only one more one-year enlistment for an 18-year-old is open in the July quota, First Lt. George J. Gocke, in charge of local Army recruiting, announced yesterday.

One such enlistment was reported yesterday. Frank Junior Ravenscroft, 18-year-old Westernport youth, signed as a private for one year in the Army of the United States.

From now on, Lt. Gocke said, all 18-year-olds wishing to enlist in the AUS or the Air Force of the United States must apply at the Baltimore Street recruiting station or the main office, Room 204, Postoffice Building, to have their names placed on a waiting list.

When the list reaches the equivalent of one and one-half times the monthly quota, no more names will be accepted for that month.

If the applicant is not called during the month in which he applied, he must reapply at the beginning of the following month to have his name again placed on the waiting list.

Lt. Gocke said the normal weekly quota for Cumberland is 14 for the AUS and two for the AFUS. He explained the number of names on the waiting list will exceed the quota to allow for rejections.

The commanding officer also announced that non-veterans over 19 and under 26 years of age may enlist in the Regular Army unassigned for a period of 21 months, which would be equivalent to the length of active service if they were drafted.

A Navy veteran, William K. McCauley, Davis, W. Va., enlisted yesterday for three years as a corporal in the Regular Army unassigned.

Others enlisting were Galen Calvin Whittaker, Antioch, W. Va., private, three years, Armored Force; Homer William Walker, 570 Newton Street, Keyser, W. Va., private, three years, Armored Force; William Lawrence Boyer, 452 Waverly Terrace, private, three years, First Cavalry Division; and William Thomas Hanna, Westernport, private, three years, Corps of Engineers.

The 36-piece band will be in charge of Lt. Commissioner Albert Chesham. Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert Rose, Baltimore, divisional commanders, will accompany the band in its tour through Maryland and West Virginia.

The noted band will visit the principal Salvation Army centers in the division in the interest of music, Major Wall said.

The Toronto band will also participate in the 50th anniversary of the Salvation Army in Wheeling, W. Va., September 18 and 19.

During the coming tour, the band will present night concerts in Wheeling, Parkersburg, Clarksburg and Fairmont, W. Va.; Cumberland, Winchester, Va., and Baltimore.

The group will also stop en route at Weirton, Wellsburg, Grafton, Morgantown, Hagerstown and Martinsburg and present brief concerts at those points.

Major Wall said the band will arrive here the afternoon of Thursday, September 23. A civic reception and dinner will be held here for the members of the band under the auspices of the Salvation Army officers and Advisory Board preceding the night concert here, Major Wall said.

The concert, featuring traditional Salvation Army music, will include soloes, duets and specialty numbers in addition to numbers by the full band.

Weisenmiller Installed Head Of Legion Post

Housing Secretary Reports On Survey

Paul C. Weisenmiller took office last night as commander of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, with James E. Kenney, Westernport, district vice commander, as installing officer.

Weisenmiller succeeds T. R. "Pat" Farrell who was credited by the membership with a highly successful administration financially and from a standpoint of program.

The annual financial report, termed "the best ever read across the floor" by the new commander, showed all indebtedness of past administrations liquidated and a large sum invested in savings bonds. The membership gave Farrell, the retiring finance officer and house committee members a rising vote of appreciation.

Installed with the new commander were Howard M. Spiker, first vice commander; H. Raymond Snyder, second vice commander; Russell C. Paupe, adjutant; Charles E. Burke, finance officer; Edward J. Rider, historian; Paul W. Weisenmiller, chaplain; John R. Neff, sergeant-at-arms; Thomas R. Farrell, Wesley H. Abrams and Vincent P. Inram, executive committee.

James Lazatti, executive secretary of the Maryland Veterans Housing Commission, was a guest speaker and outlined the program underway in the state to provide legislation to alleviate the housing shortage.

Lazatti told the Legionaires that a survey conducted in the county among veterans has served as a model for similar surveys in 14 counties in the state. All of this accumulated data is being prepared for presentation to the commission, he explained. After the commission studies the report and determines the need, the facts will be presented to Governor William Preston Lane with a recommendation.

Lazatti said it is proposed to have a bill prepared for presentation to the state General Assembly, designed to aid the housing situation veterans in the state are facing. Maryland has a very definite and acute housing shortage, he declared, and expressed the opinion that houses for veterans will release dwelling units to other citizens thereby helping everyone.

Charles Sitter Tells Legionnaires Of Benefits Of Boys' State Program

Commander Names New Committees

Outlining the program at American Legion Boys State, and plans for the Boys Forum in Washington, D. C., next week, Charles Sitter, who filled the offices of mayor, governor and senator at Fort Meade two weeks ago, told members of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, last night, "You have embarked on a most worthwhile project."

Sitter, who is being boomed by his political faction for President, said boys attending Boys State learn by actual working experience the functions of government. He said, "I learned more in 10 days than in all the 11 years I have studied history and kindred subjects in school."

The young 17-year-old representative of the city told of elaborate plans already underway to boost his candidacy for President. He said he is receiving support from other boy senators and the campaign thus far "looks good."

He urged the Legion to continue its activities in the Boys State program and said he hopes that in years to come many boys from Cumberland and Allegany County will be given similar opportunities. He told the post membership that he hopes to return next year as one of the assistant leaders at Maryland Boys State.

Newsmen Will Get Preview Today Of Conservation Field Day Project

FREDERICK, July 27 (AP)—About 50 newspapermen and magazine writers will get a preview tomorrow of the project planned for Maryland Conservation Field Day August 18 on a nearby farm.

The journalists will be given a tour of the 175-acre farm of Mrs. Nellie Thrasher near Jefferson, Md., where about 500 farmers will combine their efforts to accomplish in one day what would require an owner four to five years to complete.

A 22-cow dairy barn will be built, the Maryland Inland Game and Fish Commission will establish a wild-life area, a one-acre pond will be constructed, 113 acres of pasture will receive lime and fertilizer, 75 acres will be strip cropped, and all old inside fences will be renewed and nearly 600 rods of new fence constructed.

The newsmen will be taken over the entire grounds and shown what improvements will be made and why.

Newsprint Cost To Increase August 1

Newsprint will cost $4 more per ton, effective August 1, the Times and Alleganian Company was advised yesterday by the International Paper Company.

Other large newsprint companies, announcing a similar boost, said the raise was necessitated by increases in labor costs, fuel oil, logs and transportation.

The latest increase is the fifth since September, 1946, and the second this year, a boost of $6 per ton having been placed into effect last January.

In all during the past 10 years the cost of newsprint, the paper on which Times-News papers are printed, has more than doubled. A ton of paper in 1938 cost $48.

Many Long Range Goals In Sight, Price Declares

Cites Increase In Area Employment

Many of the long range objectives of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce are now within reach, Henry W. Price, president, said last night in his report at the annual membership meeting of the organization.

Highlights of the report included plans for flood protection, which is now getting underway, the approval for completion of the Savage River Dam and the progress of the Cumberland Municipal Airport.

The past 10 years, he added, have seen a marked growth of employment. In the major industries of this area, there were 17,598 employed in April, 1948, as contrasted to the 10,972 employed in April, 1938.

Retail trade here, he pointed out, is currently running at the rate of 285 per cent, according to the Sales Management index.

Some Problems Remain

Some problems, he said, still remain, among them the further development of industry, improved traffic and parking facilities, a revision of the city charter and a broad recreational program.

The group, Price said, will continue to promote these objectives with the assistance of public officials, civic-minded organizations and citizens.

Six Directors Named

Six directors were named at the meeting held last night at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. They are:

Edward R. Allan, Franklin H. Ankeney, George L. Buchanan, George F. Hazelwood, all former directors, and Frederick W. Eller and Joseph M. Naughton.

Ankeney, who is treasurer of the Chamber, reported the group operated within its budget and ended the year with a comfortable surplus.

New Members Added

The names of 32 new members were presented to the group by James R. Kendall, assistant manager. The present membership, he said, is 502.

In a discussion of the traffic and parking situation here, Miles G. Thompson, chairman of the highways and transportation committee, urged the group to continue its efforts to secure the proposed George Street parking lot.

Plans for that location, he said, should not be dropped since it offers a natural location. The site, he explained, could be developed without too much cost and would produce a satisfactory revenue since it could provide parking for about 800 cars.

Thompson reviewed the present status of plans to alleviate traffic conditions and of highway improvement, including the work of the Confederation of Western Maryland Communities.

Is Selling Job

The industrial development of Cumberland is a "selling job" and a project in which the entire community must participate, Howard M. Smith, chairman of the Industrial Promotion Committee, said.

Everyone, he added, must emphasize the favorable aspects of Cumberland and try to develop interest in them.

Finance Commissioner William Buckholtz, William C. Walsh Adolph Blunk, Charles S. Catherman, Jr., William L. Wilson and Henry Holzshu were among the civic leaders who participated in the general discussion on industrial development.

The group, Harold W. Smith, manager of the Chamber of Commerce reported, is determined to find out what must be done to promote the industrial growth of this area.

Local Firm Gets Order From Africa

Recently, however, the Ankeney Company, Inc., 27 North Centre Street, received an order for stationery supplies from Rev. L. O. Shirley, acting business agent of the Evangelical United Brethren Mission at Freetown, Sierra Leone, Africa.

Rev. Shirley was a customer of the firm when he was serving pastorates in Winchester, Va., and Gerardstown, W. Va.

In an accompanying letter he explained that the supplies were unobtainable in the section of Africa where he is stationed. He added that he is enjoying his present work but that he would prefer active evangelistic and school work.

Ankeney's reported that the shipment is on its way to Freetown.

City Hall To Close

Because of the observance of "Cumberland Day" today at Fairgo, all City Hall offices will be closed at noon.

Local Briefs

Dr. Richard C. Leonard, chief of the division of oral hygiene, State Department of Health, conferred here yesterday with local Health Department officials.

Miss Helen Rafferty, county supervisor of public health nurses, returned Monday after spending a three weeks' vacation in Syracuse, N. Y.

Mother, Son Acquitted

Contending a disputed plow belonged to them, Mrs. Margaret Brotemarkle and her son, Roy Brotemarkle, both of Bedford Road, were acquitted on larceny charges yesterday in Magistrates Court.

Authorities said James A. White preferred the charges, but the defendants explained the plow belonged to them originally.

Equity Suit

A bill of complaint was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Nora Pauline Lemaster against Charles Robert Lemaster.

Interstate Race Agreement Will Be Proposed

Reports On Barred Horses May Be Asked

The Maryland Racing Commission will be asked to seek a better working agreement between Maryland and out-of-state racing groups in reporting barred horses, as a result of the fatal accident at Fairgo, Joseph F. Flanagan, racing steward, said last night.

Flanagan, who conducted an investigation of Jockey Benny Leggett's death when he was thrown from Alpine Boy, said he will suggest that the state racing group attempt to work out an agreement that will result in barred horses being reported by other states.

Alpine Boy, the 12-year-old gelding that was barred at Charles Town, W. Va., earlier this season, was entered in the fourth race Saturday at Fairgo without officials knowing of the West Virginia action, Flanagan said.

The horse, which local officials admit is blind in the right eye, was described as blind in both eyes by Dr. W. E. Trussell, Charles Town veterinarian, who ruled the horse off the Charles Town track.

Issue Signed Statement

Dr. F. M. Keller and Dr. James A. B. Stewart, Maryland Racing Commission veterinarians at the local track, yesterday issued a signed statement at the request of Flanagan which read:

"This is to certify that the horse, Alpine Boy, bay gelding, age 12 years, owned by Dr. J. Gross and trained by R. Albright, stabled at Fairgo, Cumberland, Md., was examined on Saturday, July 24, 1948, prior to the fourth race and found fit to race.

"On July 27, 1948, at the request of Mr. Joseph Flanagan, steward representing the Maryland Racing Commission, the above named horse was re-examined and no apparent physical change was noted."

In commenting on yesterday's investigation, Flanagan said the stewards questioned jockeys who were mounted in the fourth race as well as men who captured the horse after it threw Leggett.

"Unfortunately, we knew nothing of the Charles Town action," Flanagan said, and therefore accepted the entry on the basis of its 1947 performance in Maryland, when it finished in the money nine out of 12 times without giving any indication that it was a dangerous horse.

The horse was barred from all Maryland tracks Saturday after Leggett was thrown, and Flanagan said the report of the veterinarians will in no way change the stewards' ruling.

"Alpine Boy was barred from Maryland tracks because he is deemed a dangerous horse as the result of actions in the fourth race Saturday," Flanagan said, adding "It will be barred for all time."

Struck By Jockey

Alpine Boy with Leggett up broke slow in the race, according to Flanagan, and was then struck two or three times by the jockey who was holding his whip in the right hand.

This action may have caused the horse to steer left toward the rail in an effort to run away from the whip, Flanagan said. The horse crashed into the rail and threw Leggett shortly after the race started, he added.

"Had we known of the action at Charles Town regarding the horse," Flanagan stated, "there is no doubt that a more thorough investigation of his record would have resulted."

However, the horse had a good record on Maryland tracks in 1947 and it was on this that the gelding was admitted to the race at Fairgo, he explained.

Flanagan said he saw the horse running in many of the 1947 races and declared there was nothing to indicate it was a bad horse, as the Saturday action brought forth.

Case Is Closed

Written reports of the investigation have been mailed to the three members of the racing commission, according to Flanagan, who said that "unless some new angle turns up the case is closed. Unfortunately that is all we can do about it," he added.

Flanagan said he expects to make a verbal report to the racing commission later in the week and the interstate working agreement recommendation will probably be made at that time.

It has never been the custom of racing associations to report barred horses, although trainers and owners are now required under penalty of heavy fine to report "nerved and bleeding horses," according to Flanagan.

Efforts of a Baltimore News-Post reporter yesterday to have the horse examined by an impartial physician were blocked by Maryland State Police, who, acting on orders because of the heavy traffic, refused to permit Dr. Frank U. Davis to enter the racing ground during the heavy flow of traffic from the track shortly after 6 p. m. last night.

The reporter said that he will try again today to secure a physician to check Alpine Boy.

The examination has the full approval of local racing officials, they said.

Carloads Show Decrease

A total of 65,238 carloads were handled on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad during the weekending July 24. Of that number, 41,676 were loaded on line and 23,562 were received from connections.

The week's total shows a decrease as compared to carloads handled during the same period last year, which totaled 67,351.

The Weather

Yesterday was another warm day with mercury reaching 88 degrees above zero, just two points below Monday's 90. Minimum temperature reported yesterday was 56 with 66 reported at 8 a. m. Last night at 11 o'clock mercury stood at 74. There was just a trace of rainfall yesterday morning. Late last night the weatherman predicted considerable cloudiness in the area with temperature warm and humid today. Scattered showers may be expected.

Celanese Trying To Start Strike, Aldridge Says

Allan Vigorously Denies Accusation

Playford Aldridge, president of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, asserted last night that the Celanese Corporation of America is "deliberately trying to provoke a strike at the Amcelle plant."

The charge was vigorously denied by Edward R. Allan, personnel superintendent, who declared, "There's not a figment of truth in the whole statement."

The TWUA official said he believed the company's purpose in arbitrarily handing out two-day suspensions to five workers in the filtration department within the past week is to provoke a work stoppage, knowing the National Labor Relations Board will not conduct an election in a plant while a strike is in progress.

The company, Aldridge said, arbitrarily set two hours for assignments in the filtration department which has never had a work load.

In the past, Aldridge continued, whenever a new job or change in method, process or procedure was contemplated, it has been customary to sit down and discuss the change with union officials before placing it into effect. If a difference of opinion arose, an effort was made to iron out the differences.

Aldridge said top supervision of the Amcelle plant has been acquainted with the grievance but has not intervened.

Denies Charge

"There is no truth whatever in the statement that we are trying to foment trouble," Allan said.

If there are grievances, there is a method of taking care of them to the top level and to arbitration if that fails, the company official said.

The grievance to which the union is referring, he explained, has not gone beyond the department level.

The contract provides that in event a matter is not adjusted with the department superintendent, it shall be referred to the general committee of the union and the plant manager or his representative. If the matter is not settled at that stage, the matter may be submitted to arbitration for final disposal.

If there are grievances, they can be processed according to the contract, Allan concluded.

Method Is Changed

Aldridge said the company instituted a change in the filtration department on July 14 which involved a change in the method of existing operation in violation of the contract and arbitrarily set two hours for the job.

He said the firm violated the contract in failing to co-operate with the union in setting up the work load of the department.

Despite the obstacles, Aldridge said, the workers involved have notified the union they intend to stay on the job so as not to violate the contract or place in jeopordy the union security election planned here next week by the NLRB.

Legion Plans To Promote Jobs For Unemployed Vets

A meeting of district American Legion post representatives, civic leaders and public officials of Western Maryland, and representatives of the Maryland Employment Service will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at the home of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, Frostburg, according to James E. Kenney, Westernport, Mountain District Legion vice commander.

The meeting has been called for the purpose of formulating a program or considering means of helping alleviate the unemployment situation in the area.

Kenney said unemployment is increasing in Western Maryland, particularly among veterans and handicapped veterans. Jobs are needed for several hundred men and women, it is claimed.

Among those expected to be present representing the Employment Service, Kenney said, are Patrick J. Carroll and C. William Spangler, of the local Employment office, and Grafton Brown, Baltimore.

Kenney said representatives of all Legion posts are urged to attend and it is hoped a program of publicity and other activity can be worked out to help these jobless veterans obtain employment

Election Plans To Be Aired To TWUA Committee

Victory Predicted In Union Shop Poll

Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, has scheduled four committee meetings today and tomorrow to acquaint the 497 union committee members of their job in the coming union security election, according to notices posted in the union hall.

The meetings will be held at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. in the union hall.

Playford Aldridge, union president, said the union committeemen will lead the drive to win the union security election planned for the some 7,500 hourly rated employes of the Amcelle plant next Monday through Friday by the National Labor Relations Board.

The only significant change in the arrangements for the election is that the tent which was to be placed in the Frostburg Parking Lot will be moved to the Main Parking Lot on the north side of the union booth, the union said.

Will Aid Voting

The change, the union said, will facilitate the voting since the polling place will be convenient for about half of the workers.

Aldridge said the refusal of the company to co-operate in the election has given the union members a determination to win which could not have been accomplished by 50 organizers.

"There's no doubt in my mind," Aldridge said, "that we'll win with a greater majority than if we had had the consent election."

Can't Prejudice Case

The company last week explained it tried to get the NLRB to rule on the legality of such an election in Maryland before it was conducted and said it was not the purpose of the company to make the situation awkward.

The firm pointed out it is helping to make arrangements for the election such as the distribution of identification slips to employes and location of the polling places.

The company, Edward R. Allan, superintendent of personnel said, has done all it can to assist in the matter without prejudicing its case.

MacMannis began his career with the Schmidt Baking Company 18 years ago as a salesman. He is a member of the Elks and Moose lodges here.

He will be accompanied to Baltimore by his wife and daughter, Kathryn, who was graduated from Allegany High School this year. Another daughter, Mrs. Charles Beckwith, resides in Arlington, Va.

Celanese Contract Meeting Set Today

James A. Holden, Federal conciliator, has arranged a contract negotiating session between the Celanese Corporation of America and Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, today at 2 p. m., it was learned last night.

The conciliator made no effort to arrange a contract session here last week. The last session, held July 15, ended with an agreement that both parties would meet whenever Holden requested another conference.

The conciliator at that time reported "some progress" including "a tentative agreement on the important issue of the check off of union dues." Discussions are still deadlocked on the wage issue.

One Enlistment Remains In July For 18-Year-Old

Applicants Must Sign Waiting List

Only one more one-year enlistment for an 18-year-old is open in the July quota, First Lt. George J. Gocke, in charge of local Army recruiting, announced yesterday.

One such enlistment was reported yesterday. Frank Junior Ravenscroft, 18-year-old Westernport youth, signed as a private for one year in the Army of the United States.

From now on, Lt. Gocke said, all 18-year-olds wishing to enlist in the AUS or the Air Force of the United States must apply at the Baltimore Street recruiting station or the main office, Room 204, Postoffice Building, to have their names placed on a waiting list.

When the list reaches the equivalent of one and one-half times the monthly quota, no more names will be accepted for that month.

If the applicant is not called during the month in which he applied, he must reapply at the beginning of the following month to have his name again placed on the waiting list.

Lt. Gocke said the normal weekly quota for Cumberland is 14 for the AUS and two for the AFUS. He explained the number of names on the waiting list will exceed the quota to allow for rejections.

The commanding officer also announced that non-veterans over 19 and under 26 years of age may enlist in the Regular Army unassigned for a period of 21 months, which would be equivalent to the length of active service if they were drafted.

A Navy veteran, William K. McCauley, Davis, W. Va., enlisted yesterday for three years as a corporal in the Regular Army unassigned.

Others enlisting were Galen Calvin Whittaker, Antioch, W. Va., private, three years, Armored Force; Homer William Walker, 570 Newton Street, Keyser, W. Va., private, three years, Armored Force; William Lawrence Boyer, 452 Waverly Terrace, private, three years, First Cavalry Division; and William Thomas Hanna, Westernport, private, three years, Corps of Engineers.

The 36-piece band will be in charge of Lt. Commissioner Albert Chesham. Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert Rose, Baltimore, divisional commanders, will accompany the band in its tour through Maryland and West Virginia.

The noted band will visit the principal Salvation Army centers in the division in the interest of music, Major Wall said.

The Toronto band will also participate in the 50th anniversary of the Salvation Army in Wheeling, W. Va., September 18 and 19.

During the coming tour, the band will present night concerts in Wheeling, Parkersburg, Clarksburg and Fairmont, W. Va.; Cumberland, Winchester, Va., and Baltimore.

The group will also stop en route at Weirton, Wellsburg, Grafton, Morgantown, Hagerstown and Martinsburg and present brief concerts at those points.

Major Wall said the band will arrive here the afternoon of Thursday, September 23. A civic reception and dinner will be held here for the members of the band under the auspices of the Salvation Army officers and Advisory Board preceding the night concert here, Major Wall said.

The concert, featuring traditional Salvation Army music, will include soloes, duets and specialty numbers in addition to numbers by the full band.

Major Wall said the noted Canadian band has been in great demand since it is considered one of the best Salvation Army musical organizations in the world.

Weisenmiller Installed Head Of Legion Post

Housing Secretary Reports On Survey

Paul C. Weisenmiller took office last night as commander of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, with James E. Kenney, Westernport, district vice commander, as installing officer.

Weisenmiller succeeds T. R. "Pat" Farrell who was credited by the membership with a highly successful administration financially and from a standpoint of program.

The annual financial report, termed "the best ever read across the floor" by the new commander, showed all indebtedness of past administrations liquidated and a large sum invested in savings bonds. The membership gave Farrell, the retiring finance officer and house committee members a rising vote of appreciation.

Installed with the new commander were Howard M. Spiker, first vice commander; H. Raymond Snyder, second vice commander; Russell C. Paupe, adjutant; Charles E. Burke, finance officer; Edward J. Rider, historian; Paul W. Weisenmiller, chaplain; John R. Neff, sergeant-at-arms; Thomas R. Farrell, Wesley H. Abrams and Vincent P. Inram, executive committee.

James Lazatti, executive secretary of the Maryland Veterans Housing Commission, was a guest speaker and outlined the program underway in the state to provide legislation to alleviate the housing shortage.

Lazatti told the Legionaires that a survey conducted in the county among veterans has served as a model for similar surveys in 14 counties in the state. All of this accumulated data is being prepared for presentation to the commission, he explained. After the commission studies the report and determines the need, the facts will be presented to Governor William Preston Lane with a recommendation.

Lazatti said it is proposed to have a bill prepared for presentation to the state General Assembly, designed to aid the housing situation veterans in the state are facing. Maryland has a very definite and acute housing shortage, he declared, and expressed the opinion that houses for veterans will release dwelling units to other citizens thereby helping everyone.

Charles Sitter Tells Legionnaires Of Benefits Of Boys' State Program

Commander Names New Committees

Outlining the program at American Legion Boys State, and plans for the Boys Forum in Washington, D. C., next week, Charles Sitter, who filled the offices of mayor, governor and senator at Fort Meade two weeks ago, told members of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, last night, "You have embarked on a most worthwhile project."

Sitter, who is being boomed by his political faction for President, said boys attending Boys State learn by actual working experience the functions of government. He said, "I learned more in 10 days than in all the 11 years I have studied history and kindred subjects in school."

The young 17-year-old representative of the city told of elaborate plans already underway to boost his candidacy for President. He said he is receiving support from other boy senators and the campaign thus far "looks good."

He urged the Legion to continue its activities in the Boys State program and said he hopes that in years to come many boys from Cumberland and Allegany County will be given similar opportunities. He told the post membership that he hopes to return next year as one of the assistant leaders at Maryland Boys State.

Newsmen Will Get Preview Today Of Conservation Field Day Project

FREDERICK, July 27 (AP)—About 50 newspapermen and magazine writers will get a preview tomorrow of the project planned for Maryland Conservation Field Day August 18 on a nearby farm.

The journalists will be given a tour of the 175-acre farm of Mrs. Nellie Thrasher near Jefferson, Md., where about 500 farmers will combine their efforts to accomplish in one day what would require an owner four to five years to complete.

A 22-cow dairy barn will be built, the Maryland Inland Game and Fish Commission will establish a wild-life area, a one-acre pond will be constructed, 113 acres of pasture will receive lime and fertilizer, 75 acres will be strip cropped, and all old inside fences will be renewed and nearly 600 rods of new fence constructed.

The newsmen will be taken over the entire grounds and shown what improvements will be made and why.

Newsprint Cost To Increase August 1

Newsprint will cost $4 more per ton, effective August 1, the Times and Alleganian Company was advised yesterday by the International Paper Company.

Other large newsprint companies, announcing a similar boost, said the raise was necessitated by increases in labor costs, fuel oil, logs and transportation.

The new boost, which is virtually industry-wide, brings the cost to an even $101 per ton.

The latest increase is the fifth since September, 1946, and the second this year, a boost of $6 per ton having been placed into effect last January.

In all during the past 10 years the cost of newsprint, the paper on which Times-News papers are printed, has more than doubled. A ton of paper in 1938 cost $48.

Many Long Range Goals In Sight, Price Declares

Cites Increase In Area Employment

Many of the long range objectives of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce are now within reach, Henry W. Price, president, said last night in his report at the annual membership meeting of the organization.

Highlights of the report included plans for flood protection, which is now getting underway, the approval for completion of the Savage River Dam and the progress of the Cumberland Municipal Airport.

The past 10 years, he added, have seen a marked growth of employment. In the major industries of this area, there were 17,598 employed in April, 1948, as contrasted to the 10,972 employed in April, 1938.

Retail trade here, he pointed out, is currently running at the rate of 285 per cent, according to the Sales Management index.

Some Problems Remain

Some problems, he said, still remain, among them the further development of industry, improved traffic and parking facilities, a revision of the city charter and a broad recreational program.

The group, Price said, will continue to promote these objectives with the assistance of public officials, civic-minded organizations and citizens.

Six Directors Named

Six directors were named at the meeting held last night at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. They are:

Edward R. Allan, Franklin H. Ankeney, George L. Buchanan, George F. Hazelwood, all former directors, and Frederick W. Eller and Joseph M. Naughton.

Ankeney, who is treasurer of the Chamber, reported the group operated within its budget and ended the year with a comfortable surplus.

New Members Added

The names of 32 new members were presented to the group by James R. Kendall, assistant manager. The present membership, he said, is 502.

In a discussion of the traffic and parking situation here, Miles G. Thompson, chairman of the highways and transportation committee, urged the group to continue its efforts to secure the proposed George Street parking lot.

Plans for that location, he said, should not be dropped since it offers a natural location. The site, he explained, could be developed without too much cost and would produce a satisfactory revenue since it could provide parking for about 800 cars.

Thompson reviewed the present status of plans to alleviate traffic conditions and of highway improvement, including the work of the Confederation of Western Maryland Communities.

Is Selling Job

The industrial development of Cumberland is a "selling job" and a project in which the entire community must participate, Howard M. Smith, chairman of the Industrial Promotion Committee, said.

Everyone, he added, must emphasize the favorable aspects of Cumberland and try to develop interest in them.

Finance Commissioner William Buckholtz, William C. Walsh Adolph Blunk, Charles S. Catherman, Jr., William L. Wilson and Henry Holzshu were among the civic leaders who participated in the general discussion on industrial development.

The group, Harold W. Smith, manager of the Chamber of Commerce reported, is determined to find out what must be done to promote the industrial growth of this area.

Local Firm Gets Order From Africa

Recently, however, the Ankeney Company, Inc., 27 North Centre Street, received an order for stationery supplies from Rev. L. O. Shirley, acting business agent of the Evangelical United Brethren Mission at Freetown, Sierra Leone, Africa.

Rev. Shirley was a customer of the firm when he was serving pastorates in Winchester, Va., and Gerardstown, W. Va.

In an accompanying letter he explained that the supplies were unobtainable in the section of Africa where he is stationed. He added that he is enjoying his present work but that he would prefer active evangelistic and school work.

Ankeney's reported that the shipment is on its way to Freetown.

City Hall To Close

Because of the observance of "Cumberland Day" today at Fairgo, all City Hall offices will be closed at noon.

Local Briefs

Dr. Richard C. Leonard, chief of the division of oral hygiene, State Department of Health, conferred here yesterday with local Health Department officials.

Miss Helen Rafferty, county supervisor of public health nurses, returned Monday after spending a three weeks' vacation in Syracuse, N. Y.

Interstate Race Agreement Will Be Proposed

Reports On Barred Horses May Be Asked

The Maryland Racing Commission will be asked to seek a better working agreement between Maryland and out-of-state racing groups in reporting barred horses, as a result of the fatal accident at Fairgo, Joseph F. Flanagan, racing steward, said last night.

Flanagan, who conducted an investigation of Jockey Benny Leggett's death when he was thrown from Alpine Boy, said he will suggest that the state racing group attempt to work out an agreement that will result in barred horses being reported by other states.

Alpine Boy, the 12-year-old gelding that was barred at Charles Town, W. Va., earlier this season, was entered in the fourth race Saturday at Fairgo without officials knowing of the West Virginia action, Flanagan said.

The horse, which local officials admit is blind in the right eye, was described as blind in both eyes by Dr. W. E. Trussell, Charles Town veterinarian, who ruled the horse off the Charles Town track.

Issue Signed Statement

Dr. F. M. Keller and Dr. James A. B. Stewart, Maryland Racing Commission veterinarians at the local track, yesterday issued a signed statement at the request of Flanagan which read:

"This is to certify that the horse, Alpine Boy, bay gelding, age 12 years, owned by Dr. J. Gross and trained by R. Albright, stabled at Fairgo, Cumberland, Md., was examined on Saturday, July 24, 1948, prior to the fourth race and found fit to race.

"On July 27, 1948, at the request of Mr. Joseph Flanagan, steward representing the Maryland Racing Commission, the above named horse was re-examined and no apparent physical change was noted."

In commenting on yesterday's investigation, Flanagan said the stewards questioned jockeys who were mounted in the fourth race as well as men who captured the horse after it threw Leggett.

"Unfortunately, we knew nothing of the Charles Town action," Flanagan said, and therefore accepted the entry on the basis of its 1947 performance in Maryland, when it finished in the money nine out of 12 times without giving any indication that it was a dangerous horse.

The horse was barred from all Maryland tracks Saturday after Leggett was thrown, and Flanagan said the report of the veterinarians will in no way change the stewards' ruling.

"Alpine Boy was barred from Maryland tracks because he is deemed a dangerous horse as the result of actions in the fourth race Saturday," Flanagan said, adding "It will be barred for all time."

Struck By Jockey

Alpine Boy with Leggett up broke slow in the race, according to Flanagan, and was then struck two or three times by the jockey who was holding his whip in the right hand.

This action may have caused the horse to steer left toward the rail in an effort to run away from the whip, Flanagan said. The horse crashed into the rail and threw Leggett shortly after the race started, he added.

"Had we known of the action at Charles Town regarding the horse," Flanagan stated, "there is no doubt that a more thorough investigation of his record would have resulted."

However, the horse had a good record on Maryland tracks in 1947 and it was on this that the gelding was admitted to the race at Fairgo, he explained.

Flanagan said he saw the horse running in many of the 1947 races and declared there was nothing to indicate it was a bad horse, as the Saturday action brought forth.

Case Is Closed

Written reports of the investigation have been mailed to the three members of the racing commission, according to Flanagan, who said that "unless some new angle turns up the case is closed. Unfortunately that is all we can do about it," he added.

Flanagan said he expects to make a verbal report to the racing commission later in the week and the interstate working agreement recommendation will probably be made at that time.

It has never been the custom of racing associations to report barred horses, although trainers and owners are now required under penalty of heavy fine to report "nerved and bleeding horses," according to Flanagan.

Efforts of a Baltimore News-Post reporter yesterday to have the horse examined by an impartial physician were blocked by Maryland State Police, who, acting on orders because of the heavy traffic, refused to permit Dr. Frank U. Davis to enter the racing ground during the heavy flow of traffic from the track shortly after 6 p. m. last night.

The reporter said that he will try again today to secure a physician to check Alpine Boy.

The examination has the full approval of local racing officials, they said.

Carloads Show Decrease

A total of 65,238 carloads were handled on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad during the weekending July 24. Of that number, 41,676 were loaded on line and 23,562 were received from connections.

The week's total shows a decrease as compared to carloads handled during the same period last year, which totaled 67,351.

The Weather

Yesterday was another warm day with mercury reaching 88 degrees above zero, just two points below Monday's 90. Minimum temperature reported yesterday was 56 with 66 reported at 8 a. m.
